Iraqi Slain At Embassy; Police Seize Co-Worker

Man Is Arrested In Detroit After Janitor Is Stabbed To Death Here

By Alfred E. Lewis and Melvin Altschuler
Post Reporters

Detroit police yesterday afternoon tracked down and arrested an employe of the Iraq Embassy some 6 hours after the embassy's head janitor was found stabbed to death here.

The Detroit pickup was made at the request of Washington police.

The arrested man identified himself to Detroit authorities as Chamchum Elias Saysi, 41. The Iraq Embassy confirmed the fact that Saysi is a staff janitor.

Detroit Chief of Detectives Jack Harvill said last night that traces of blood were found beneath Saysi's fingernails, and on his wristwatch, shirt and arms.

Saysi has denied any implication in the murder of his co-worker, police said, and has refused to waive extradition.

Harvill said Saysi was arrested at 3:45 p. m. (Washington time) at the home of a fellow Iraqi, Tom A. Yelda.

Harvill quoted Yelda as saying that Saysi nervously told him:

"I've just killed a man in Washington. You've got to help me get out of the country."

D. C. Detectives En Route

Two Washington policemen, Detective Sergts. Walter M. Cook and Bernard Crooke of the homicide Squad, arrived in Detroit last night to question Saysi, Detroit authorities said.

The slain man was 37-year-old Mahmud Rodaini.

He was found about 9:30 a. m. yesterday in a basement room at the Iraq Chancery, 2205 Massachusetts ave. nw.

His neck, shoulders and arms had been slashed repeatedly. He was dressed only in shorts and an undershirt.

Police said there was no evidence of a struggle in the room.

The single bed on which he was lying and the floor around it were blood-stained.

On a washstand in an adjoining room, police said they found a

Deaf Mute Tells Judge His Trouble, Finds Sympathy

Danville, Va., July 27 (AP).—Judson Dunn, 42, deaf mute from Lexington, N. C., offered extenuating circumstances when he was arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of public intoxication.

He testified he was out of work, his eldest son was killed in the Korean war a few days ago, he has another son fighting in Korea, his wife died in Poco.noke, Md., Tuesday and he was going to her funeral.

"Go ahead," the magistrate said quietly.

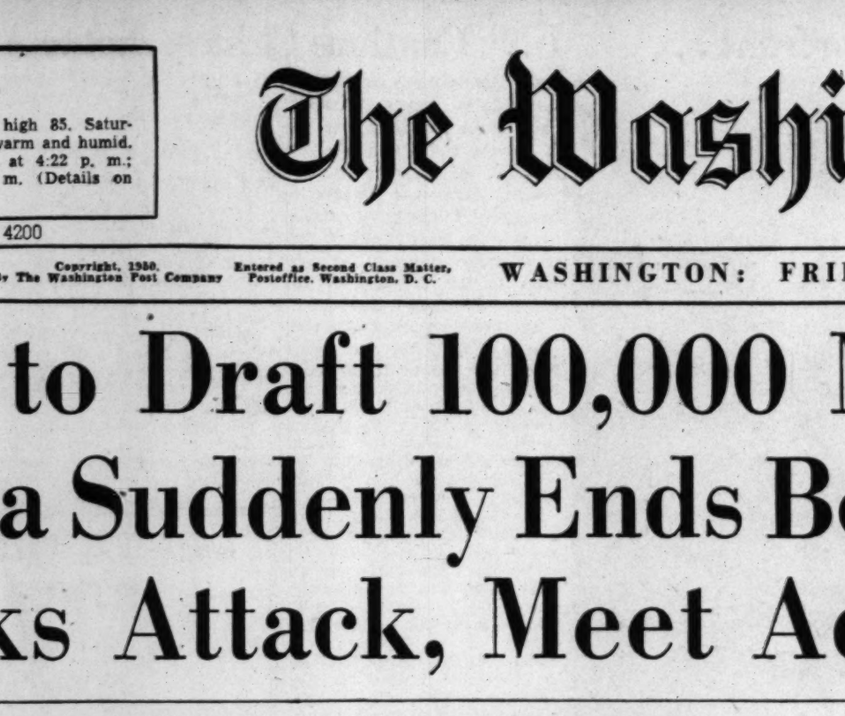
Government Towns Planned Outside D. C.



FOR KEY AGENCIES—This map shows the area within a 50-mile radius of the zero milestone in which the National Security Resources Board plans the construction of a series of new Government towns to which key agencies would be dispersed from downtown Washington. Police Drive Leopold's Foes From Palace

Scores Are Injured In Battle on Street; 5 Cities Strike-Bound

Brussels, July 27 (U.P.).—Socialist demonstrators demanding the abdication of King Leopold III battled police and royalists tonight after the rioting Socialists invaded the grounds of Laeken Palace and were driven out with rifle butts and swords.

Scores of persons were reported injured, including some 50 Socialists slugged with rifle butts by police. The injured also included children who had gone to the palace to pay homage to the King.

The battle with paving bricks and stones broke out after the demonstrators, led by former Premier Paul-Henri Spaak, converged on the palace to protest Leopold's return. Spaak had warned earlier of a possible revolution as strikes virtually paralyzed five Belgian cities.

March 4 Miles

The Socialists, who had marched 4 miles from Parliament to Laeken to chant their demand for abdication beneath the palace windows, became angry when police and state troops drove them from the grounds.

The fighting spread quickly and the big state trooper force on duty was nearly helpless. By 8:30 p. m. a full-fledged battle with paving bricks raged along the 2-mile road from the palace to the royal church. One car was set afire and exploded. A bus was overturned.

The Interior Ministry said nine persons were injured seriously.

Capital Circled by G-Town

Plan Would Spread Agencies For 50 Miles Around Capital

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Copyright, 1950, by The Washington Post Co.

The wraps are about to be taken off a National Security Resources Board "Plan for the Security of the Nation's Capital."

It calls for dispersal of key Government agencies from downtown Washington to a ring of new satellite Government towns to be built within a 50-mile radius of the zero milestone behind the White House.

Instead of employes in Bethesda or Arlington, for example, driving downtown to work at the Atomic Energy Commission or State Department buildings, they would drive to new G-towns north toward Frederick, Md., west toward Warrenton, Va., or south toward La Plata, Md.

The security proposal, in some respects, is just an adaptation of suggestions that city planners have urged for a decade in long-range studies advocating establishment of new Federal agencies in communities outside the District. Their purpose, of course, has been the solution of housing, traffic and like problems, and not the acheivement of security.

But the plan does not contemplate leaving downtown Washington with its Federal Triangle and nearby Government buildings a ghost town. Instead, as the essential agencies moved to the new ring towns, the nonessential agencies would fill up the AEC, State and other buildings.

The plan, now locked in a NSRB safe, is scheduled to go to President Truman in a week or 10 days. The President, it is understood, already is familiar with this general outline of the plan.

The NSRB expectation is that

Va. Area Dairies Granted ½c Rise In Price of Milk

Richmond, Va., July 27 (AP).—The State Milk Commission today ordered a half-cent per quart increase in the price of home-delivered milk in the Alexandria-Arlington milk market, effective July 31.

Area dairies are expected to apply the increase simultaneously throughout Greater Washington.

A commission spokesman said the order provided for proportionate increases on other units and a quantity discount to housewives purchasing at least 6 quarts of milk per day.

The order followed a hearing held in Alexandria on Wednesday at the request of three distributors in the area.

Now Before Rules Group

House Unit Passes Bill to Ban Shipments of Slot Machines

The House Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday approved the bill to ban interstate shipment of slot machines and pay-off pinball games.

The measure now goes to the Rules Committee, where it must be approved for House floor consideration.

At a two-hour session, the committee amended the Senate-approved measure to be certain the bill hits only shipment of the two gambling devices. Some members have feared it might include legitimate coin-operated nongambling machines such as soft-drink dispensers. The bill will not affect punchboards.

Two amendments offered by Representative Bennett (R., Mich.) were adopted. One defines gambling devices, coming under the Federal ban, as slot or other machines "an essential part of which is a drum or reel with insignia thereon" which pays off in cash or property. This amendment also includes the pay-off pinballs and "any sub-assembly or essential part" for either gambling device.

The other amendment makes an exception for States or parts of States where the one-armed bandits are legal, as in Nevada and some Maryland counties. But, where the Senate version merely required the governor to certify as to the legality in his State, the amendment requires the State legislature to pass a new bill exempting the State from the Federal law.

Another change was to tighten the Senate penalty clause by providing for a fine of up to $5000

Heaviest U. S. Offensive Begun In Rain Without Planes' Support

BULLETIN

Tokyo, (Friday), July 28 (AP). Heavy North Korean attacks drove back the left flank of the First Cavalry Division on the Yongdong front today, General MacArthur reported.

Tokyo (Friday), July 28 (AP). United States troops today launched their biggest counterattack of the war, smashing headon into a tank-led Communist push in the vital Yongdong sector.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead in the field said the United States First Cavalry Division struck this morning at Hwanggan, eight miles northeast of Yongdong.

The Communists had kicked off at dawn with an attack of their own, led by tanks. The Reds appeared to be trying to slash the main supply line to the big port of Pusan, 95 miles to the southeast.

Maj. Gen. Hobart Gay, commander of the First Cavalry Division, immediately ordered a counterattack. It was made in regimental strength. (The United Press estimated the Reds may be using 40,000 men.) The American foot soldiers drove forward without air support in the drizzle and mist that shrouded the battlefield.

Whitehead said the outcome of the fighting still had not been determined.

Biggest Battle Coming Up

The Red attack was part of a series of thrusts along the curving 200-mile Korean front. It appeared to be the prelude to possibly the biggest battle of the war.

Associated Press Correspondent Tom Lambert in a separate dispatch said the Reds at Hwanggan attacked with 400 men and were thrown back by artillery and small arms fire.

Lambert reported one Red force of about 200 men had swung around the flank of the Hwanggan position and unless dislodged might force the Americans to retreat once more.

Lambert said that an estimated 5000 Communist troops were concentrating about two miles from Hwanggan near the highway leading southeastward to Pusan.

The northerners also were pounding steadily at the United States 25th Division, which is holding the line north of Yongdong.

Army operational reports said two Red divisions, while keeping up pressure on the Twenty-fifth Division sector, had sent one column southward which linked up with Reds attacking on the First Cavalry part of the front.

These reports indicated the Reds had begun another outflanking drive on United States positions east of Yongdong.

In the Hwanggan area, the Reds are only 19 road miles northwest of the important road and rail junction of Kunchon. Supplies are fed through Kunchon not only to the Yongdong sector but to the front to the north where the Twenty-fifth is fighting.

A regiment of Reds was reported to have made a 3-mile gain through

'From the East'

U. S. Again Warns It Will Fight To Defend Western Germany

By the United Press

The United States yesterday warned flatly it will fight to defend West Germany against possible attack "from the East" and said Communist propaganda to the contrary is a "Trojan-horse" appeal.

The renewed statement that American troops and planes would resist an invasion of West Germany was aimed at counteracting Red appeals to West Germans to fight with Russia or remain neutral in event of a war.

Propaganda appeals and attacks on the Western occupying powers have increased following the meeting of the Soviet-sponsored Cominform in East Germany and the Communist attack in Korea.

This country's reaction to Communist propaganda was outlined by State Department Press Officer Michael J. McDermott. He said the West Germans are not likely to fall for any such appeals.

"They have few illusions of the Soviet Utopia in which their less fortunate brothers live, and they should have no doubts of our repeatedly expressed and continuing determination to defend the area of the Federal Republic from a possible attack from the east," McDermott stated.

The attack in Korea, officials said, has alerted Washington, London and Paris to the possibility the Communists might strike in Germany, which is regarded as the main prize sought by Russia.

The three Western powers were said to be agreed that their occupation troops will stay in West Germany even if Russia decides to withdraw troops from her zone.

The United States, Britain and France believe this will stymie any thoughts the Reds have of seizing Berlin or West Germany. In line with this policy, the three nations are undertaking these measures to strengthen West Germany and West Europe's defenses:

1. West German police forces soon will be increased from about 100,000 men to 110,000. Training in putting down internal disorders will be stepped up and automatic weapons will be added to the clubs, pistols and rifles now in their hands.

2. Authority will be given for the West German Government to use police to defend West Germany "in time of emergency."

3. Plans under consideration would put West Germany's industries to work on nonordnance production for West Europe's armies.

Speculation on Reasons

Malik to Assume Presidency Of Security Council in Surprise

Lake Success, July 27 (AP).—Russia's Jakob A. Malik suddenly ended the Soviet boycott of the United Nations today and informed the U. N. he would take over the presidency of the Security Council August 1. He also called a meeting of the council for that date.

The decision of the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister was transmitted to Secretary General Trygbe Lie as the U. N. received assurances of about a division of combat troops to help the United States fight against Communist North Korea's invasion of the U. N. -sponsored Republic of Korea.

There was no hint from Malik whether the Soviet Union would return to the 29 other U. N. organizations the Russians are boycotting over the issue of Nationalist Chinese representation. But some U. N. observers speculated that Malik's return might mean a decisive development in the Korean war. They recalled that Malik and United States delegates started conversations here which ended the Berlin blockade. The United States, Britain and other countries have appealed to the Soviet Union to use its influence to stop the North Korean invasion, but so far have had no results.

There was no official word, however, on this point, and most U. N. people did not allow their hopes to rise too high. It was stressed that if the Russians move to hamstring actions in the Security Council, the American and other dele-

70-Group Regular Air Force Emerging in Expansion Plans

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

America at last is going to get the equivalent of a 70-group Regular Air Force.

That is the major fact of the air power expansion program outlined privately to Congressional committees yesterday by USAF chiefs.

Plans call for completing the larger air striking force—equipped with modern warplanes—under funds provided in the '52 budget now fairly along toward completion at the Pentagon. The bigger aerial armada should be in being by the winter of 1952-53.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee announced a few main facts regarding the program yesterday after hearing Secretary of Air Force Thomas K. Finletter, Undersecretary John McCone and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF chief of staff, in executive session. Confirming a story in The Washington Post yesterday, he said the Air Force would add 10 groups to its present 48 by next July and further expand to 69 groups.

Vinson stated that USAF manpower will be enlarged from 412,000 officers and men to 548,311 and that it is hoped to reach the 69-group goal by January 1, 1953. He declined to answer further questions about numbers of aircraft, types, etc.

Without violating security, The Post is able to round out the picture of this major decision to provide the Nation with adequate air power and to state authoritatively:

1. The 69 groups now in view actually will cost more and have more striking power than the originally planned 70 groups in the Regular Air Force.

2. However, the new approved goal is NOT the original "70-group program." That complete program—as recommended by the President's Air Policy Commission in 1947—provided for comparable increases in the number of groups in the Air National

46-Hour Week Ordered for Military Here

Directive to Affect Only a Few Civilians At the Present Time

An immediate 46-hour workweek for the entire Military District of Washington service personnel was ordered yesterday by Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Herren, commanding officer.

The order, affecting only a few civilians at present, was issued to "accelerate and intensify training activities within the command to meet present and potential needs," General Herren said.

A Potomac River Naval Command spokesman, asked last night if a similar measure was in the offing for Naval personnel, said, "So far there is no change."

Under General Herren's order, the soldiers' normal work-week of 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. Mondays through Fridays will continue, but will be supplemented by an 8:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. work-day on Saturdays. Military personnel will be expected to participate in two or more hours of athletics weekly.

Civilian personnel will be used on Saturdays and holidays "only when absolutely necessary to meet current responsibilities," the general said.

Affected by the order are units at: Fort Lesley J. McNair and the Army Medical Center, both in the

50-50 Chance

House Upsurge Seen Favoring All-Out Wage, Price Controls

An upsurge of sentiment for the Baruch program of all-out controls was noted in the House of Representatives yesterday despite President Truman's insistence that there is no necessity now for a ceiling on prices and wages.

One Democratic leader, who asked that he not be identified said there was a 50-50 chance the House would go all the way on controls. He said he had made up his own mind to vote for an all-out bill.

Another Democratic leader said he couldn't believe the House would be foolish enough to vote for rationing and controls on prices and wages after Mr. Truman had said he didn't want them at this time.

The President made his views known at a press-radio conference, saying he felt his own request for limited controls was right at this time. He said control of prices and wages should not come unless there is an all-out mobilization, and he added he hoped there would not have to be an all-out mobilization.

The tipoff to the mood of the House came early in the day when its Banking Committe rejected by only one vote — 10 to 9 — a Republican-sponsored bill to put "a ceiling across the entire economy."

Later in the day the House Banking Committee, by a vote of 20 to 1, reported out the Administration's program of limited controls, after making some modifications asked by farm groups and commodity dealers.

505 Will Go From District In September And October

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Additional Selective Service calls bringing to 100,000 the total number of men needed by the Army in September and October were issued last night by the Defense Department.

The new calls will raise to an estimated 505 the total number of District of Columbia men required during the two-month period.

Previously, a national call for 20,000 men for September alone had been issued for the Army. This initial call represented a draft of 101 men in the District.

By the new calls, the total numbers raised to 50,000 including an estimated 252 from the District. The additional 50,000 men are to be provided in October.

The estimated totals needed from the District were figured on the basis of the original 20,000 announcement on July 10 and are unofficial.

23-Year-Olds Next

Frank P. Norton, deputy Selective Service director for the District, said the new call may result in examining 23-year-olds. Thus far, only 24- and 25-year-olds have been tapped.

Maryland's September quota of 300 presumably would increase to about 750, and Virginia's 435 previous commitment would rise to 1087.

The Army stated the new draft call was based on the decision to bring Regular Army units in the United States and reserve and National Guard units called to active duty "to authorized strength at an early date."

To do this, the Army said, "It is necessary to obtain large numbers of men from the Selective Service System during the months of September and October."

Other Steps

1. President Truman ordered servicemen whose enlistments expire this year frozen in the armed forces for another 12 months.

The President acted after signing a bill recently approved by Congress authorizing him to extend enlistments.

The executive order covers all enlistments in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, including the Naval Reserves, the Marine Corps Reserve and "any component of the Air Force."

It applies to any enlistments

Wheaton Officer Sees Red Troops Shift to Guerillas

Lieut. William W. Nairn, 3d, of Wheaton, Md., got new insight into North Korean guerilla tactics in the fighting around Hwanggan on Wednesday, a dispatch from the central sector disclosed last night.

A force he commanded fought its way out of an encirclement after attempting to close a gap between units. He reported seeing a whole platoon of the enemy take off their uniforms and don civilian clothing before attacking an American unit to his left.

Last night's dispatches said some of the heaviest fighting of the war had developed around Hwanggan. Apparently the respite granted the Americans after Wednesday's engagement was brief.

Lieutenant Nairn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Nairn, of Four Corners rd., Wheaton, Md. Graduated from West Point in 1947, he was sent to Japan two years ago. His wife, Janice, whom he married last January in Japan, is expected to return here soon.

We Are Still Paying For the Civil War

The House voted yesterday to let the courts decide whether California should be paid for its contributions in the Civil War.

California, only State that has not been reimbursed for its war efforts 85 years ago, has been plugging its claim in Congress since the 1800s.

MacArthur in Korea Sees Final Victory

United States Eighth Army Headquarters in Korea, July 27 (U.P.).—"New heartaches, new setbacks" are ahead of the United Nations forces in their fight against the North Korean Communist invaders, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today after a flying visit to this war zone.

"But I was never more confident in victory—in ultimate victory—in my life," the U. N. commander in chief told correspondents at the air field here as he prepared to fly back to Tokyo.

(MacArthur arrived at Haneda Airport in Tokyo at 7:40 tonight (5:40 a. m. EDT Thursday) and was met by his wife.)

No details were given of MacArthur's conferences here with Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commanding the Eighth Army; Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, commanding the Fifth Air Force; United States Ambassador John J. Muccio and President Syngman Rhee of the Korean Republic.

But it is believed he will tell President Truman that greater ground strength is necessary to stop and throw out the Communists.

(A Tokyo dispatch, sent after MacArthur's return, said he was expected to report to the President by direct two-way teletype to Washington on his visit.)

It was MacArthur's second visit to Korea since the war started, June 25. He came, as he did the first time on June 29, in his unarmed transport Bataan. After his conferences, MacArthur visited the Army hospital and chatted with wounded GIs. Before he took off for Tokyo, MacArthur told correspondents:

"I have a feeling of optimism after my inspection today. In this type of fighting, you must expect ups and downs. Reactions are sure to occur in the interval of time between the initiative that the enemy has and the initiative that he is going to lose. I am completely confirmed in the estimates that I made to the President of the United States last week that the enemy lost his great chance for victory in the last three weeks.

"That does not mean that victory passes to us instantly or without a long, hard row and the most difficult struggle. That we will have new heartbreaks, new setbacks is inherent in the situation, but I was never more confident in victory—in ultimate victory—in my life than I am now.

"General Walker and his division commanders are handling the situation with marked energy and superior efficiency. The South Korean forces, the South Korean commanders, are showing a degree of resiliency which is inspiring. The Air Forces and the Navy have been splendid in every way. Everyone understands that no matter how great their efficiency, they cannot through their own might alone stop vigorous advancing ground troops. It seems to me they have done everything it was possible for them to do.

"One of the outstanding features of the situation today has been the complete cooperation and cordination between the various services. That cooperation has extended to the fullest extent to the Korean forces. It is now going even further and is extending to the United Nations, not only as basic groups but to various branches of various nations serving the common cause."

Only 1 of 26 Rescued In Tokyo Plane Crash

Tokyo, July 27 (U.P.).—A General Headquarters courier plane carrying 26 persons plunged into the ocean about 90 miles south of Tokyo today and only one survivor was rescued.

The Third Air-Sea Rescue Squadron continued an intensive search 8 to 10 miles off Oshima Island, almost directly south of Tokyo, where the unidentified survivor was pulled from the sea.

The names of the 23 passengers and three crewmen on the C-47 were not revealed but it was understood four of the passengers were war correspondents en route to the Korean war zone.

The plane left Haneda Airport outside Tokyo for a southern Japan base and was airborne only half an hour when it crashed into the sea. Tokyo weather was good at that time.

Newsmen going to Korean usually fly to southern Japan bases and transfer there into craft heading for Korea. If four reporters were casualties of the crash it will bring to eight the number of newsmen killed or missing in the Korean war. Two were killed by enemy fire and two are missing on battlefields.

Four correspondents were listed on the plane's manifest and although an official passenger list was not released it seemed certain the reporters were aboard.

They were James O. Supple of the Chicago Sun-Times, Albert Hinton of the Norfolk Journal and other papers, Maxmillian Philoneko of the French Press Agency and Stephen Simmons of the British Hulton Press.

U. S. Cautions Chinese Not to Attack Formosa

The United States has made a new move to reassure Communist China about American intentions in Formosa, and to keep her from attacking the island.

Using India as a friendly intermediary, the State Department has acted to bring President Truman's latest statement on Formosa to the attention of the Chinese Communist leaders.

The President said in his message of July 19 that the United States had "no territorial ambitions whatever" in Formosa, and was using its Seventh Fleet there "without prejudice to political questions affecting the island." Chinese official propagandists had been accusing the United States of wanting to annex Formosa.

The United States has no representation in Peking and no direct way of getting an assurance to the authorities there. India, on the other hand, has an ambassador who is believed to be on good terms with the Chinese Communist leaders.

The State Department therefore has instructed Ambassador Loy Henderson in New Delhi to ask the Indian government to ask its ambassador to communicate the President's Formosa statement to Peking.

In addition, Henderson has been asked to send this indirect message to Peking through the Indian ambassador: that it would not be in China's interest to attack Formosa.

The Indian embassy here had already cabled the President's words to its government, and presumably the Indian government forwarded them to its ambassador in Peking. But the State Department action was an attempt to make doubly sure that the message reached its real destination.

The Indians themselves had suggested that a "clarification" of American policy toward Formosa might help to keep the Chinese from attacking the island or from intervening in the Korean war. They were convinced, on the basis of reports from Peking, that the Chinese Communists really believed in American annexationist designs on the island.

Although the Indians were pleased by the President's statement, they felt and still feel that it did not go far enough. They hoped the President would say that the United States still stood by the Cairo Declaration of 1943, which pledged the return of Formosa to China after the war.

So there may well be a request for a further "clarification" after the Indian ambassador has delivered the indirect message from Washington to Peking.

Red Attack on Taitan Is Reported Defeated

Taipes, Formosa, July 27 (AP).—The Defense Ministry said about 500 Chinese Communists today landed on tiny Taitan Island, two miles off Amoy, but the invaders were either killed or captured by Nationalist defenders.

Red-held Amoy has been considered the takeoff point for an invasion against Quemoy Island, a key point in the Nationalist blockade of the mainland.

The Defense Ministry communique said more than 200 of the invaders were captured and the rest annihilated. It added that three Communist junks were set afire, eight sunk and 12 captured.

Negro Troops Battle Hordes To Standoff

With the Twenty-fifth Infantry Division in Korea, July 27 (U.P.).—American Negro troops, with their cooks and clerks and truck drivers in the firing line, fought off overwhelming numbers of fanatically attacking North Koreans for 24 hours yesteday and ealy today.

The GIs pulled back, by order, to adjust their line and prevent entrapment by infiltrating enemy troops.

It was the biggest battle fought yet by the Negro troops of the 25th Division who had captured Yechon six days ago.

The Communists opend their attack about 4:30 a. m. yesterday with a heavy artillery bombardment. At 6:30 there was a sudden silence. The shrill blast of a whistle was heard from the enemy lines and a wave of screaming North Koreans came over.

The Reds knifed between two front-line companies and struck an area held by a reserve company.

The attack was stopped. The attackers moved around and started trying to filter into the two front-line companies.

Hour after hour fresh troops were thrown into the attack, the blast of a whistle marking the start of each wave toward the American lines.

Time and again the American GIs were thrown back from one position after another. Some were cut off at times. Time and again they counter-attacked and regained their positions.

It was only when headquarters fered that the troops would be overwhelmed by hopelessly superior numbers that the order was given to fall back to new positions west of Sangju.

"We mowed them down with our machine guns and mortars but they just came pouring at us," a lieutenant said. "But those buzzards didn't drive us out. We were ordered to withdraw."

One sergeant killed about 30 enemy troops with his machine gun.

214 GIs Fight 20-Mile Way Out of Trap

With the First Cavalry Division in Korea, July 27 (U.P.).—A total of 214 First Cavalry Division troopers, trapped behind the enemy lines since the retreat from Yongdong Tuesday, have fought their way back to safety.

They had hiked 20 miles through mountains and valleys infested with North Korean infantrymen and guerillas, and they made it even though some of them were carrying wounded buddies unable to walk.

An L-5 liason plane had spotted the GIs Tuesday and dropped supplies to them as they fought their way back.

Two First Cavalry reconnaissance planes crashed today between Kumchon and Taegu. One plunged into the Kum River and its two occupants were seriously wounded. The other plane crash-landed nearby so its crew could help the wounded pair.

A force of South Korean police arrived and took over the job of rounding up and screening refugees who are streaming into the battle area—many driven by the Communists—from east and south of Yongdong.

Many of these refugees are believed, as usual, to be disguised Communist troops.

The South Korean police detained 500 or more suspected Reds who appeared suddenly behind the American lines today.

Diplomats Certain Soviet Russia Can't Upset U. N. Korea Action

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Official Washington wondered last night what advantage the Russians hoped to gain by returning to the Security Council.

American and foreign diplomats were confident the Russians could not upset the legality of the Security Council's actions in Korea. The resolutions calling for a cease-fire, withdrawal and for the force "to repel aggression" will stay in effect, and the non-Soviet powers can veto any attempt to rescind them.

But many guessers felt sure that the Kremlin had other ends in mind. They might be a renewed effort to unseat Nationlist China and to substitute a delegate from Communist China; and they might very probably be an attempt to bring Communist China's complaint about Formosa to the formal notice of the Security Council.

"American Aggression"

This would give the Soviet Union a new opportunity to pose as the friend of the Chinese and other Asian peoples against what the Communists call "American aggression." Even the Nationalist Chinese delegate, T. F. Tsiang, declared publicly and formally last month that Formosa was rightfully a part of China.

There was no telling what the Russians would do, but this much was certain: the United States and its friends on the Security Council would stand firm in insisting on withdrawal of North Korean forces from South Korea.

Although news of the Soviet decision came, apparently, as a complete surprise, American officials professed to be neither elated nor alarmed. They were determined to treat it as a matter of course and to prepare in businesslike fashion for resumption of Security Council business next Tuesday.

They regarded it as another proof of the fact, previously proven in the Berlin blockade, that the Kremlin responds when the non-Soviet world takes prompt, firm and vigorous action.

Soviet propaganda has given few clews in the past few days to this sudden reversal of Soviet tactics. Moscow newspapers have begun telling their readers that the Security Council acted in Korea, although they have pictured it as "illegal" action taken under American coercion.

The Kremlin never yet has told its people that more than 50 members of the U.N. have supported the Security Council action. But Izvestia had this to say on Tuesday:

"No matter how zealously are enumerated the governments which have subscribed to the notorious resolution of the Security Council supporting United States aggression, it will never result in a common front of countries within the U. N. against the Korean people, which is the dream of the United States aggressors.

"The facts present a different picture, showing that international public opinion and the peoples of the whole world are against United States aggression and that their sympathies are with the Korean people, who are fighting against the imperialist usurpers."

The Izvestia writer went on to talk of the United States' "crude pressure on its satellites" to send troops to Korea, "but without success." And he said not one of the states that approved the Security Council resolution had agreed to send troops.

Sole Surviving Sons May Escape Combat

The House Armed Services Committee approved a resolution yesterday asking the defense department not to send "sole surviving sons" into combat.

A sole surviving son was defined as a man whose brother or brothers died in military service, whether in combat or not.

The resolution was offered as a substitute for a bill by Representative Andrew Jacobs (D., Ind.), which would have written the ban into law.

Truman Still Hopes Fervently for Peace

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman still is hoping for world peace—reverently hoping for it.

He told reporters this yesterday with some feeling, as he answered questions dealing with the greatest crisis he has ever faced. The Chief Executive, attired in a seersucker suit, appeared to be in good physical trim, but his demeanor was grave.

One of the reporters asked a question that recalled a gayer, more buoyant Harry Truman. He referred to a presidential news conference on June 1, just after Mr. Truman returned from his cross-country trip.

On that occasion, the Chief Executive said he didn't share the feeling of many Americans that a "hot war" would come within five years, but felt, on the contrary, that the world was closer to permanent peace than at any time since 1945.

Statement Recalled

The reporter, after reminding Mr. Truman of that statement, asked if he could say anything about the situation now.

The President replied simply that it would be better to wait for a few more developments before coming to any conclusions on that.

He said he was not considering using the atomic bomb now in connection with the Korean situation. This was in reply to a question that recalled his statement of April 6, 1949, that he "wouldn't hesitate" to order the bomb used again if the welfare of the United States and the democracies of the world were at stake.

"Mr. President," a reporter said, "there has been a lot of talk about arming the Germans in western Germany and also the Japanese. Could you comment on that?"

No comment, was his reply.

He would not comment either on statements by Winston Churchill and General de Gaulle that Europe is in mortal peril of aggression.

In answer to another question, he said that before Congress adjourns he will ask for funds to step up the rearmament of our allies and friends abroad.

He was asked about his recent statement calling on Americans to turn over any information about sabotage and espionage to the FBI, and also about legislation to deal with subversives.

Mr. Truman said that we want to be careful in times like these that we don't get in a mood such as was developed by the Alien and Sedition Acts of 1798. The Bill of Rights, he reminded reporters, was still a part of the Constitution and a most important part. But that didn't mean, he said, that we are going to overlook any opportunities to deal with traitors and saboteurs.

To Stay on Here

In reply to a question about travel, the President said he didn't think there was any possibility of his getting out of Washington any time soon. He said he would stay on the job and do the best he could, still hoping reverently for world peace.

Did this mean that he had abandoned plans to do some campaigning in connection with the 1950 election this fall.

Mr. Truman said that no decision had been reached on that one way or the other.

He said he would rather not comment on the fighting in Korea, and suggested that the communiques covered the situation fully.

Rush of Recruits

Full Division May Be Sent By Australia

Sydney, Australia, July 27 (AP).—Australia's contribution to United Nations ground forces in Korea probably will total a division, Army and Navy Minister Josiah Francis said today.

That might mean 10,000 men, or more than has been pledged by any other country to line up with the American GIs.

Recruiting began with a rush. By early this morning, 100 men had applied in Sydney alone. A dispatch from Canberra, the capital, said World War II veterans, plus some soldiers in the regular army will make up the bulk of the force. The idea is to use trained men so the unit can be moved to the fighting front without delay.

Francis said the final decision on the size of the force will depend on information from Prime Minister Robert Menzies, who is to see President Truman in Washington this week.

The acting Prime Minister, Arthur W. Fadden, announced the Australian destroyer Warramunga will be sent to Korean waters soon to join the destroyer Bataan and the frigate Shoalhaven. Australian planes have been in the fight from the first.

"Australia is determined to accept its responsibilities until the aggression in Korea has been crushed," Fadden said.

Supply Minister O. H. Beale said Australia must be prepared for total war. He told the inaugural meeting of the defense supply planning committee in Melbourne "events around us indicate there is no time for delay." The committee, in addition to stockpiling strategic materials, is to plan mobilization of key industries in the event of war.

Britain, Turkey, Thailand, Cuba, Boliva and New Zealand also have offered ground troops in response to the appeal by U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie.

New Zealand's contribution to the Korean campaign is understood to be one field artillery regiment and a supporting signal detachment, with a provisional total of 1200 men. However, more than 1650 volunteered on the first day and the force may be increased.

Thailand to Get U. S. Military Aid

The State Department said yesterday the United States is about to negotiate a military aid agreement with the government of Thailand.

The negotiations will be carried on in Bangkok, capital of the southeast Asia nation which borders Indo-China.

State Department Press Officer Michael J. McDermott told a news conference the agreement presumably will specify the terms under which the United States will send military supplies to Thailand.

The Thailand government has offered to place 4000 troops at General MacArthur's disposal to fight the Korean Communists.

McDermott said, however, the military aid agreement is separate from this offer.

8th Army Lifts Ban to Permit 'Fair' Criticism

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, July 27. (AP).—The U. S. Eighth Army public information officer today said there would be no ban on "fair and honest criticism" of command decisions or conduct of allied troops in Korea.

Lieut. Col. R. L. Thompson amended instruction No. 9 to correspondents to read:

"Unwarranted criticism of command decisions or of the conduct of allied soldiers on the battlefield will not be tolerated."

This inserted "unwarranted."

There had been apprehension that correspondents would be banned from the war theater for any criticism of commanders or troops.

Thompson said the no-criticism instruction was drafted to halt what he believed to be the mistaken and unjustified criticism against piecemeal commitment of the only available American units in the early Korean fighting.

"What the hell else could be done?" he asked.

Refugees in So. Korea Estimated at Million

Lake Success, July 27 (AP).—UN. sources estimated today there are between 750,000 and one million refugees in South Korea. They said emergency supplies are being distributed from military stockpiles but that there is a great need for food, shelter, clothing and medical supplies.

Science Roster Lists 'Brains' For U. S. Call

Defense mobilization planners are speeding up the compilation of a special roster showing the names, skills and whereabout of the Nation's scientists and other highly-trained technicians.

The purpose of the "national scientific register" is to insure that U. S. scientific brainpower will be used with maximum effectiveness in the present preparedness program and any future emergency.

The long-planned project is being handled jointly by the National Security Resources Board and the U. S. Office of Education.

Earl J. McGrath, Commissioner of Education, yesterday disclosed that it has been speeded up "in view of world conditions."

He called on all colleges and universities to cooperate. The project is headed by ames C. O'Brien of the NSRB.

Russians Ask Scientists Here to Block Germ War

Moscow, July 27 (U.P.).—Eight top Soviet scientists appealed today to American bacteriologists to keep germ warfare out of the hands of "warmongers."

A three-column appeal published in the Literary Gazette urged the American scientists to declare their position. It asked:

"With whom are you? With the band of imperialist conspirators dreaming of annihilation of civilization, a dictatorship of death and conversion of a series of countries into enormous cemeteries, or are you with those struggling for peace for the whole world?"

The appeal was signed by Evgeni Pavlovsky, member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences; Konstantin I. Skriabin, president of the Society of Helminthologists (study of parasiting worms), Pavel Zodrovsky, Dr. Olga Lepishinskya, and others.

It mentioned specifically such American scientists as Rene Dubaux, Edward Francis, Oswal Avery and Michael Heidelberger and asked them whether they were prepared to "permit the use of their achievements in bacteriology as weapons in the hands of warmongers or to allow the conversion of their laboratories and institutes into death factories."

The Soviet scientists said that no one can be neutral today when "aircraft made in the United States destroy peaceful cities in Korea.

Policy Committee Is Set Up To Map Home-Front Action

By The Associated Press

A four-way "National Policy Committee" is being formed from industry, labor, agriculture, and the public to help the Government get the home front in shape for war.

W. Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board, yesterday announced that the committee will consult with the NSRB on "major policy questions." Obviously he meant questions like controls on prices, profits, wages, manpower and materials.

Concerning prices and profits, a temporary committee of nine labor leaders issued a statement yesterday after meeting with Symington for the third time. They called for quick adoption of excess-profits taxes that would return to the Government the profits "extorted from the public" through price rises since the Korean fighting began June 25.

Symington said the National Policy Committee will have 12 members, three from each major group.

The three labor members will be William Green, AFL president; Philip Murray, CIO president, and Al Hayes, president of the International Association of Machinists (unaffiliated.)

Symington said he will announce the other nine members later. He gave credit to organized labor for suggesting the formation of the Policy Committee.

Symington also announced that he has appointed two men from the labor field to be full-time assistants to him as NSRB chairman. They are:

Everett Kassalow, now assistant research director of the CIO, and Eli Oliver, economist with a private labor consulting firm, who was warmly indorsed by AFL leaders.

Oliver is head of the Washington office of Labor Bureau of Middle West, which helps labor, principally railway and other transportation labor unions, in handling problems of wages and working conditions through collective bargaining.

From March, 1941, to May, 1942, he was chief of the Labor Relations Branch of the Labor Division, in the Office of Production Management and the War Production Board, as special assistant to Sidney Hillman, head of the Labor Division.

He had served four times previously in the Federal Government; three times with the Federal Trade Commission, in 1918, 1920 and 1922, and later as labor representative on the Textile Work Assignment Board, set up by President Roosevelt to study problems arising out of the general textile strike in 1934.

Symington said unions will recommend additional men from the labor field to serve in the nine NSRB divisions.

Besides that, he said labor has recommended—and he also will recommend — that each industry committee set up to control the flow or resources shall include labor personnel experienced in that particular industry.

The temporary nine-man labor committee is the agency that proposed the four-way Policy Committee, which chose Green, Murray, and Hayes for that group, and which has been speaking as a voice of organized labor in war-mobilization matters.

Chrysler Turns Down Bid To Mobilization Parley

Detroit, July 27 (U.P.).—The Chrysler Corp. today turned down an invitation from Walter P. Reuther to meet with other auto firms and the CIO United Auto Workers to plan possible industry mobilization.

Reuther, president of the UAW, last week suggested that representatives of top automotive firms and the union discuss a collective movement to place the auto industry on a war production basis.

Ft. Belvoir GI Missing in Korea Action

Sergt. 1/C Ernest M. Kelly, of 172 Gunston rd., Fort Belvoir, Va., was listed as missing in action in Korea by the Department of Defense yesterday.

Sergeant Kelly was listed as the son of Mrs. Blanche D. Kelly of that address.

Reported wounded was Corpl. Clayton Edward Rickard, husband of Mrs. Pauline E. Rickard of Route 2, Clear Spring, Washington County, Md.

Yesterday's two casualty lists identified 19 killed in action, 19 wounded, one injured, 107 missing and two returned to American lines who were previously reported missing.

The new lists brought the total number of identified casualties to 76 killed, eight fatally wounded, 270 wounded, 79 injured, and 472 missing in action.

House Votes Port Safeguards Against A-Bomb Ship Sneak

By The Associated Press

The House yesterday voted to erect safeguards against the sneak entry of possible bomb-carrying "Trojan ships" into United States ports.

Without opposition, it whipped through a bill authorizing the President to search and control movements of all foreign-flag vessels entering American waters.

Representative Celler (D., N. Y.) told the House the legislation is aimed to prevent a potential enemy from bringing the A-bomb into American harbors under the guise of merchant shipping. Search of foreign vessels would be conducted by the Coast Guard or the Customs Service.

The bill goes back to the Senate for action on minor changes.

Customs officials on the West Coast already have taken steps to forestall all possible efforts of foreign ships to bring atomic bombs or bacterial warfare ingredients into American harbors.

Paul Leake, Collector of Customs at San Francisco, said all foreign vessels now or potentially unfriendly to the United States will be halted off shore until a thorough search of the ship and cargo has been made. It was disclosed that inspectors will use Geiger counters to detect possible presence of atom bombs.

Coast Guard headquarters here said action on security measures is being taken in line with the general message on security issued by the President July 24.

Armed Service Enlistments in Area Continue; 29 Sworn by Army, 12 by Navy, 3 by Marines

Recruiters for the armed services here were kept busy yesterday as area men continued to enlist and volunteer for duty.

The Potomac River Naval Command, which took 19 applications for enlistment in the regular Navy, tentatively signed up 10 of the 19 applicants.

In addition, two men in the enlisted reserve volunteered for active duty. One woman applied for Wave enlistment. One applicant was sworn in to the inactive reserve and one previously on inactive service applied for active duty.

Twelve who had previously applied were sworn into the regular Navy.

One applicant for the Marine Corps out of 23 who tried to enlist was accepted yesterday. Three youths who were sworn in and sent to boot camp at Parris Island, S. C., were Joseph O. Moore, 18, 8206 New Hampshire ave., Silver Spring; Joseph H. Lentgens, 3115 Mt. Pleasant st. nw., and William J. Walters, 17, Rectory, Va.

The Army recruiting office accepted and swore in 29 men of 54 who applied. Eight others qualified subject to results of tests.

At Arlington, 38 draft selectees from nearby Virginia and Maryland went through their preliminary tests. A total of 49 were ordered. Under a new policy, the Army examiners have stopped releasing the number who pass the exams.

100,000 Draft Call Issued

which expire after the date of his order prior to July 9, 1951.

2. The Army ordered all servicemen now overseas to serve six months beyond their normal duty tour. The Far East Command was exempted from this directive. The action was taken to conserve shipping space and reduce the turnover of trained personnel.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, immediately after the new draft call, said he was notifying State Selective Service directors of the exact quotas each will have. Information on State quotas would have to come from the local directors, he said.

The Selective Service chief said he did not know how deeply the new call will cut below the present policy of taking only 24 and 25-year-olds. Youths 18 through 25 are eligible under the draft law.

"I think we will have to go into the 23-year-olds, but how far we'll have to go at this time," he said, will depend upon the rejection rate.

Locally, about 100 men have been given preliminary physical and mental tests for the draft, netting an estimated 20 to 30, on unofficial count. Officials had figured they would have to process about 400 youths here to fill the former District quota of 101.

In another military personnel development, the spotlight turned on approximately 5000 young physicians who were trained in World War II under subsidized programs but did almost no active military service.

Army and Navy spokesmen, backed by the older veteran-doctors, feel that these "subsidized" doctors have a moral obligation to volunteer for active duty.

Dr. George Lull, secretary of the American Medical Association, told The Washington Post last night that A.M.A. officials will urge defense chiefs today to take the necessary steps to insure that these service-trained men be called up first.

Such action, he explained, will probably require new legislation. Congress ended the subsidized training program in 1945 and ruled that students were not required to go on active duty when they graduated, nor were they required to accept reserve commissions.

Nearly 18,000 medical students were trained in the last war in the Army specialized training program and the Navy V-12 plan. About two-third of that number finished training and went into medical corps.

The estimated 5000, under fire from the Army and the organized medical profession, were still in school when the war ended and entered civilian practice.

Meanwhile, the Army put out a call yesterday for more than 1200 physicians and dentists to fill vacancies in their expanding forces.

At the Capitol, the Army and Air Force asked authority to recruit woman physicians as regular doctors in their medical corps. Maj. Gen. G. E. Armstrong, for the two services, said female medics who volunteered would receive commissions, pay and promotions on a par with male doctors.

On Retirement

Army Parade To Honor Gen. Gerow

Fort Meade, Md., July 27. (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, who is retiring after nearly 39 years in Army service, will be honored by a parade of several thousand troops here Monday.

Gen. Gerow

The 62-year-old general, a native of Petersburg, Va., is now in command of the Second Army, which includes units and posts in the seven-state area of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Kentucky.

His successor will be Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet.

General Gerow assumed command of the Second Army on January 15, 1948.

During the war he commanded the Twenty-ninth Infantry Division, made up of Virginia and Maryland National Guard troops, when it went to England. On invasion day, he was in command of the Fifth Corps and directed its assault on the beachhead.

House Bill Sets $75-a-Month Allowance for War Wives

A bill to pay family allowances to dependents of service men, with wives getting $75 a month, was introduced in the House yesterday by Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) of the Armed Services Committee.

As in World War II, officers' families would not be entitled to the allowances.

Vinson promised early hearings on the legislation and prompt congressional approval was deemed certain. Both Vinson and Chairman Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee had asked the Defense Department to submit a proposed bill.

The department's bill proposed these family allowances, payable to all enlisted men of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines and Coast Guard: Wife, $75; wife and one child, $100; each extra child, $25.

Against these allowances, the enlisted man would contributed $30 from his own pay.

A dependent parent would get $75 and two parents $90. An enlisted man would contribute of his own pay toward these allowances.

No distinction would be made between draftees, volunteers, or those now in service. All enlisted men, from recruit to master sergeant or their equivalent, would qualify.

Committee members pointed out that the proposed allowances are much higher than those paid during World War II. They noted military pay rates were raised recently and family allowances abolished.

The increase also would reflect rises in living costs since the end of World War II. During most of World War II, a GI wife got $50 a month plus an extra $20 for each child. A dependent parent got $50 a month plus an extra $20 for each child; two dependent parents got $68. The serviceman contributed the first $22 out of his pay and if the allotment was more than the $50 base, he was charged an extra $5.

There was no immediate estimate of the cost of the new bill.

West Europe Weak, Churchill Warns

At Pact Talks

Act Now, French Said To Be Urging

London, July 27 (U.P.).—France will ask the North Atlantic Council of Deputies for "immediate measures" to strengthen West Europe's defense against possible aggression by Russia, informed sources said tonight.

Dispatch of more and experienced American troops to Western Germany to reinforce the occupation was said to be among the suggestions.

France was reported to feel that urgent measures in addition to the long-term master plan for Atlantic defense now before the deputies were necessary because of growing anxieties in West Europe over increased international tension.

French quarters believe that not less than 40 and probably 50 divisions are required for West European defense, and not 30 as thought earlier.

Informed sources listed these French suggestions for effective defense:

1. Speedier moves by the deputies in their over-all planning and immediate decisions on urgent security requirements.

2. An arms production speed-up in Europe by the supply of raw materials from the United States to be manufactured in French and other West European plants.

3. Creation of a joint armament pool.

4. A plan for Germany to contribute to European defense, including production of noncombat equipment and accessories, but not arms or manpower.

(In Paris, meanwhile, Gen. Pierre Billotte, former French military delegate to the United Nations, said West Europe must have a land and air force of 75 divisions before the end of 1952 to ward off an assault.

(The military objective requires "massive rearmament," an "important participation by the Anglo-Saxon powers" and "eventual entry, not too far distant, of Spain, Greece, Turkey and Germany" in the defense setup Billotte said.

(The military expert, a member of the governing board of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Rally of the French People, said these units would have to be built around a French force.)

Miss Stewart to Sing

Miss Jean Mason Stewart, Washington soprano, will be guest soloist with the United States Army Band at 8 p. m. today on the east steps of the Capitol. The concert is one of a series of Friday night appearances by the band.

London, July 27 (AP).—Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today the West has no present means to halt a Russian sweep through Europe if a new world war breaks out.

Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell conceded that Britain's defense forces fall "far short of our requirements." If the international crisis worsens, Shinwell said, this country may have to call up its regular army reserves. The navy already has alerted its reserves.

Meanwhile, the navy disclosed it is taking the 13,500-ton aircraft carrier Warrior out of mothballs to carry reinforcements for sea units operating off Korea, and the 13,190-ton aircraft carrier Ocean will be put into the same service.

Churchill tried in vain to force a secret session for more frank discussion.

He said best estimates give Russia 40,000 tanks and that the Western Allies have no force which could cope with them. He declared U. S. planes now based in England could hit "Russian cities and key points" with atom bombs in case of war, but the Russians would seize airports on the French channel and "bring us under air bombardment, apart from the atomic bomb, far worse than we have ever endured."

"We are more defenseless than w have ever been," he said. He expressed confidence the United States is far ahead of Russia in atom bomb stocks. He said, in his opinion "so far very few have been produced by Russia."

"The extraordinary efforts which they are making to obtain even small quantities of uranium seem to justify the hopeful view," Churchill added.

He said the United States A-bomb stock is an "effective and even, perhaps, decisive deterrent" to an outbreak of Soviet aggression in this part of the world.

Shinwell said he did not intend to rely on hope that Russia will stop short of war, but proceeds "on the assumption anything can happen." He said none of the ground troops Britain has agreed to send to Korea will be less than 19 years old, and no drafted men will have to go.

Informed quarters say the British ground force may number about 5000. Shinwell described it as a "self-contained" unit consisting of infantry, tanks, artillery and engineers.

Shinwell said it will be sent to Korea "as quickly as possible." Most observers believe it will be several weeks.

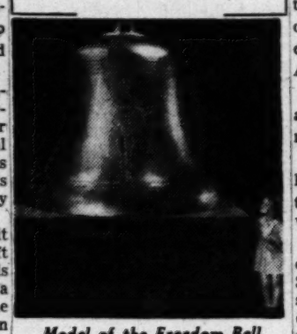
Douglas Attends Casting Of Big Bell for Berlin

Croydon, England, July 27 (AP).—American Ambassador Lewis Douglas today attended the ceremonial casting at a foundry here of a giant Freedom Bell to be installed in West Berlin in October.

The bell is eight feet high.

Ceremony in Fall

Freedom Bell Will Ring in West Berlin



Model of the Freedom Bell

Chicago, July 27 (AP).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay today said a giant Freedom Bell will be dedicated in western Berlin this fall "as a symbol of the free world's resistance to Communist aggression."

It will bear the inscription, "That This World, Under God, Shall Have a New Birth of Freedom," a paraphrase of Lincoln's words at Gettysburg.

Clay, former United States military governor in Germany, said the 10-ton bell was cast at Croydon, Eng., this week. First it will be brought to the United States as part of a fund-raising drive for the "Crusade for Freedom," a campaign to counteract Russian propaganda. The general is chairman of the group, and conducted an organizational meeting here.

First peal of the bell will be broadcast to all free peoples of the earth, Clay said. Simultaneously, bells will ring out all over America and throughout western Europe.

Behind the Iron Curtain bells will be scrawled on walls, he said.

The crusade already is operating a new low-powered, short-wave radio station in western Germany. Clay said it was the first of a network of five to eight "Radio Free Europe" outlets being set up there.

Clay said "Radio Free Europe" is a "voice of Europe—the voices of Poles, Romanians and Hungarians carrying the message of freedom to their own countries.

"It hits with a Sunday propaganda punch."

Army Freezes All Troops on Europe Duty

Heidelberg, Germany, July 27 (AP).—The United States Army is tacking six months onto the terms of all officers and enlisted men on duty in the European command August 31.

All home leaves after that date are canceled. About 110,000 men make up the command.

The Army's European command headquarters announced the freeze today, saying the orders came from Washington.

Headquarters authorities declined to elaborate, but the United States is seeking to speed up the strengthening of western Europe's defenses against any aggression from the East.

"We simply have to keep what men we've got here. It just boils down to keeping our forces in Europe on hand," one officer said.

Protection of west Germany, which has no army of its own, is one of the tasks of the occupation forces.

"Cases of undue hardship as a result of this policy will be reported to U. S. Army headquarters in Europe."

The order does not take in the U. S. Air Force in Europe. An Air Force spokesman explained, however, that it is the prerogative of the commander to hold up the home leave rotation of any essential man until a replacement can be found.

Yanks' Attack Hits Advancing Invaders

Reds Still Hold Hadong

On the south coast, the Communists still held Hadong, 70 air miles west of Pusan, despite heavy U. S. air attacks. U. S. ground troops outside the town were opposing 1000 Reds armed with 12 artillery pieces. A Fifth Air Force spokesman said yesterday the Americans had recaptured Hadong.

As part of this deep enveloping movement headed toward Pusan Communists were concentrating at Kurye, about 19 miles northwest of Hadong. Kurye was pounded yesterday by Allied warplanes.

Yet another Red column in this eastward push has reached Anui, about 40 miles north of Hadong and 35 miles southwest of Kumchon. Like Hadong, Anui is about 70 miles west of Pusan.

On the eastern part of the front, about 6000 Red troops were massing north of Yechon, which still is held by the South Koreans. Yechon is 50 air miles northeast of the Yongdong front.

Fifteen miles east of Yechon, the northerners' seventh division had reached a point 10 miles south of Yongju, on the main highway at the eastern end of the defense line.

Bad weather cut down Allied air support, but the ground forces were laying down heavy artillery barrages.

Naval activity stepped up sharply yesterday, the Navy reported. A United States heavy cruiser turned eight-inch guns on the Yongdok area for the first time. It pounded Red troop concentrations and supply lines around that east coast town.

A saturation bombardment by ships of a naval task group drove Red troops out of part of the city.

South Korean naval craft swung into action on the west coast, sinking 12 Communist supply boats yesterday in the first engagement between North and South Korean sea forces, the Navy said.

The North Koreans aimed three menacing columns of tanks and manpower from at least two crack divisions at the central battlefront.

The attacks north of Yongdong were above the point where the First Cavalry defenses adjoin those of the 25th Division and South Koreans, who hold the line to the sea on the east.

The Communists' mounting big offensive—built up in hours of darkness—was aimed frontally and with left and right hooks against the foot soldiers and artillery of the U. S. First Cavalry division.

The cavalrymen were dug in on hill positions outside Yongdong, some 95 miles northwest of the main U. S. supply port of Pusan on Korea's southeastern tip opposite Japan.

Field dispatches spoke of the American defenders in this sector as outnumbered five to one. The Red Koreans with two full divisions in the line would muster 12,000 or more men.

After a flying visit by General MacArthur to the front yesterday, there was speculation in Tokyo that he had reached new decisions with his top field commanders on how to hold what's left of South Korea until United Nations forces can be built up for a counter-offensive.

It was considered likely that they decided where the "MacArthur Line" for hold-on operations and preservation of a beachhead could be drawn.

Before returning to Tokyo without incident, MacArthur told war correspondents in Korea he was never more confident of victory—ultimate victory, he added, rather than an immediate turn of the Red tide.

On the booming, dusty central front around Yongdong, the First Cavalry faced heavy pressure against the nose of their defenses from one armored force.

Two other Red columns were reported probing on sweeps to the North Korean left, where the First Cavalry's holding line adjoins that of the Twenty-fifth (Tropic Lightning) Division, and to the south near where allied successes were reported.

Forward artillery of the First Cavalry and fleets of rocket-firing and strafing jet-powered and Mustang fighters hammered at growing Red concentrations gathered mostly by night for triple assaults on the road-rail corridor to Pusan.

(In Washington the Air Force said exceptionally good weather Wednesday and Thursday enabled United States planes in Korea to make a record number of forays. A spokesman said 288 sorties were flown Wednesday and probably more than that Thursday.)

General MacArthur's headquarters announcement issued at 12:35 a. m., Friday (10:35 a. m., Thursday, EDT) told of an ominous quiet:

"The over-all theater remained relatively tranquil with no major or decisive action taking place during the past 24 hours. Enemy pressure continued, but in such a manner as to indicate that the invaders were regrouping and reorganizing. Movement continued to be made at night on roads and the assembly areas."

Field reports left no doubt that the lull had been used by the North Koreans for the buildup of what may become the biggest assault thus far in the Korean fighting.

The early morning war summary from MacArthur's headquarters said aggressive patrols moving westward from Chinju on the southern front forced elements of the North Korean fourth division back 2 miles to the vicinity of Hadong, some 65 miles due west of Pusan.

PRESSURE POINTS—The broken line indicates extent of the penetration by North Korean forces, with heaviest pressure at Hadong (A) and Yongdong (B), and lighter pressure at Yongdok (C). Solid black line running from Hadong to Pohang defines area, at 70-mile radius from Pusan, key supply port, which may become vital sector of the United States and South Koreans in an effort to stem further penetration

70-Group Air Force Emerging

Guard and Air Force Reserve. The approved new expansion plan does not provide for increasing the latter above their present levels.

3. It does call for increasing the number of Air Force planes in "active inventory" by some 3,000. Present inventory strength—probably not counting planes pulled out of moth-balls in recent weeks—is 8,600 planes.

4. The 69-group plan is part of a new, overall, balanced program just approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff for a permanent expansion in the size of the armed forces. For completion it requires the approval of the Secretary of Defense, the President and Congress of a 1952 Air Force budget of approximately 8 billion dollars—not counting Korean war costs. Barring a radical shift in the international situation, the funds should be forthcoming.

5. Under the four-billion-dollar plane procurement fund this year, the emphasis will be on jet fighters and medium bombers. No additional orders for B-36 heavy bombers are planned.

The production of four-engined B-50 piston bombers is to be started again at the Boeing plant in Seattle. Moderate output of that bomber will be continued until Boeing B-47 jet bomber is entirely proven. Through production orders of this highly promising aircraft have been let, there still are a few question marks about it.

Bulk of the fighter orders will go North American, Lockheed and Republic for their F-86, F-94 and F-84 jet fighters. The latter is designed for close support of ground troops—with air defense, a main emphasis in the program. The F-86 to be bought is a later version of the Sabre which still holds the world speed record. Lockheed's F-94 is a development of the F-80 Shooting Star now in combat in Korea.

No increase in the number of cargo aircraft previously planned is contemplated, but the planes themselves to be bought—mostly Douglas C-124s and Boeing C-97s—are huge craft much larger than the present C-54s.

Production to Mount

6. Expansion of industry plans call for the plane production to mount next year and reach a peak within 15 months from now. The annual replacement cost of the enlarged air fleet should be something less than the four billions proposed this year.

7. Fiscal 1951 funds for building the projected radar network to protect against enemy bombers coming across the oceans or over the North Pole have been nearly tripled under the supplemental program. Many new early warning stations will be installed this year.

(8) Excluding emergency expenditures for the fighting in Korea and military aid spending, the cost of maintaining the new 69-group Air Force and balanced Army and Navy forces under the approved JCS plan is estimated at between 18 and 19 billion dollars a year after initial build-up costs have been paid. The Air Force's share of this would be a bit over 40 percent, it is understood.

It may be necessary to raise these sights somewhat, if the present trend toward medium-range jet bombers continues. If the global, heavy bomber like the B-36 proves unreliable as the back-bone of our strategic air force, heavier spending for overseas bases will be necessary.

It is an interesting point that the 70-group Regular Air Force program now is slated for completion on about the same date as that originally aimed for by the President's Air Policy Committee. Nearly three years ago, that five-man group—which included Finletter and McCone, the present Secretary and Undersecretary of the Air Force—recommended:

"The conclusions of the Commission thus fix as the target date by which we should have an air arm capable of dealing with a possible atomic attack on this country at Jan. 1, 1953."

"For convenience," said their report, "We will refer to this date as A-day."

The report never was approved by President Truman and he has opposed and impounded additional appropriations voted by an air-minded Congress to start building 70-groups at a slower pace. Now, apparently, we are going to do it in two and a half years.

Grace Proposes Steel Trade Allocation Group

New York, July 27 (AP).—Eugene G. Grace, chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corp., today said the Nation can build up its military strength and at the same time maintain a prosperous domestic economy.

This can be done, he told a news conference, by allowing a steel industry committee to allocate steel for military needs, and to distribute remaining steel in the normal method.

Grace said the only military orders received so far by Bethlehem involve the reconditioning of some World War II ships that were placed "in mothballs." He estimated that "maybe half" of the increase in Bethlehem employment from 124,431 in the first quarter of 1950 to 132,834 in the second quarter was accounted for by additions to shipyard personnel.

Span to Honor 1st Marylander Killed in Korea

By The Associated Press

The Cpl. John C. Brown Bridge in Rockville will be dedicated August 12 as one of the Nation's first memorials to a victim of the Korean fighting.

Brown, who lived in Baltimore, was the first Maryland soldier reported killed in action on the Korean front. He was killed June 30 while with an Army communications unit.

The bridge, built by the State of Maryland and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, spans the B. and O. mainline tracks at Rockcrest, just south of Rockville.

Ernie Tannen, community reporter for radio Station WGAY, Silver Spring, suggested that the new bridge be named in honor of Corporal Brown.

House Eyeing Full Curbs

financier, urged Congress on Wednesday to organize the Nation for "all-out mobilization," and specifically recommended rationing, controls on prices and wages, and a roll-back of prices to June 25.

Representative Kunkel (R., Pa.), modeled a bill on Baruch's ideas, and offered it to the House Banking Committee yesterday as a substitute for the Administration program of limited controls. After it was defeated by only one vote, Kunkel said he would give the whole House a chance to vote on it next week.

"I wouldn't be surprised if it passes," Kunkel said. "The people back home are a lot more ready for these controls than is Congress."

Six Republicans and three Democrats voted for the Kunkel bill in committee, a surprising line-up in view of earlier GOP opposition to President Truman's request for limited controls. Representative Wolcott (R., Mich.), ranking Republican on the Banking Committee, said last week that if allocation powers were given to Mr. Truman prices would shoot up "and in 30 days the President will be back here asking for price and wage controls." About the same time, Senator Wherry of Nebraska, Senate minority leader, warned that the President's program was an effort to "nationalize the economy."

Baruch's testimony on Wednesday, his emphatic statement that the Administration's program would "fall flat" without controls on prices and wages, appeared to have influenced many lawmakers.

Representative Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said he was for the Baruch plan.

"Prices should be rolled back to the June 25 levels," Vinson told reporters. "Unless we have something like the Baruch plan we face inflation absolutely out of control."

Senator Lucas (D., Ill.), Senate majority leader, predicted the Baruch plan will have "considerable support" in the Senate as well as the House. He said he personally was opposed to "piecemeal" controls, and added that rationing and other drastic measures are bound to come eventually unless people "discipline themselves with respect to hoarding and buying."

Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.), said he was thinking seriously of proposing that the Administration control bill be broadened by tacking on price and wage controls. He said he also favored a rollback of prices to June 25.

The House Banking Committee, before reporting out the Administration bill late yesterday, made two changes. It knocked out a provision authorizing the Commodity Credit Corp. to sell farm products at the support-price level to stabilize the market, thereby retaining the present law which permits the sale at support-price levels, plus a 5 percent handling fee. The committee also modified a provision authorizing control of margins in commodity markets so as to leave room for legitimate "hedging."

The lone member who voted against the Administration bill in the committee was Representative Nicholson (R., Mass.) He said he felt the measure gave the President too much authority.

The bill is expected to come up on the House floor Tuesday. A showdown between that measure and an all-out bill should quickly follow.

Housework Easy Without Nagging Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

G-Towns to Gird D. C. If Plan Is Adopted

Mr. Truman will send the plan to Congress with a request that both the authorization and necessary funds be voted at this session. If Congress approves the new Government building program would begin within a few months, keeping in step with the mobilization program now getting under way. In fact, it could be that part of the $10,000,000,000 appropriation now under congressional consideration would be used to start the building program.

The plan would not be a temporary measure. NSRB does not contemplate rings of "tempos" in Maryland and Virginia such as those now blotting downtown park areas. Instead the NSRB plan calls for attractive reinforced concrete buildings, designed to withstands any type of atomic bomb short of a direct hit. No building built in the future within a 12-mile radius of the zero milestone would have windows with their possibility of damage from flying glass, if NSRB has its way. The proposed veterans' hospital on Soldiers' Home would thus be windowless, if built there.

Satellite Towns

The net effect of the plans, as designed by NSRB's civil defense experts, would be to change the character of Washington to that of a central city surrounded by rings of satellite G-towns, something the National Capital Park and Planning Commission advocated for other reasons for years. Now the threat of the atomic bomb may accomplish the dream of planners seeking to prevent the piling up of more and more people in downtown offices with resultant traffic and allied headaches.

There is now in existence the beginnings of a close-in ring of satellite Government offices—Suitland, the Bethesda Hospital area and the Army Map Service in Maryland. But these areas are considered by NSRB experts as being practically downtown Washington, as far as the A-bomb or the H-bomb is concerned. What is planned are new rings further out, beyond a 12-mile radius from the zero milestone. No new buildings would be built within the 12-mile circle.

The Government will have to purchase land for these new buildings and new roads and other communications will be needed. But the plan does not call for new housing. NSRB feels employes can ride or drive from their present homes to the new offices. Naturally there would be hardship cases—a resident of Falls Church, Va., now working in Arlington, might have to find his way almost to Baltimore each day.

Just what location the "Plan for the Security of the Nation's Capital" calls for is not yet known. It is known that NSRB officials have been conferring with Maryland road officials, and probably with those in Virginia, on how to hurry up plans for new dual highways within the 50-mile radius.

Only Wednesday Senator Tydings (D., Md.) stressed the importance of the proposed Baltimore-Washington parkway in the Capital's defenses. The northwest freeway or Washington National Pike, as it is sometimes called, would be necessary for rapid communication into Montgomery county. It has been begun from the Frederick, Md., end but the route into Washington has yet to be selected. Similarly, new routes into Virginia are said to be called for.

Cost of the whole plan has yet to be estimated in detail but it is a multimillion-dollar affair. When it reaches the President's desk, it will have a price tag, however.

How long it would take is any man's guess. NSRB wants at least to keep pace with the arrival here of new Government workers and to get the most essential agencies out of town very quickly.

NSRB expects the new G-town buildings to include bomb shelters. In time, shelters would probably be provided for nonessential workers left in Washington.

The question of which employe or which agency is "essential" or "key" is perhaps the biggest headache of all to the NSRB. Planners feel this priority list will have to be settled by the President at a Cabinet meeting.

This is the thinking behind the NSRB security plan, as described to The Washington Post.

It is a military certainty that no enemy can be stopped from dropping at least one bomb on Washington. The Atomic Energy Commission report of last November detailed the extent of damage and casualties that could be expected if even a Hiroshima, or "old style" bomb should explode downtown.

The AEC report said, and all authorities on civil defense agree, that dispersion is the certain atomic defense.

Hence, reasoned NSRB, the thing for Washington to do is to disperse its key agencies.

Some Agencies Moved

In the last war several non-essential agencies did move out of Washington: the Patent Office to Richmond, the Securities and Exchange Commission to Philadelphia and so on. But that wont work this time. What's needed in the atomic age is dispersal of the key, not the non-essential, agencies.

To leave the non-essential agencies downtown presumably would make Washington a less desirable target for an enemy.

The most sensible thing to do, the planners reasoned, would be to drain off a big chunk of Government workers now centralized downtown. But since this is not a totalitarian nation the NSRB well knew it just couldn't be done, except perhaps under the threat of immediate attack when it would be too late for anything but panic.

Hence the next best thing would be to freeze the limit on Government workers at its present level. This is what the "Plan for the Security of the Nation's Capital" proposed to do. It is admittedly a compromise of the ideal plan.

Since centralized Government is more efficient, at least as far as quick intercommunications are concerned, it makes more sense to keep the Government all within a 50-mile radius than to disperse sections of it half way across the country as in World War II, NSRB reasoned.

The District civil defense bill passed this week by the Senate would fit neatly into the over-all plan, NSRB officials feel. It calls for a coordinated civil defense plan for the District and the near-by Maryland and Virginia communities in such matters as fire, police, medical and other facilities. Presumably, if the NSRB plan goes through, the civil defense office here would integrate all the new G-towns.

There are two other problems peculiar to the Capital's security—protection of the President and any possible successor and protection of the Congress and the Supreme Court.

NSRB already is working with the Secret Service on the presidential safety problem. Details may not be given.

As to Congress, NSRB is a bit gun-shy. It feels Congress must face up to that problem itself.

Some time ago Representative Chet Holifield (D., Calif.), a member of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, put in a bill to have a commission study such problems as how new Representatives could be quickly chosen if Congress were wiped out by a single blow. Senators may be appointed by Governors under the Constitution when there is a vacancy, but there is no such provision for House members.

Holifield said yesterday he has been thinking of a constitutional amendment to set up a sort of council of State Governors to act if the Congress were put out of action.

Crisis in Korea May Affect Life Insurance Rules

One effect of the Korean crisis may show up soon in new life insurance policies sold in the District.

Albert F. Jordan, District Superintendent of Insurance, said yesterday his office has approved for several companies war clauses limiting the protection offered for men of military age. The clauses can be inserted only in new policies, Jordan said.

In the last war such clauses usually provided that where the insured was a serviceman killed outside the United States, the premiums paid and accrued interest would be refunded but the face value of the policy would not be paid.

The Defense Department plans to add 8617 civilian employes in the Metropolitan Washington area, it was announced yesterday.

They will be among a total of 236,978 new employes, excluding the Mutual Defense Assistance Program, that the Defense Department plans to add throughout the world under the supplemental defense appropriation bill now before Congress.

The added 8617 employes will mean an increase for Defense Department headquarters here of 6240 persons, including 3360 persons for the Army; 2380 for the Navy and Marines; and 500 for the Air Force.

The total increase for the metropolitan area, including both headquarters and field forces at the Naval Gun Factory, Fort Myer, Fort McNair, Bolling and Andrews Air Force bases and other points, will add 4400 civilian employes to the Army; 3517 to the Navy, including Marine Corps, and 700 to the Air Force.

The world-wide total increase of 236,978 civilian employes includes 76,043 white-collar workers and 160,935 other workers.

Vatican Charges 12,000 Priests Slain, Jailed Or Exiled by Soviet Satellites in Five Years

Vatican City, July 27 (AP).—Approximately 12,000 Roman Catholic priests have been killed, made prisoners or exiled in Russian satellites during the past five years, the Vatican radio said today.

The broadcast, in all languages, including those of Iron Curtain countries, said:

"At a time when the emissaries of communism . . . are talking of what they wish to call the campaign for peace, it certainly is interesting to note some statistics that show what is thought of peace on the other side of the Iron Curtain."

This was a reference to the world Communist drive to obtain millions of signatures on the Stockholm peace petition calling for outlawing of the atom bomb.

In the Ukraine alone, the broadcast said, since 1945 more than 3600 priests have been killed and 1000 churches and chapels closed or razed.

The following figures were given for other countries:

Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania—1000 priests killed or jailed.

Poland—100 priests deported (usually to Siberia).

Chechoslovakia — 300 secular priests jailed; the number of regular priests who met the same fate unknown.

Hungary—About 1000 religious (priests and nuns) jailed, 538 put to death or deported, another 580 religious persons removed from their ministries.

Romania—More than 700 priests victims of religious prosecutions.

Bulgaria—120 priests arrested or exiled.

Yugoslavia—1954 priests put to death, arrested or deported, while another 400 sought refuge abroad.

Albania—715 ecclesiasticals, including all of the country's bishops, impeded from conducting their ministries.

The Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, said, meanwhile that charges against Archbishop Josef Beran of Prague by Obranu Lidu, Czechoslovak Army paper, probably were made "to prepare the way for another trial like those of Zagreb and Budapest."

Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, Primate of Hungary, was tried and sentenced at Budapest, and Archbishop Alois Stepinac at Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

Osservatore described the Czech charge that Archbishop Beran had been plotting against the state as "an outrage against common sense."

Archbishop Beran, Osservatore said, "for more than a year has been practically a prisoner of the government, and in every case impeded from exercising his legitimate pastoral ministry."

but that their lives were not in danger. It said 57 persons were treated for minor injuries. Fifteen anti-Leopoldists arrested.

The street was littered for two miles with broken glass and the battered remains of more than 100 damaged automobiles.

Socialist Achille Deny was one of the first victims. He threw himself in front of a royalist car to halt the procession to the palace. The car ran over him.

The Economic Affairs Ministry painted this grim picture.

Liege—130,000 workers on strike. No electricity, telephones or transportation. All coal mines closed. Liege-Brussels rail line blasted at several points and traffic almost halted. Strikers blocked other trains with their bodies. Newspapers were allowed to publish only two pages by the printing unions.

Charleroi — 98 percent of iron and steel workers and 95 percent of miners on strike. No transportation. Reduced electric power. Sixty percent of the city's civil employes out. Total strikers estimated at 100,000.

Mons — Nearly 60,000 workers out; 20 out of 27 coal mines idle; 95 percent of iron and steel workers on strike; office workers gradually drifting out of the offices.

La Louviere—Eight mines out of 12 idle. Transportation tied up. Telephones crippled. Some 35,000 workers out.

World Bank Mission to Study Cuba's Economy

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development announced yesterday that at the request of the Cuban government it is sending a mission there to make a comprehensive survey to determine its potentialities and make specific proposals for development.

Francis Adams Truslow, president of the New York Curb Exchange, will be chief of the mission, which will arrive in Havana July 31 and remain for about three months.

Three American research organizations will take part in the survey. For the first time, the Southwest Research Institute of San Antonio and Houston, the Armour Research Foundation of Chicago and the Stanford Research Institute of California—nonprofit public service institutions—have pooled their resources and made them available to the International Bank for the mission.

Truslow said the "mission is purely a fact-finding body. It has nothing to do with loans and no authority to discuss any.

"Our sole purpose is to study Cuba's economy in the light of the most modern scientific, technical and financial knowledge, and, on the basis of this research, to make practical suggestions.

"Our proposals will cover segments of Cuba's economy into which investment funds, either domestic or foreign, private or public, might best be directed; methods of raising agricultural and industrial production; and measures for strengthening Cuba's economic and fiscal organization and practices."

The mission's studies will include agriculture and animal husbandry, mining, industry, power and other public services, transportation, internal commerce, availability and utilization of labor, local capital resources and mechanisms for channeling them into productive investment, foreign trade, and other economic and financial policies affecting development.

A Pledge to the American People

by

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company

We will resist all unwarranted price rises with all our might.

We will make every effort to hold our inventories at the lowest point consistent with good service to our customers, because hoarding, whether by wholesalers, retailers or consumers, will cause higher prices.

We will continue to maintain the lowest profit rate generally prevailing in the entire retail industry. Our net profit now is less than one cent on each dollar of sales.

We will continue to strive for more efficient distribution.

We will fight waste of food, or time, or money all along the line so as to narrow the spread between wholesale and retail prices.

We will devote all our energies to giving you the most good food for your money every day of the week.

We will strive always to do what is honest, fair, sincere and in the best interest of our country and our customers.

As most of you know, this company and the low cost, low profit policies that built it are under attack.

We are defending ourselves against a suit brought by the anti-trust lawyers to put A&P out of business.

But the greater conflict in which our country is now engaged takes precedence over all else.

Today, with our boys fighting in Korea, we believe that all citizens and all businesses, big and little, should devote themselves wholeheartedly to the public interest.

We promise the American people that we will cooperate unhesitatingly with our national government in the present crisis.

We promise you that we will continue to do everything in our power to put more buying power in your food dollar and more good food on your dinner table.

Police Spirit 'The Phantom' From Capitol

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

The Phantom took to the trail again yesterday and tried to sell the imaginative life to three difficult customers—the Metropolitan Police, the Capitol Police and the busy passerby on F street.

Miss Margaret Andra Russell, 44, who says she is a Vassar graduate, returned to the fray after being adjudged of sound mind by the Commission on Mental Health.

She had been taken to Gallinger Hospital July 11 after shouting from the Senate Gallery that she was "a phantom from the past come to warn you that a fraud is being perpetrated against humanity."

Clad in metallic robes and grey veils, The Phantom called on Capt. Olin Cavness of the Capitol Police to get permission for further operations on Capitol Hill.

"The poet in every man," the Phantom explained to the captain, "is being crushed by this supercolossal machine of industrialization."

"My God," said the captain, "We meet again."

"I'm going to resort to every technique to sell the imaginative life to America," the Phantom told the captain.

"Margaret," the captain said affably, "Why don't you take that veil off so I can see what you look like. What's that on your feet—boxing gloves?"

"I am a poet," said the Phantom. "These intolerable bonds are crushing out all dynamism and imaginative action in American life."

"How long do you expect to be in Washington?" the Captain asked anxiously.

"I might have to go back to New York," The Phantom sadi, "but I'd like to keep The Phamton floating around Washington."

The captain politely explained to The Phantom that she could not fight for the imaginative life on Capitol Hill in that costume.

"That is strange," said The Phantom, "when the fact is the Metropolitan Police took me around town two years ago in a Grecian chariot, when I was Cassandra. . . ."

Escorted from the Capitol grounds by the captain, the Phantom went over to call on Metropolitan Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett about permission to operate in his jurisdiction.

But Police Pvt. Eugene Watson explained the major was having his teeth fixed.

She was told to make an appointment to see Major Barrett. She left headquarters and walked down to F st.

"I'm not a woman—I'm a phantom," she murmured her own poetry as passersby turned their heads. "Oh, you will not see my face. . . ."

Morford Loses Contempt Case Appeal Here

Richard Morford, executive director of the National Council of American-Soviet friendship, lost an appeal yesterday from his recent conviction for contempt of Congress.

The United States Court of Appeals said that there was no new issue raised by the appeal and that Morford's three-month jail term and $250 fine should stand.

He was first convicted in 1948 for refusing to answer questions of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, but the Supreme Court reversed the finding of guilt because the trial court did not permit his lawyers to ask prospective Government employe jurors about the influence of Federal Loyalty orders on their ability to render a just and impartial verdict.

On the second trial, Morford waived the right to trial by jury.

Lattimore Denies McCarthy 'Pay-Off' Hint

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) suggested yesterday that the Senate look into the sale of Vermont property by Owen Lattimore and his wife to another couple described by McCarthy as Communists.

Lattimore, Johns Hopkins University professor, was accused by McCarthy in March of being Russia's top spy in this country. A Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee last week cleared Lattimore.

McCarthy told the Senate yesterday that Lattimore and his wife last September acquired a half interest in property in Bethel, Vt., an area which McCarthy said "contains a little group of Communist sympathizers."

McCarthy said the Lattimores paid between $1000 and $1500 to a "cotenant," then sold it last June to Ordway and Mary Southard for apparently between $4000 and $4500, in what he suggested might have been a "Communist pay-off."

Southard was the Communist Party candidate for Governor of Alabama in 1942, and his wife is described in the (Communist) Daily Worker as district secretary of the Young Communist League, McCarthy said.

Lattimore, reached at Wellfleet, Mass., said he sold his half share without "a cent of profit" to a "complete stranger," later learning the purchasers were the Southards. He said he "had to sell my property to meet expenses forced on me by McCarthy's scurrilous attacks."

Joseph Barnes, accused by Louis F. Budenz of being a Communist, yesterday denied the charge "unreservedly."

Testimony made public last week by the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee quoted Budenz, one-time managing editor of the Daily Worker, as saying Barnes was "known to me personally to be a Communist." He identified Barnes as a former foreign editor of the New York Herald Tribune.

In a telegram to Senator McMahon (D., Conn.), of the inquiry committee, Barnes said the subcommittee had slandered him in making the Budenz testimony public without giving him a chance to deny it.

U. S. Acts to Buy Cuba's Sugar Stockpile

Uncle Sam last night took a drastic step to halt panic buying of sugar by housewives that was threatening to create an artificial shortage.

Agriculture Secretary Brannan announced that after two days of negotiation, the Government had contracted to buy Cuba's remaining stocks of sugar—about 600,000 tons.

The price will be determined next week. A mission from Havana is expected to arrive at that time to complete negotiations.

The purchase will increase the supply of sugar in this country to 8,450,000 tons—far and away the greatest amount ever allotted to our use. The original quota for this year was 7,500,000 tons. Brannan increased it early in June to 7,850,000 tons. His latest acquisition increases the year's total about 12½ percent above the original figure.

The greatest amount consumed in this country was 7,900,000 tons, in 1941 during war-scare buying similar to that today.

In a move to halt speculation, Brannan announced that the sugar will be available for resale in the world market at the prices paid by the Agriculture Department.

This price is expected to be in the neighborhood of the present world price, about $5.60 a ton, raw value. Panic buying has sent sugar to that price from about $4.15 cents a ton a little more than a month ago.

These figures on the extent of panic buying were announced by Brannan: Average consumption is about 144,000 tons a week. In the week ending July 15, total "disappearance" reached 322,000 tons. Last week it dropped to 284,000, still about double normal.

If this rate continued, the annual figure would reach more than 16 million tons—two and a half times normal consumption.

Sugar deliveries to wholesalers this month have totaled 880,695 tons through July 22 compared with 554,309 last year.

"By earmarking this sugar for American consumption, the President of Cuba, Carlos Prio, has once more made good his promise to fully cooperate with the United States in the present emergency," Ambassador Machado told The Washington Post after the long deliberations.

Study Planned

Panic Buying Attacked by Commission

District Commissioners called "unwarranted" a flurry of panic buying in food and other supplies here and set up a Food Conservation Committee to advise them how to stop it.

On the basis of an investigation by J. Thomas Kennedy, District director of weights, measures and markets, the District heads issued a statement saying: "There are sufficient supplies to meet normal needs, provided panic buying ceases."

The statement, released by Kennedy, said the commissioners felt hoarding was "definitely unwarranted and unnecessary." It asked persons shopping in Washington to refrain from panic buying "thereby permitting available supplies to catch up with normal demand."

Kennedy was named chairman of the 12-man conservation committee and said he will call a meeting early next week.

Other committee members include:

District Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger; District Purchasing Officer Roland M. Brennan; Thornton W. Owen, president of the Board of Trade; J. E. Dyer, chairman of the wholesales grocers division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, Paul D. Kerman and J. A. Anderson, officials of two large grocery chains here; Herbert P. Leeman, president of the Federation of Citizens Association; Woolsey H. Hall, president of the Federation of Civic Associations; Waldron E. Leonard, director of veterans services of the District; and representatives still to be named from the Central Labor Union and the CIO.

The group's function, according to Charles Stofberg, Commissioner John Russell Young's special assistant, will be to advise the commissioners on how they can best "use their persuasive powers to restore purchasing to normal."

Plan Seeks To Cut Deficit In Postoffice

By the United Press

The Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report yesterday proposed a program to streamline the Postoffice Department and cut its annual deficit in half without reducing mail service.

Dr. Robert L. Johnson, committee chairman, said it is unfair to ask Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson and his 400,000 employes to use "cranking equipment and methods." He said it is unfair also to the public to ask it to shoulder the deficit when defense costs are rising.

Among other things, the committee recommended that Congress take the Postoffice out of politics, create a "first-class accounting system" for the Department, and require the Postmaster General to submit periodic reports to Congress.

It estimated that its proposed reforms would enable the department to trim its 550 million dollars annual deficit to 293 million dollars. It suggested that another 150 million dollars could be saved by revising the system for handling official "free" mail, franked mail and air mail subsidies.

Donaldson recently made sharp reductions in mail service in an effort to trim the deficit, but he emphasized his changes would not erase it completely. He cut home deliveries to one a day, restricted some business deliveries and ordered some postoffice windows closed earlier and on Saturdays.

The House is expected to vote next month on a bill ordering Donaldson to restore full deliveries. It has been stymied in the House Rules Committee, but a petition forcing it out of the committee has been signed by the necessary 218 Congressmen.

Firecracker 'Bomb' Used at Struck Plant

New York, July 27 (U.P.) — A homemade "incendiary device" exploded outside the strike-bound New York World-Telegram and Sun plant today, Lee B. Wood, executive editor, announced.

The explosion occurred just before 9 a. m. and filled the first-floor press and mail rooms with smoke. Wood said that no one was injured and that extent of the damage had not yet been determined.

The device exploded 20 feet from the area in which members of the New York Newspaper Guild (CIO) were picketing.

Pictures of the device showed that 16 firecrackers were wired and taped together so that when one went off, the others would explode, Wood said. He said he believed the package also contained a chemical because "it burned fiercely."

Police put out the flames and assigned a detective to investigate. The firecrackers, several of which were unexploded, were taken to a precinct house.

Ed Easton, chairman of the World-Telegram and Sun Guild unit, said he was "certain" the firecrackers were not set off by any of the strikers.

Management and Guild negotiations were in recess.

Summerfield

GOP's Chief Of Strategy Quits in Rift

By The Associated Press

National Committeeman Arthur Summerfield has resigned as chairman of the Republican Party's Strategy Committee, complaining that National Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson sentenced the unit to death through inactivity.

Summerfield handled the matter by remote control from his home in Flint, Mich., in letters to members of the G.O.P. National Committee and other party officials. He is due here today, however, for conferences with Rep. Charles A. Halleck, of Indiana, Republican wheelhorse.

Gabrielson said the Executive Committee of the party had urged him to dissolve the group "in view of our regional conferences at Atlantic City, Salt Lake City and Chicago, which are bringing together Governors, state chairmen, state finance chairmen, Young Republicans and Republican women's organizations."

Summerfield contended that Gabrielson's plan was to abolish the Strategy Committee outright, but that he later decided to let it "die on the vine."

The committee was set up when Representative Hugh D. Scott, jr., of Pennsylvania, was party chairman. Members included representatives of the National Committee, Governors, State party and finance chairmen and the heads and the Senate and House Campaign Committees, Senator Owen Brewster of Maine and Representative Leonard W. Hall of New York.

Summerfield wrote that even though the Strategy Committee had been denied funds, it had worked out a "well-conceived and constructive program" for a Republican victory in the Congressional elections this fall.

Gabrielson verified that the Strategy Committee is "dormant." He said he would continue to rely on the counsel of the GOP Executive Committee, which meets monthly, and to cooperate with the House and Senate Campaign Committees.

Cost-of-Living Clause In Newspaper Contract

St. Joseph, Mo., July 27 (AP).—A newspaper labor contract carrying a cost-of-living clause has been signed by the News Corp. and the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers Union of North America, AFL.

Announcement of the contract was made today by H. D. Bradley, publisher of the St. Joseph News-Press and the St. Joseph Gazette, both operated by the News Corp.

It is believed here to be the first such contract in the newspaper field. The adjustment scale was not made public.

UAW Disclaims Power To Halt Local Election

Detroit, July 27 (AP).—International headquarters of the CIO United Auto Workers took the position today that it cannot halt—as directed by a U. S. court order—an election scheduled today and Friday in Toledo's dissension-ridden UAW Local 12.

U. S. District Judge Thomas Thornton issued a temporary injunction here yesterday, directing the UAW to hold up the Toledo election to replace an ousted official.

A spokesman for international headquarters said "the international union is not conducting the election in Local 12. The election is being conducted under terms of the international constitution and local by-laws. International officials couldn't halt it if they wanted to. It is being conducted by the duly elected elections committee of Local 12."

SUGAR..

Food Fair Super Markets

Housewives and industrial users have bought as much sugar during the past two weeks as they will consume in many weeks, or even months. Most sugar is held in raw (unrefined) state. The present shortage is due to physical inability of processors to melt, refine, package and ship sugar fast enough to meet the present demand. But the sugar is available and the huge refining capacity is being used to deliver it to consumers as fast as possible.

MEAT.. Third more cattle on feed for market in 11 Corn Belt States on July 1 of this year than a year ago, is an encouraging report by BAE. For all states, increases are nearly a half million ahead . . . Largest summer inventory since 1943. Number of fed cattle intended for market in July is relatively light, reported at 18% of the total; August, 27%; September, 28%. Per cent to be marketed before October 1 is less than last year, but the number should be larger because of larger inventories. Another significant fact is the marked increase in heavy cattle classes, as shown by special report on the 3 important feeding states, Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska. The July 1 survey showed 16% weighed 1,100 lbs. and over, compared with 6% last April. Cattle weighing 600-900 lbs. comprised 55% of total number on feed on July 1, compared with 47% July 1, 1949.

Wythe County Polio Toll Rises To 81; State Offers Lab Aid

Richmond, Va., July 27 (AP) (AP).—Polio-stricken Wythe County got help from several sources today, as the number of victims in the county since July 1 rose to 81.

The State Board of Agriculture voted to offer the facilities of its new $50,000 veterinary diagnostic laboratory in Wytheville, where 62 of the county's total cases are concentrated.

The laboratory, which opened June 1, is equipped with devices and technicians utilized in detecting and diagnosing diseases in livestock.

Dr. W. L. Bendix, assistant State veterinarian, said similar equipment and training is needed in diagnosis of polio.

Earlier, State police rushed another respirator to Roanoke Memorial and Crippled Children's Hospital, which has most of the Wythe County patients under treatment.

An urgent call for the machine was received Wednesday evening in Richmond at the Medical College of Virginia Hospital, which also has some of the Wythe patients.

The Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Red Cross announced that two nurses would leave tomorrow for Richmond to aid in combatting polio.

The State Health Department today listed three new Wytheville polio cases and three more from the surrounding county.

New cases were also reported from Bland, Prince George, Nottoway, Chesterfield and Appomattox counties. The additions placed the State total at 179, with 16 deaths.

Mrs. Roosevelt to Take Symphony Narrator Role

Lenox, Mass., July 27 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is appearing with the Boston Symphony Orchestra August 11 to tell a story.

The former First Lady will be the narrator for a performance of Prokofieff's "Peter and the Wolf" at the orchestra's Berkshire Music Center annual benefit program.

A center spokesman added: "It is said that Mrs. Roosevelt is a great success as a storyteller."

Gov. Long Charges Morrison Welched

New Orleans, July 27 (U.P.).—Gov. Earl Long accused Mayor DeLesseps Morrison of New Orleans today of running out on a deal which he said involved giving Morrison "control of the police department and handbooks."

Morrison, the Governor's bitter political enemy, flatly denied it.

Long made his accusation shortly before he was wheeled into an operating room for the removal of five teeth. He said he was afraid he wouldn't survive

Long said Morrison promised not to fight Long's nephew, Russel B. Long, who was renominated to the Senate in Tuesday's primary. Morrison supported Malcolm La Fargue.

Long said Morrison wanted a pledge that the State Legislature would return $1,200,000 in tax money that the 1948 Assembly took from New Orleans and that he also wanted control of the police department.

"I understand the handbooks pay $24 a week (each) and that's where the big interest is," Long said.

Long said he "gave" Morrison $600,000 and police control.

Oklahoma Loser To Demand Recount

Oklahoma City, July 27 (AP).—William O. Coe charges that the Democratic governor's nomination was stolen from him and says he will demand a complete recount.

In the face of an unofficial 886-vote defeat by Johnston Murray, Coe declared "some election officials are going to the penitentiary for the election frauds practiced on me" Tuesday in the runoff primary. The unofficial totals gave Murray 235,525; Coe 234,639.

The candidate asserted:

"In Oklahoma County alone we have uncovered at least 3100 votes stolen from me and given to Johnston Murray. In another county, 29 people were voted out of one four-room house, as all for Murray."

USO Successor

ASAF Asks $78,000; Cites Growing Need

The Washington area of the Associated Services for the Armed Forces, successor to USO, yesterday submitted a revised budget of $78,000 to the Community Chest Federation.

The budget would cover the 16 months from September 1, 1950, to December 31, 1951. Previous budget asked for was $53,000 for the calendar year 1951.

The additional sum is being sought to enlarge ASAF activities to provide for the new enlarged military force, Joseph D. Kaufman, chairman of the citizens committee of ASAF, said yesterday after a committee meeting here.

The budget sought locally represents 2 percent of the national budget of $3,900,000, Kaufman said, and is the figure recommended by the national committee of the Community Chests and Councils of America.

The local Chest Federation budget committee will consider the request at a meeting next Thursday, E. J. Keyes, executive director of the federation, said.

The ASAF ministers to the social and welfare needs of the armed services. Its component agencies are the Armed Forces YMCA, Jewish Welfare Board and National Catholic Community Service.

Silver Spring To Stimulate Lagging Sales

Silver Spring merchants will begin their annual "Shop Silver Spring Week" campaign today to promote sales in the slowest selling week of the year.

An imposing list of prizes, including two grand prizes of trips for two persons to Bermuda by air or water will be awarded by the merchants to those who visit their stores and file coupons.

Miss Maryland of 1950, Miss Ann Urie of Kent County, will draw the prizes the closing night, August 5, at the parking lot entrance of the Frank R. Jelleff Store in the Silver Spring Shopping Center. Entertainment also will be furnished.

A fur fashion show will be a feature of today's program in the shopping center at Colesville rd. and Georgia ave., under direction of Mrs. Sybil Meyersburg, former New York model.

Baptists End 6-Day Talks At Cleveland

Cleveland, July 27 (AP).—The Baptist World Congress has become a "force to be reckoned with" by those who oppose the traditions of faith and freedom, a Virginia minister declared today.

Dr. Theodore F. Adams, vice president of the Baptist World Alliance spoke near the close of the six-day congress of the group. The congress adjourned tonight, to meet again in 1955 in London.

"Well, may they take note—the deniers of liberty, persecutors of their fellow men, Communists and pagans—we Baptists shall do our part to proclaim to men the truth that makes them free," Dr. Adams said. He is pastor of the First Baptist Church at Richmond, Va.

Speaking on "the meaning of this congress," he said the meetings have accomplished four major things: "We have renewed our fellowship, reaffirmed our faith, restated our Baptist distinctives and reformed our forces for world conquest for Christ."

Earlier, the Congress approved a resolution urging laws to safeguard the rights of oppressed minority groups and opposing racial discrimination and segregation.

It called on the world's 18 million Baptists to free themselves from racial and cultural prejudice and embody the mind and spirit of Christ.

The resolution mentioned discrimination against Jews, Orientals, Mexicans and Negroes.

Although similar resolutions were approved by past Baptist congresses, this one added that "discrimination based on religion, culture and race provide fertile soil for the development and spread of communism, fascism and other anti-social programs."

Senate Votes $5000 to Family of Girl Marine Slew Here in '46

By The Associated Press

Legislation to pay $5000 to the parents of Miss Dorothy Berrum of Chippewa Falls, Wis., who was raped and killed here in 1944 by Marine Pvt. Earl McFarland, was passed Wednesday by the Senate.

Eighteen-year-old Miss Berrum came to Washington in June, 1944, for Government work. She was strangled with her snood by McFarland in October. McFarland later was electrocuted.

The Senate Judiciary Committee said there is ample precedent for the payment to Mr. and Mrs. Ray S. Berrum to reimburse them for expenses of Dorothy's burial and "some small death compensation."

The committee also said that during World War II the Government "unleashed a calculated public to come to Washington" to engage in war work.

Woman Gets $25,000 For Grenade Injuries

A young woman wounded by a lovelorn soldier who tried to kill her has been awarded $25,000 in a bill passed by the Senate. The measure now goes to President Truman for his signature.

Miss Karen R. McAndrews, 27, of Philadelphia, who has been staying in Alexandria, was hurt severely when a sergeant exploded a hand grenade while holding her in his grasp on July 25, 1948, while Miss McAndrews was serving as a social hostess for the occupation Army in Germany.

The soldier, Griff M. Leach, 20, was wounded fatally. Miss McAndrews' claim from $10,000 to fingers from her left hand.

State Lets Contract For Shirley Hwy. Job.

Award of a $309,753 contract to pave the unfinished northbound lane of Shirley Memorial Highway was announced yesterday by the Virginia State Highway Commission.

The Williams Paving Co. of Norfolk, Va., was awarded the contract to pave the 4.64 miles of northbound lane. The work, which will give the highway two 24-foot lanes from Washington to Route 1 at Woodbridge, Va., should be finished by October 1.

Paving of the remaining section of the northbound lane will open the highway to all traffic, including trucks, the Commission said.

The express highway was opened only to automobile traffic last Labor Day and vehicles bound in both directions used the completed southbound lane.

Final project on the highway will be construction of an interchange at Woodbridge to merge U. S. Route 1 and the Shirley Highway.

Support for Arlington Pool Bond Issue Urged

Approval of a proposed $500,000 bond issue for at least two Arlington County swimming pools was urged yesterday by the executive board of hte Arlington Citizens Committee for School Improvement.

H. K. Murphy, paymaster of the Southern Railway system, will retire Tuesday after almost 47 years with the railroad.

A native of Pennsylvania, Murphy joined Southern Railway in October, 1903, as a clerk in the paymaster's office in Washington. In January, 1909, he was made chief clerk to the paymaster. He has been Southern's paymaster since November, 1912.

Murphy is married and lives at 914 Park ave., Falls Church, Va. He will be succeeded by Charles R. Chambers, chief clerk to the paymaster since 1917.

Baltimore-D. C. Expressway Bids Opened

The Maryland State Roads Commission yesterday opened bids for part of the Baltimore-Washington Expressway and advertised for bids on work on the new Washington National Pike.

The low bid for construction of 1½ miles of the Baltimore-Washington Expressway in the vicinity of Dorsey was submitted by the Nello L. Teer Co., of Durham, N. C., the Commission announced.

The bid of $455,759.80 also includes interehange structures at the intersection with Maryland Route 176 at Dorsey.

According to present plans the expressway is expected to be open for traffic from Baltimore to Hanover rd., including the Friendship Airport spur, by fall. In another year, it will be open as far as the Jessup rd., the Commission said.

The Commission also advertised for bids for a 170-foot bridge across Comus rd. and Little Bennett Creek on the new Washington National Pike at Hyattstown, in Montgomery County. Bids will be opened in Baltimore on August 22.

The pike, a dual expressway, when completed will provide an alternate to U. S. Route 240 from Frederick to Washington. Several sections in Frederick County have been completed.

15c Bus Fare For Baltimore Seen in Ruling

Annapolis, Md., July 27 (AP).—The Court of Appeals overruled Maryland's Public Service Commission today and Baltimore appears to be in for higher bus and trolley fares.

The State's highest court said the PSC was wrong when it denied the application of Baltimore Transit Co. to charge 15 cents a ride.

The present rate is 13 cents or two tokens for a quarter. It has been in effect since January of 1949. Before then the fare was 10 cents.

The Public Service Commission held an immediate meeting in Baltimore after news of the court's decision reached there, but no announcement was made immediately about any action taken.

There was a possibility that the PSC might try to take an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States. In that event, there was the additional possibility that today's action of the Court of Appeals might be held up until there is a decision from Washington.

Today's ruling said that the company's financial difficulties are due almost entirely to wage increases it granted employes.

The decision was written by Judge William L. Henderson. Here are some pertinent excerpts dealing with the main arguments put up by the transit company for the increase and by the PSC against it:

"The proposed schedule of rates is not shown to be out of line with comparable cities, of which Washington, D. C., is one.

"It is not shown that the proposed rates will yield an unreasonable rate of return.

"The present rate is admittedly confiscatory (because the company has been losing money) and hence unlawful.

Dr. Seckinger Confers With Milk Interests

District Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger conferred in closed session yesterday afternoon with representatives of Washington dairies, milk producers and medical officials.

None of those present would comment on what was discussed. Seckinger said he would have to report to the District Commissioners first.

However, it was believed the meeting was called to discuss the controversial milk regulations on which the Commissioners concluded public hearings Wednesday.

House Group Ready to Act On Airport

Action on construction of another civilian airport in the District area will be taken in the near future by a House Interstate and Foreign Commerce subcommittee, it was disclosed yesterday.

Subcommittee Chairman Lindley Beckworth (D., Tex.) said he recognized that another airport is needed here "and doubtless will be needed more as days come and go."

Beckworth added that the current war situation lends added impetus to arguments for prompt action on the Senate-passed measure.

The subcommittee has recently inspected five airport sites in this vicinity and is expected to vote on the question sometime next week.

Gershwin Program Draws Fans

By Paul Hume

Rain on Gershwin night is usually cause for more than ordinary regret. But last night's Watergate audience looked as if everyone who held tickets for the previous night had shuffled engagements in order to be there.

Three soloists dotted the annual program: Muriel Rahn and Edward Mathews sang excerpts from Porgy and Bess, in which they have sung stage versions. Both voices are expert in the roles, and the music made more than its ordinary appeal. The final duet, "Bess, You Is My Woman Now" was perfect all around.

Howard Mitchell conducted the orchestra in the usual selections from "Of Thee, I Sing," and "Strike Up the Band." The Cuban Overture opened the concert.

Sherman Frank, tall, young American pianist, made his local debut in the Rhapsody in Blue. The music is so dated by now that it is hard to tell much about a player in it.

Frank got through with no trouble, if he could not make it sound new or fresh. We must nod gratefully to the orchestra's new clarinetist, Robert Marcellus, for the way he opened the piece. There's a man who knows how to give out with a hot lick when he is supposed to.

An American in Paris brought things to a close, with an audience pleased by all they heard, having heard precisely what they came for.

Tonight is closing night, with John Charles Thomas singing and narrating.

Registrar's Office Closed

The office of the County Central Registrar at the Fairfax Court House will be closed from today until August 12, it was announced yesterday by the County Electoral Board. Local registrars will be available, on their own schedules, in each county precinct.

First Steps First

There is a strong appeal in Bernard M. Baruch's call for all-out industrial mobilization as a means of preparing for any new threat that may come from aggressive Communist forces. Mr. Baruch was a foresighted adviser on the mobilization of our national strength in both world wars, and it is now generally believed that the country would have made fewer mistakes in preparing for the last war if his advice had been accepted. But it does not follow that the same advice is applicable to the present situation. Urgent though our need for additional military strength may be, the United States has not embarked upon a general war. Its policy is geared to halting the aggression in Korea and to expansion of its military forces in preparation for any other emergency that may arise. This certainly calls for limited economic controls, and the developments of the next two months or six months may compel the adoption of more sweeping restrictions. But that is a bridge which can best be crossed when we come to it.

It is true, of course, that many prices have risen in an alarming manner. Drastic anti-inflationary measures are certainly in order. But many observers of the economic scene believe that excessive price rises can be held in check by taxation, consumer credit control, and continued production of a plentiful supply of civilian goods insofar as that is possible. Price control and rationing at the consumer level, without these other measures to curb the spending of excess purchasing power, would be under a severe strain from the beginning. And with these more basic restraints upon inflation, it may not be necessary to clamp obnoxious ceilings upon all wages, prices, rents, and so forth.

As to the imposition of new taxes, we quite agree with Mr. Baruch that they should be drastic. His plea was for taxes high enough to cover all defense costs and reduce profiteering. If we assume, as the Administration appears to have done, that a higher level of spending for defense will be essential for some years in the future, this reasoning becomes the more unassailable. We cannot forever continue to pile up debts on the flimsy pretense that our economic outlook in the years ahead will be brighter. The people can and will pay what is necessary to safeguard the Nation against attack and do our part toward defense of the free world. And if Congress has the courage to enact such taxes, there need be far less concern about clamping wages and prices into a straitjacket. The chance of escaping wage and price controls will be nil if the international situation should continue to worsen, but a democratic country must necessarily deal with these problems step by step and we think it is important to take the first steps first.

Oklahoma Politics

Representative Mike Moroney's victory over Senator Elmer Thomas for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Oklahoma is the sort of personal triumph that gives special interest and vitality to American politics. Senator Thomas had the support of the old Democratic machine and the indorsement of organized labor, although many of the younger influential men in labor politics broke away to support Mr. Monroney. While Mr. Thomas is a veteran of 24 years in the Senate, his rival has had only 12 years of experience in the House. What Mr. Monroney did have was a widespread personal popularity that was generously reflected in his support by three fourths of the Oklahoma press. To this was added an extremely energetic campaign that could scarcely be matched by a man of the Senator's 73 years.

Ordinarily Senator Thomas had counted on the old-line political machine and the farm and labor votes to give him a safe margin. But his stand on the Southwest power issue turned the Rural Electrification Administration co-ops against him, and his speculative ventures and his foolish remarks on Swedish hospitality last year convinced many that the time for his retirement was overdue. On the other hand, the voters found pride in Mr. Monroney's fine record in the House and in the part he played in bringing about the reorganization of Congress. Seasoned politicians say that it was a case of "Main Street popularity" overcoming the machine.

Mr. Monroney's many friends in Washington ought not to assume, however, that his election is assured by this notable victory. His Republican rival in November will be a red-headed preacher by the name of William Alexander who is variously described as a fireball, an unorthodox man of God and a master showman. He is said to have unlimited funds behind him and may prove to be a formidable candidate. The outlook is especially unpredictable because of the bitterness that was generated in the Thomas-Monroney race and the still more acrimonious contest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination on the part of Johnston Murray and William O. Coe. The run-off vote in this latter contest is so close that all ballot boxes have been placed under guard. With these deep-reaching schisms in the Democratic ranks, it may be taken for granted that the GOP will redouble its efforts.

Tito's Dilemma

Dispatches from Belgrade indicate that Comrade Tito's effort to straddle between East and West in the question of the Korean war may soon come to an end. The logic of the situation is inexorably forcing him to choose sides; and on the basis of present evidence the probability is that he will choose the side of those nations which have condemned the Communist aggression.

It would be a momentous decision; for in a sense it would amount to a repudiation of the theoretical basis of communism, and would accordingly impair Tito's claim that his regime represents a purer application of the Marxist-Leninist gospel than the Kremlin's. This point becomes clear when one remembers the late Leon Trotsky's insistence that in every conflict with the "international bourgeoise"—such, for example, as the Russo Finnish War of 1939—the Soviet Union must be supported as the representative (although under Stalin's leadership an unworthy representative) of the side of the proletariat in the universal class struggle and in the materialist evolution of history.

By the familiar Leninist logic that whatever hastens the world revolution must be encouraged and whatever retards it opposed, every Communist, whatever his relationship with Stalin or the Cominform, should hope for the victory of communism in Korea. Tito had also practical reasons for his unwillingness to antagonize the Communists of the Far East. He is said to have a good many clandestine followers in both the Chinese and Indo-Chinese parties and also, until the recent purges, among the Japanese Communists. There is, of course, no way to determine the degree of truth beneath these rumors of a growing Asiatic Titoism, but they are given some color by the fiercely nationalistic spirit now evident everywhere in the East.

But the forces impelling Tito toward an open and irremediable breach with doctrinal communism are even stronger than the considerations that bind him to the cause of world revolution. There is, first of all, his highly precarious position in relation to the satellite countries of central and southern Europe. The chances are at least even that Yugoslavia will be the next theater of Soviet-inspired aggression. If the attack is successful—or, like the North Korean attack, successful in its original stages—that will be the end of Tito and of Titoism as an influence in international politics. The revolution whereby Tito gained and consolidated his power in Yugoslavia was not made of rosewater, and he has many implacable non-Communist enemies at home who are still living upon the hope of vengeance. In the hour of crisis they may prove no less dangerous to him than his Stalinist enemies.

Tito, then, has acute need of both moral and material support from the western bourgeois nations. Thus, whether he likes it or not, he will be obliged to make common cause with them; for as the conflict is intensified he will no longer be able to blow hot and cold, as did the Yugoslav delegates to the United Nations when they publicly opposed the resolution condemning the Communist aggression in Korea while privately, it is said, rejoicing at it.

Defense Readiness

Critics of Defense Secretary Johnson will no doubt have a field day with his statement to Congress on Wednesday that the combat potential of the armed forces was "at a higher level" on the day Korea was invaded than at any time since postwar demobilization was completed. Although Mr. Johnson quotes figures to back up his contention, he leaves some large loopholes. A lot of persons in the Navy, for example, will quarrel with the idea that you get more net combat readiness by taking ships out of commission even though the ships you retain are more fully manned. It takes time and money to demothball a ship. Moreover, Mr. Johnson says nothing about naval aviation, which has been cut drastically. In the Air Force, as Mr. Johnson noted previously, the composition of air groups has been changed, and this makes assessment difficult—though here the rate of plane production has a lot to do with combat potential. With respect to the Army, it is undeniably true that there have been more men in combat units—but the qualifying factors are the obsolescence of World War II equipment and the procurement rate of new weapons.

In any event, the attempt to compare combat potentials of any given dates resolves itself largely into a question of semantics. The point at which everyone will hope Mr. Johnson is right is in his assurance that "the military establishment which we are asking you to expand . . . is a sounder mobilization base than the United States has ever had before." It is significant in this connection to note that the present build-up of the armed forces is "based upon studies which began immediately after the President's announcement of the atomic explosion last September." What is hard to understand is why more of this build-up was not reflected in the 1951 budget requests.

Irrespective of any vulnerability of Mr. Johnson on his statements, he certainly has been right in trying to get more value for the dollars spent. As the Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report noted the other day, the efforts to eliminate duplication and waste have strengthened, not weakened, defense. Some economies have been questionable, to be sure, but the general approach has been constructive. Beyond this, Mr. Johnson put the dilemma well in quoting Chairman Mahon of the House Appropriations Subcommittee during the 1950 budget hearings: "If war comes soon, we are appropriating too little. If we have miscalculated the dangers . . . we are appropriating too much."

Defense expenditures have been based upon the assumption that the danger was all-out war with Russia, in which the strategic air force would be the main retaliatory element. That assumption has now proved to be inadequate; we must now have the striking force plus additional forces strong in ground troops and tactical aviation capable of sustaining police actions—thus discouraging aggression. It does not follow, however, that Mr. Johnson's detractors who wanted to throw billions around indiscriminately were right in their own assumptions or that more strategic aviation, say, would have been of additional help in Korea. Until war actually comes, there will always be other factors to consider, such as the burden on the economy, and these factors have been recognized by the military chiefs themselves in tempering their demands.

Social Security

The Senate-House conferees have reached an agreement on the social security bill and its passage is virtually assured. It is ironical that increases in the scale of benefits that should have been introduced long ago to allow for increases in living costs are to be made when the country is threatened by a new wave of inflation that may make further adjustments necessary. However, assuming that danger can be averted, the new scale of benefits based on the more liberal formulas of the Senate bill, are reasonable and fairly adequate.

The chief defect of the revisionist plan lies in the limitations on coverage. Millions of workers are still excluded from the insurance system, although the Social Security Agency says that it is now administratively feasible to include practically all of them. Many farm laborers and domestic servants especially in need of the protection afforded by the old-age insurance system are denied its advantages. It is also regrettable that the conference measure omits a provision of the House bill providing insurance benefits for workers becoming permanently and totally disabled before reaching retirement age. Some of these disabled people have contributed to the social insurance fund for years. Yet, although unable to work, they are not entitled to receive benefits until they are 65 years of age. Certainly these unfortunates should not be required to rely on public assistance when in need.

The conference bill also defers increases in payroll taxes until 1954 instead of increasing them next January, as proposed under the House bill. In our opinion, the failure to step up payroll taxes is most unwise. For the social insurance system covers high-income as well as low-income workers, and benefits are related to earnings, although low-income workers are favored under the system. A policy of freezing payroll taxes undermines the insurance features of the program and increases the pressure for transforming it into a pay-as-you-go system of universal pensions financed from general taxes. The additional revenue obtained from an increase in payroll taxes would also come in handy at present, serving as an additional check on inflationary price increases. Because of wider coverage, to be sure, as well as an increase in the maximum amount of annual wages on which benefits may be computed, the payroll tax revenue will rise, but increases in benefit payments will at the same time be greatly in excess of the increased yield from taxes.

The section of the bill providing for voluntary coverage of employes of nonprofit organizations is also open to criticism, since coverage is limited to employes who vote for it and to employes hired after it becomes effective. This means that the insurance system will attract more older workers and those best able to pay instead of providing protection for the ones least able to pay.

The Knowland rider to the Senate bill forbidding the Secretary of Labor to withhold unemployment compensation funds from any State until an appeal has been taken to the highest State courts has also been approved by the conferees. As The Washington Post pointed out in a recent editorial, that rider would make it virtually impossible to compel the States to put their laws in conformity with the standards set by Federal law. In any case it has no place in a bill dealing with old-age insurance and we hope that the House will insist on its deletion.

Marxism To Music

In view of the Communists' modest willingness to accept credit for every major innovation from Creation onward, it is hardly surprising that the Soviet Control Commission in Berlin has now discovered that Johann Sebastian Bach was at heart a Marxist. The Communist newspaper, Taegliche Rundschau, has a little difficulty in explaining how this came about since Bach died some 68 years before Karl Marx was born. But it resolves the dilemma nicely by asserting that Bach put into his music "thoughts of world development which were later put in legal form by Marx and Engels and now instituted in the Soviet Union and the people's democracies."

It takes a fine ear to detect the subtleties of the proletarian revolution in the Brandenburg Concerto, though to the trained listener we suppose that the overtones of the secret police are readily apparent. Likewise with a little imagination it is possible to surmise that Bach really intended his Passion According to St. Matthew to be a sort of predated tribute to St. Karl, and that his Mass in B-Minor actually had no religious connotations but was referring to the masses in concentration camps. But have the comrades really probed deeply enough? Isn't there a danger that in the contrapuntal theme of his fugues Bach was secretly expressing the bourgeois sentiments of a counter-revolutionary?

"Mediation On Kashmir"

Your July 22 editorial, "Mediation on Kashmir," deserves the gratitude of all those who wish for an early settlement of the Kashmir problem. While indorsing fully the sentiment, "the peace and security of the world depend in very considerable degree upon finding a speedy and just solution," I point out that the problem is not so much to find a solution as to enforce a solution to which the parties to the dispute (that is, Pakistan and India) and the United Nations are already committed in principle. This solution is a disposal of the State of Jammu and Kashmir according to the verdict of the people expressed through a plebiscite held and supervised by the U. N.

Earlier in your editorial you referred to the "disposal or division of this princely state" as being "under renewed discussion between the Indian Prime Minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, and the Prime Minister of Pakistan, Liaquat Ali Khan, with the official mediator of the United Nations, Sir Owen Dixon of Australia, lending the encouragement of his good offices."

Here again the impression is likely to be produced on the reader's mind that the problem is being considered de novo. India, Pakistan and the United Nations have all agreed that Kashmiris should decide the question of the accession of the state as a whole to Pakistan or India through a free and impartial plebiscite. The assignment given to Sir Owen Dixon by the Security Council is to create conditions facilitating the plebiscite.

What is required of the well-wishers of India and Pakistan at this stage is the lending of their weight to the removal of obstacles in the way of a plebiscite. Vague talk about solutions and an allusion to partition ostensibly as a solution can only serve to confound the issue, and prolong the agony of Kashmir. Its leaders, in Azad Kashmir as well as in the Indian-held part, have declared positively against partition, and I do not see how the question can be raised when an international agreement accepting a plebiscite exists.

The future of peace and of the United Nations lies not in finding solutions and then jettisoning them because someone refused to play the game, but in pursuing a solution with determination if the solution is right.

Selling Democracy

July, 1950, undoubtedly must be considered a very dark and regrettable period in the history of American democracy for there have occurred during this month conflicting events and decisions which will lead not only to confusion, doubts and frustration in this country, but to doubts, suspicions and loss of faith throughout the world concerning our democracy.

During the week of July 10, by judicial decree, American citizens of good conduct and repute were denied the right to eat in certain public restaurants of the Nation's Capital for no other reason than that their skins were dark.

During the same week, by legislative decree, the Fair Employment Practice Act was defeated in the United States Congress by a coalition of members from both the Democratic and Republican parties, each of which had promised in its national platform to pass such a bill.

Simultaneously, by executive order, Americans, regardless of race, color, creed, and religion were being notified that they may expect soon to be called to fight, and if necessary to die, to defend southern Korea from the aggression of northern Korea.

At the same time, millions of dollars are being asked and appropriated to broadcast the voice of America to the world in order that we may win to our mode of thinking the millions of people living behind the Iron Curtain, as well as to assure the allegiance of our own Western colleagues; and to persuade to our ideologies the millions who are yet undecided between "Russian communism" and "Western freedom and democracy."

Would it not be a wise tactical move to make it possible for the Voice of America to proclaim in truth to the peoples of the world that we do practice among ourselves the freedom and democracy that we promise to them if they denounce communism, rather than to give aid and comfort to a menacing foe by telling the world by our acts and decisions that our concepts of the Four Freedoms, democracy, and fairness of opportunity are modified by the color of the skin or the creed, religion, and dialect of our own citizens?

Owens' Resignation

In your issue of July 23, under the headline "Prince Georges Candidates Slow in Filing," you stated among other things "Judge Owens has submitted his resignation to Governor Lane and its acceptance is expected to be effective August 1." While it is true I expect to vacate the post soon, I have not notified the Governor nor have I set the date of termination of service.

McCarthyism's Effect

In June, an Italian said to me in Rome that he and other people he knew were greatly disturbed because of the large number of Communists in the United States. "Most of your officials are Communists," he said. "We wonder if it won't develop soon that President Truman is a Communist."

By that time I was sputtering. I managed to ask him where he got such ideas.

"From the McCarthy investigation," he said. "The stories in our papers indicate that the investigation involves everybody, even your President."

I told the Roman, an intelligent lawyer, that a great many things could be said about President Truman, but that his greatest enemy in the United States would hardly accuse him of communism. In fact, I assured the man, President Truman is a distinctly un-communistic type.

"Why would a United States Senator accuse so many people unless he has proof?" the man asked.

For obvious reasons, I could not answer that one.

Universal U. N.

President Truman says the military action of the United States in aiding Korea is a matter of basic moral principle.

But can we justly ask our American boys to give their lives, without first permitting Germany, Japan and Italy to join the United Nations and share in the enforcement of its decrees?

The United Nations is an organization formed for peace. Why not follow the advice of Prime Minister Nehru and permit the Communist government which now represents China, to join the United Nations on condition they cease all aggression?

"Egyptian Action"

Mr. Hussein Kamil's recent letter to the editor protesting your editorial, "Egyptian Action" of July 2, is so unjust in its accusations and so distorted in its statements of fact that readers are entitled to an answer.

In the first place, Mr. Kamil's characterization of himself as "a member of a free nation which has a representative form of government and a firm democracy" is indeed anomalous in the context of his government's action only last month in arbitrarily dismissing "by royal decree" 17 members of the Egyptian Senate and replacing them with members of the extremist Wafd Party, which is at present in power.

As to the merits of his argument, it all goes back to the United Nations decision in November, 1947, to partition Palestine into Jewish and Arab states. To prevent this decision of the United Nations from being carried out, Egypt, together with six other Arab states, resorted to armed aggression. In consequence of that aggression, Egypt today still holds and garrisons part of the southern Palestine coastline, the so-called Gaza Strip. According to official Egyptian announcements, Egypt is spending six million dollars in the present year for the maintenance of a garrison on Palestinian soil. She is actually, as a result of her aggression, holding roughly that part of the Negev which by the United Nations was allotted to an independent Arab-Palestinian state to be established.

In consequence of Egyptian and general Arab aggression, an Arab refugee problem has been created. The United Nations, "the incompetent organization" to which Mr. Kamil refers and which he declares unworthy of Egyptian support, spent during the year 1949 alone, a sum of approximately 30 million dollars for the relief of those refugees, while all the Arab states together contributed less than six million dollars. At the same time, Egypt spent at least 150 million dollars on armaments.

It is true that the United Nations failed to intervene by force against the Egyptian aggression of 1948 and confined itself to a condemnation of aggression. But Mr. Kamil, as an Egyptian, should gratefully remember that the United Nations did demand a truce, and that that demand was adhered to by Israel, although at the time there was no United Nations force available to back up the demand, and although Israel's forces were then driving the invaders out of Palestine. An Egyptian should remember that the United Nations truce saved the Egyptian army from complete destruction.

Even on its face, the Egyptian refusal to support United Nations action in Korea is hardly a defensible position for a nation professing its adherence to the democratic principle and method. It is interesting to note the similarity between the reason advanced by the Egyptian government for its nonsupport—the refusal of the United Nations to succumb to Arab demands, threats and walk-outs over the Palestine question; and the reasons given by the Soviet Union for withholding its cooperation—United Nations refusal to succumb to Communist demands, threats, and walkouts over the China question.

Responsibility In Lawmakers

By Marquis Childs

Monroney's Victory

IF THERE is one characteristic above all others essential, both to the lawmaker and to the executive in our Government today, it is responsibility. Since that is so, there is an encouraging bit of news in the midst of so much bad news in the victory of Representative A. S. M. (Mike) Monroney over Senator Elmer Thomas in Oklahoma.

For Mike Monroney has proved through six terms in the House that he is, above all else, a responsible and a conscientious public servant. He is a responsible public servant before he is a partisan politician and that is a fairly rare phenomenon.

One reason for Thomas' defeat, ending a political career going back to Oklahoma's first year of statehood in 1907, may well have been because he had shown himself to be so irresponsible. Supposedly Thomas had the pressure groups behind him. He has always voted for the biggest possible subsidies for farmers. He voted against the Taft-Hartley Act.

But this had the look of expediency, as Thomas pursued his own private financial and political deals. He had back of him the big private power interests seeking to buy up cheap power from the Southwest Power Authority, and sell it at high rates to consumers, thus giving the private company most of the benefit of Federal spending for low cost power.

As Monroney showed in his campaign, Thomas sought to bring pressure on Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman, to persuade him to sign a contract that in Chapman's opinion gave the private company an unreasonable advantage. Fortunately, just before the first primary election, Chapman signed another contract giving the consumer a better break and, at the same time, avoiding the costly and wasteful duplication of building separate Government power lines to carry the Southwest Authority's power.

MONRONEY won the first primary although he lacked a clear majority of all the votes cast. That necessitated the runoff with Thomas. As the Democratic nominee Monroney, it is believed here, will have little difficulty in defeating the Republican candidate in a State where Republicanism is chiefly represented by a small group of wealthy oil men.

In Arkansas President Truman's friend Gov. Sid McMath, defeated former Gov. Ben Laney, leader of the Dixiecrat forces in that State. This raises further doubt as to whether the South is ready, and willing, to rally behind a crusade against the Truman Administration.

At the time that James F. Byrnes won the Democratic nomination for Governor in South Carolina, his victory was greeted with loud hosannahs by the ultra-conservatives in the North. He was hailed as the white knight who would lead the embattled Dixiecrats in a successful holy war to bring down the Fair Deal and Truman with it.

THAT, it should be noted, was before the Korean war took such a terribly serious turn, and before the full implications of America's almost defenseless position were understood. In a succession of high offices—Senator, Justice of the Supreme Court, Director of War Mobilization and then Secretary of State—Byrnes proved he was a responsible public servant. Nearly four years ago he spoke some memorable words that should be remembered in the present crisis. Returning from the Paris peace conference, Byrnes said:

"America stands for social and economic democracy at home and abroad. The principles embodied in the social and economic reforms of recent years are a part of the American heritage.

"It would be strange indeed if in this imperfect world our social and economic democracy were perfect, but it might help our Soviet friends to understand us better if they realized that today our social and economic democracy is further away from the devil-take-the-hindmost philosophy of bygone days, than Soviet Russia is from czarist Russia.

"Whatever political differences there may be among us, we are firmly and irrevocably committed to the principle that it is our right, and the right of every people, to organize their economic and political destiny through the freest possible expression of their collective will. We oppose privilege at home and abroad. We defend freedom everywhere, and in our view human freedom and human progress are inseparable."

That is so very timely it might have been written yesterday. The man capable of uttering those words cannot fail to understand the meaning of this hour. Perhaps if there are still differences between the President and his former Secretary of State, the time has come to bury them, and bring Byrnes back into the Washington picture in some capacity. That would be, for one thing, a symbol of unity at a time when it would mean most to a troubled nation.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Formosa

WHAT IS happening in Formosa, and on the China coast opposite Formosa, is at least as ominous as what is happening in Korea. For all the information available to the American Government clearly points to an impending attack on Formosa by the Chinese Communists, a prospect which involves the danger of a general war. And what is more, the American Government has no firm, agreed policy whatsoever for dealing with this desperately serious situation.

A powerful invasion armada is now being collected in Fukien Province and elsewhere on the China coast. This armada consists of at least 5000 junks, most of them motor-driven, capable of transporting masses of Chinese Communist troops across the Formosa Straits in less than a day.

This junk armada is supported by fast, Soviet-made jet planes, reportedly numbering in the hundreds. These shore-based planes could present a very severe challenge to the ships and planes of the American Seventh Fleet, which has been ordered by President Truman to protect Formosa from attack. Moreover, only limited units of the Seventh Fleet are now available for use in the waters around Formosa.

Much of the Seventh Fleet has been committed to the Yellow Sea and the Sea of Japan, to lend support to American forces in the Korea war. The naval units available for the Formosa Straits cannot now effectively patrol the straits, being forced to rely on air patrols, inadequate in bad weather. Moreover, an effective blockade of the mainland ports is ruled out by orders to remain at least 6 miles off shore.

REINFORCEMENTS for the Seventh Fleet are now on the way to Formosa. But as the Chinese high command is certainly aware, the Seventh Fleet will not be fully operational in the Formosa area for a week or 10 days. This period of greatest weakness affords the Chinese Communists their most obvious opportunity to strike.

Nor is this all. There is almost no effective liaison whatever between the American forces and the Nationalist army and government on Formosa. Partly as a result of this failure, fierce anti-American feeling is boiling up on Formosa, where Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government is already rent with internal dissension.

Despite all this, it is still believed on balance that the Chinese Communist junk armada, if Mao Tse-tung orders it to attack, can be repulsed by American naval forces. It is conceded that this will not be easy. If it comes, the attack will be made at night and in bad weather.

Sinking or turning back every one of several thousand motor-driven junks under such circumstances will not be possible. But it should be possible effectively to disperse the bulk of the Communist fleet. The forces able to land should then be defeated easily by Chiang's well-equipped army of almost half a million men, unless the demoralization of the Nationalist forces is more advanced than is generally believed.

There is, to be sure, still some hope that the Communists will not attack after all, in spite of the evidence of the junk armada and the jets. There is little doubt that the Kremlin would like nothing better than to see the United States embroiled in open hostilities with the Chinese Communists. But there is considerable doubt that the Chinese Communists themselves are eager for this outcome. Fukien is very far from Moscow, and the commander in the Fukien area, Shen Yi, is not one of the "Moscow men" among the Chinese Communists. And on the whole, it is believed improbable that the Kremlin could order the attack against the wishes of the Chinese Communist leaders.

YET THAT the Communists will not attack is no more than a hope, and policy cannot be based on vague hopes. President Truman had little practical choice but to order the defense of Formosa, since otherwise the essential unity in Congress behind his decision to act in Korea would have been dissipated.

But now that this enormously serious commitment has been made, there is no real agreement at all on how it is to be carried out; on what American forces, if any, are to be committed if the Navy alone cannot do the job; on what must be done if an attack succeeds, and Formosa falls; on what must be done about Formosa if an attack fails; on what must be done if American ships are sunk; on what must be done if the Chinese Communists appeal for direct Soviet intervention, under the Sino-Soviet treaty of alliance.

All these desperately important questions, on which the issue of war or peace itself may hang, have been left wholly unsettled. Thus nothing is more urgently and immediately essential than a firm agreement on American policy in Formosa, covering all eventualities. It was the lack of such an agreed policy, and the military forces to back it up, which landed this country in the perilous situation in which it now finds itself. It may be that intelligent policy-making is impossible as long as the State and Defense Departments continue to regard each other with suspicion and distrust. But one thing is clear. If we continue to stumble along, from crisis to greater crisis, without clear policy or clear purpose, our course can only end in disaster.

Bees Making Trouble for Brooke Johns

Johns

The way it all began was that two years ago a couple of bees dropped by to roost in the Johns home near Norbeck, Md.

Johns, former Follies star, ex-Montgomery County Commissioner and currently a radio and TV performer, is a tolerant man. He and his family more or less welcomed the buzzers.

As the months went by, the bees multiplied. The humming in the ceiling of the Johns living room increased to sawmill intensity. The problem today makes Johns wax downright eloquent:

"We've tried to get rid of them," he said. "We're smoked them out; we've cemented their entrances; we've tried to starve them out by removing their honey supply in midwinter."

No go. The bees remained to swell the family menagerie of goldfish, frogs, canaries, cats, a donkey, chickens, ducks, geese, rabbits, goats, dogs and turkeys.

But there were compensations. When the family has hotcakes, Johns carries a stack to the living room, holds them under a stained spot on the ceiling, and presto—honey and pancakes.

The pure honey began dripping through the ceiling last week. Mrs. Johns keeps a tray under the spot to collect the surplus.

Honey or no honey, the buzzing has to stop, Johns said. And he added, wistfully: "Don't know how we're going to do it, short of burning the house down."

Va. 8th District Candidates Ask Anti-Red Stand

Three candidates for Congress from Virginia's Eighth District favor "a strong, positive stand" against further Communist world aggression, the Virginia League of Women Voters reported yesterday.

The League sent its questionnaires to all five candidates for the House seat, but said it had received no answers from two of them — Democratic candidates Lieut. Comdr. Herman K. Kopp of Alexandria and Arthur F. Souther of Arlington.

The three remaining aspirants, incumbent Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), Hal Flood Hughes, Republican, of Arlington, and Tyrell Krum, a Vienna, Va., Republican, gave these answers to the Virginia League's questions:

What Federal policies did they favor to maintain a prosperous United States economy? Smith called for a balanced budget brought about by careful appropriations and the "maintenance of a high level of taxes."

But Republicans Hughes and Krum called for reduction of taxes. They also supported the recommendations of the Hoover report.

Asked what pieces of legislation he was concerned about, Smith mentioned laws to curb subversive activities and to control lobbying and said he actively supported the Taft-Hartley Act.

Hughes and Krum both said they opposed compulsory health insurance and the Brannan Plan for farm subsidies. In addition, Hughes said he was against Federal aid to education.

Krum replied that he favored amendments to the Taft-Hartley Act "to protect the fundamental rights of labor." Locally, he called for the county manager form of government in Fairfax County, while both he and Hughes asked repeal of the Virginia poll tax.

3 Republicans In Race for Md. Governor

Annapolis, Md., July 27 (AP).—The Republican race for nomination for Governor settled down to a three-man show today.

Thomas B. R. Mudd of southern Maryland announced he was out of it.

State Senator Roy Tasco Davis (R., Montgomery) said flatly that "I am in to the end if I only get one vote."

Brig. Gen. D. John Markey of Frederick County, said, "I see no possibility of pulling out. "Why should I? I've got it in the bag."

On the Democratic side, the sharpening battle of campaign words between Governor Lane and his chief rival for the nomination, George P. Mahoney, brought these developments:

John B. Funk, State engineer and wheelhorse in the Lane administration, said Mahoney had made some reckless charges about Lane's program for the State's mental hospitals.

Mahoney came up with a new charge that the Governor is guilty of callous indifference to Maryland's dead of World War II and their families because he hasn't hurried along a memorial to them.

Mahoney demanded during a campaign tour of Montgomery County yesterday that the Governor account for $20 million dollars appropriated by the General Assemby in 1949 for institutions.

Funk's statement today said:

"Probably Mr. Mahoney thinks the 20-million-dollar hospital fund has some connection with the difficulties the State has in obtaining doctors for the Eastern Shore State Hospital.

"Every well-informed person knows that the fund is for the purpose of providing new buildings and other capital improvements at the mental hospitals.

Maryland Dean

Rep. Sasscer To Run for Reelection

Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D.) of Upper Marlboro, dean of the Maryland delegation in the House, yesterday announced his candidacy for reelection.

Rep. Sasscer

Sasscer began his service in Congress on February 3, 1939, and is completing his sixth term as Representative from the Fifth Maryland District.

Originally assigned to the House Naval Affairs Committee, Sasscer is now a ranking member of the Armed Services Committee and is one of the seven members constituting its policy subcommittee.

Sasscer vigorously opposed the recent cut-backs in the Armed Services, and denounced the curtailing of the functions of the Navy and Marine Corps and their air arms.

Fifteen bills introduced and sponsored by Sasscer passed the House during this Congress. These included the Baltimore Parkway measure, legislation for Southern Maryland tobacco, laws affecting administration of the Central Intelligence Agency, reorganization of the Service Academies, and the Mutual Fire Assistance bill.

Before his election to Congress, Sasscer was president of the Maryland Senate during 1935 to 1937. A veteran of World War I, he is married and the father of three children.

Md. Legislature Approves Primary Shift, Absentee Vote

Annapolis, Md., July 27 (AP).—The Maryland legislature today shifted the 1950 primary election to September 18 and gave members of the armed forces the right to vote by absentee ballot.

The House gave its final approval early last night. To Governor Lane's brief program for the one-day special session, which ended at 9 p. m.

The Senate earlier had approved the bills with dispatch.

The original date for the primary was September 11, eve of the Jewish New Year. The special session was called to avoid a conflict.

The same act approved by both houses also calls for an additional registration day in Baltimore on August 14 and three more on October 2, 3 and 4.

The absentee voting act of World War II days was brought out and made into law again. Eligible voters in the armed services will be able to cast ballots in the November election. There was not enough time to allow it before the primary.

Before it approved the September 18 primary date, the Senate had to beat down a move to make it September 5.

Three other acts, all of a minor nature, were passed as administration supporters were able to discard all measures they did not want.

The House Judiciary Committee gave some consideration to two bills to deny the vote to Communists, then killed them. The majority of the committee felt that the Communist party actually wanted such a measure to pass so the action could be used for propaganda purposes.

There was a political flavor to some of the arguments in both Houses. Governor Lane is opposed for renomination by George P. Mahoney. Some of the Mahoney supporters sought approval of pet projects, but none succeeded.

Among them was Senator Turnbull (D., Baltimore Co.). Admitting it was a purely political move, he tried to amend the governor's bill to have the primary election September 5—the day after Labor Day. But his efforts failed, 15 to 12.

Turnbull told the Senate that the Democratic party is in a "bruising, rough, tough primary campaign." Therefore, he argued, it needs all the time it can get to heal the wounds before the November general election.

Senator Davis (R., Montgomery), an aspirant for the Republican nomination for Governor, said he would vote for September 5—but for another reason.

"I want more time to tell the people why the State budget was raised from 48 million dollars to 143 million dollars in four years," Davis said.

Majority Leader Sothoron (D., Prince Georges), argued that the day after Labor Day was no time to hold an election.

The Senate then passed the Lane program and sent it over to the House. Included was a minor bill to raise $12,000 to pay for the special session.

The absentee voting bill would allow eligibles in the armed services to vote in the November election. In asking for it, Lane said in his brief message:

"So that the franchise of those who may be called for military duty will be protected, I recommend the reenactment of the absentee voting statute to permit those away from the State in the armed services to exercise their voting privileges."

The Senate went into session at 12:35 p. m. (E. D. T.) and the House at 1:50 p. m. After brief preliminaries and introduction of a total of 16 bills, both recessed to let committees get to work.

In late afternoon the Senate killed a measure which would have required appointed judges to face a vote at the first general election following their appointment. Appointed judges now may serve a full year before submitting to election.

The two bills which would deny the ballot to members of the Communist party were introduced in the house by Delegate Whitworth (R. Allegany).

Takoma Park Official Files

James B. Parkhill, 47, member of the Takoma Park, Md., City Council, yesterday filed as a candidate in the Republican primary for clerk of the Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md.

Parkhill, who is an accountant and resides at 44 Columbia ave., Takoma Park, has been indorsed by the Republican State Central Committee. He is the first to challenge the veteran Clayton K. Watkins, who has served 24 years as clerk of the court, in two elections.

Parkhill, who married the former Miss Florence Zeigler, of Harrisburg, Pa., served as a field director with the American Red Cross in World War II in Panama, Australia, and the Burma-China-India theater and after the war with UNRRA.

He is a trustee, treasurer and finance chairman for the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church and a member of the Legion of Honor of the Order of DeMolay, the Masonic Order and Alpha Kappa Psi Fraternity.

Two other candidates filed yesterday. Julian P. King, of Cedar Grove, now a member of the Maryland House of Delegates, filed for the Republican nomination to succeed himself, and Theodore Beall Sinclair, 633 Ritchie ave., Silver Spring, filed for delegate to the Republican State Convention.

Rodaini, police said, had been employed at the embassy here for little more than a year. Before that he had been employed at the Iraq Consulate in New York.

Capt. Robert V. Murray, assistant chief of detectives, said Saysi had held the job as head janitor before Rodaini assumed it recently.

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy District coroner, reported that hemorrhage and shock caused death. The "multiple" stab wounds, he said, severed several large blood vessels in the neck of the dead man.

Police believe Rodaini was attacked either on his bed" perhaps as he slept" or near the bed.

Police believe that a second knife may have been used in the slaying.

They said Rodaini was murdered between 11 p. m. and 1 a. m. He was last seen alive at 11 p: m., they explained. From the condition of the body when it was found, they estimate that death could not have come after 1 a. m.

The basement of the chancery is used to house the embassy's staff of servants, police said. Both Rodaini and Saysi lived there, they added.

When the slaying was reported to police, the entire homicide staff—under the direction of Murray and Inspector Walter T. Storm, acting of police superintendent—responded. A police guard has been posted at the embassy.

. . . denies murder implication

Permission to conduct a routine police investigation at the embassy—considered Iraqi territory under law—was granted by Iraqi Minister Abdullah Ibrahim Bakr.

Detroit police said they received a call from Captain Murray yesterday morning in which he gave police three addresses at which Saysi might be located.

Saysi, they said, arrived at Willow Run Airport, near Detroit, at 12:30 p. m. (Washington time) on a flight from Washington.

Russia Ends Boycott of U. N.

gations were ready to demand an immediate session of the U. N. General Assembly. Malik can veto future decisions in the Council, but has no such power in the Assembly.

Malik's decision to return August 1 was sent to Lie in a letter telephoned to the secretary-general at 4:40 p. m. (EDT). It was the first move Malik had made toward the council since he stalked out of the chamber last January 13 when the council refused to oust Nationalist China.

Mons—Nearly 60,000 workers o

The Council already was scheduled to meet at 10:30 a. m. (EDT), tomorrow to discuss the report on the Korean war effort from the unified command. That meeting still is scheduled, but the word that the Russians are coming back on August 1, obviously will overshadow any deliberations of the Council tomorrow.

Long Debat on Red Veto

Malik's return to the Council makes it certain that future decisions on the Korean war will face either long debate or a Russian veto. But Council delegates have insisted that the Russians cannot veto decisions already taken.

Malik's decision was communicated in this letter:

"Dear Mr. Secretary-General:

"I consider it necessary to inform you that in accordance with established procedure, I am assuming the presidency of the Security Council in August of this year and that I am setting the date of the meeting of the Council for August 1 at 2 p. m., EST. I request you to arrange to notify the members of the Security Council of the date of the meeting. The agenda will be communicated subsequently.

"With respect,

J. Malik."

There was no elaboration when a U. N. spokesman read the text to a specially called news conference. A minor secretary of the Soviet delegation stood in the background and smilingly watched as reporters rushed to phone their offices

Presidency Rotates

Some action from the Russians had been expected during August, since the Soviet Union normally would have the chairmanship under the regular alphabetical rotation plan.

Council delegates also were discussing a possible sudden break in the impasse over Chinese representation in the U. N. They suggested that Malik as chairman might make a ruling that the Nationalist Chinese delegate, T. F. Tsiang, was not a member of the council. Tsiang might challenge this ruling, and Malik would put the challenge to a vote. With the lineup in the council almost evenly divided on the China question, it appeared likely that Tsiang would not get the necessary majority of seven votes needed to overturn the ruling.

Delegates discussing this report said Tsiang might count only on the votes of himself, the United States, Cuba, Ecuador, Egypt and France. They said the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia, India, Norway and Britain—all of which have recognized Red China—certainly would vote for the ruling, since they no longer recognize Tsiang's government.

Reds Might Not Be Seated

If such a vote should materialize, the Nationalist delegation would be unseated, but, on the other hand, there appeared little or no chance that the Chinese Reds would get the necessary majority to win a seat. Thus it might develop that the Chinese seat would remain vacant for a while, at least.

Malik has kept in touch with the U. N. since his walkout. His secretaries have made trips to the U. N. to pick up documents, and he has talked with delegates at social functions.

His predecessor on the Council, Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, has fired several verbal broadcasts against the Council's decision to fight Communist aggression in Korea. Gromyko has said that the decision was illegal because the Soviet Union and the Chinese Communists were not represented. But the Council paid no attention to the Russian protests and has gone ahead organizing a U. N. force to meet the Korean Communists.

Lie, acting on the request of the unified command, appealed to 52 U. N. members to give all possible assistance to the Korean war effort and called on several to furnish combat forces. That appeal was made July 14, and to date has received replies from 28 members, with assurances of combat forces amounting almost to a division of troops.

Lie did not address his appeal to the five countries in the Soviet bloc nor to Yugoslavia, which voted against the Council resolution of June 27 calling for strong action. He also did not send it to the 59th member, the United States, which is carrying the burden of the U. N. fight so far.

and/or two years in jail. Retained was a provision requiring each manufacturer to file reports twice yearly with the Government on all his sales.

Meanwhile, the Senate Crime Committee made two announcements.

Chairman Kefauver (D., Tenn.), said he had written Louis E. Wolfson, the Jacksonville, Fla., businessman who recently acquired the controlling interest in Washington's Capital Transit Co. Wolfson had asked that Kefauver make it publicly known that he was engaged in no gambling or other illegal enterprises.

Wolfson was questioned at the recent Miami hearings of the committee about a $154,000 contribution he had made to the 1948 campaign of Gov. Fuller Warren of Florida.

Kefauver said he had written Wolfson that he had been called as a witness only because of the unusually large contribution, matched by two others, one of whom controls horse and dog tricks. The senator said he told Wolfson that the testimony did not indicate that Wolfson had any connection with gambling. Wolfson made a simliar statement to The Washington Post when the Post first disclosed that he was to be called by the senators.

The crime committee made public a promise to keep a sharp lookout for any sign of war-spawned black market operations by racketeers and criminal gangs. The committee warned that the mobilization program doubtless would draw "racket money" into trading in scarce commodities, as did the last war.

Educators Discuss Emergency Today

Lieut. Lawton

Fourth Navy Man in Air Crash Dies

Lieut. Ernest J. Lawton, jr., Arlington Naval officer who earned 11 decorations and seven battle stars in the Pacific Theater in World War II, died yesterday in Abington, Pa., near Philadelphia of injuries received in a plane crash last Friday.

Lieut. Lawton

He was the fourth Navy man to die as a result of the crash of a twin-engine Beechcraft from the Anacostia Naval Air Station. The plane took off from the Willow Grove (Pa.) Naval Air Station to return to Anacostia, nosed over and burned.

Commander Stanley Chernack of 3724 Appleton st. nw., the pilot and only survivor, was reported in good condition at Abington Hospital.

The 33-year-old flyer, who lived at 216 S. Courthouse rd. Arlington, held the Navy Cross, the Medals.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Helen Caroline Randall of Albion, Mich., whom he married in 1943; two children, Caroline, 5, and Ernest J. Lawton 3d, 14 months, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Lawton of Monson, Mass.

The relationship of the national emergency and public education will be the subject of a meeting today at the National Education Association headquarters, 16th and M sts. nw.

Pearl A. Wanamaker of Olympia, Wash., president of the National Council of Chief State School Officers, which called the meeting, will preside at the 9:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. sessions.

Thirty-four leaders of various organizations, representing all levels of education from the public grammar school to college, will attend the meeting of the council.

Among topics to be discussed will be: vocational training programs; rationing, draft registration and other forms of service by teachers; allocation of equipment and suppies for education; the manpower problem and its effect on teacher supply and demand, and the best use of school facilities and personnel in the national interest, including civilian defense and disaster relief.

Universities Asked To Survey Facilities

Universities and colleges were asked yesterday to start immediate surveys of their staffs and physical facilities for possible training use in the light of the present emergency, by Dr. George F. Zook, president of the American Council on Education.

Zook also requested the colleges and universities to urge their students to continue in school until summoned for military duty because "in so doing they are preparing themselves to render greater service."

Zook said enrollments will be "little" affected by the Korean war this year because the draft law provides deferments until students finish their year's work, but it appeared certain they will be hit eventually.

His forecast was made in letters to presidents of all American colleges and universities. The council, with headquarters at 744 Jackson pl. n.w., has called a meeting of educators and Government officials for August 5 to map plans for "specific training and other programs which may be needed" in the higher education institutions.

Well, Anyhow, It's Not A Total Loss

Talk of reviving OPA brings this comment from a cynical observer:

"It does seem a bit silly to have one agency of Government spend millions to keep food prices down while other agencies are spending millions to keep food prices up. However, the system is not without its psychological advantages.

"It keeps the various agencies working at top speed in an effort to outdo each other, and thereby lets our fighting men know that we on the home front aren't just sitting around taking things easy."

IT'S SIMPLER TO PAY FOR YOUR OWN LUNCH

The August issue of Reader's Digest suggests that if you flip a coin to decide who is going to pay for the lunch, you should let the other fellow do the calling. Says the Digest:

"Heads is called seven times times out of ten. The simple law of averages gives the man who listens a tremendous advantage."

After a solid hour of trying to figure out why this should be so, I have come to the conclusion that the Digest is spoofing us.

If the coin and the man who tosses it are both honest, it is always an exactly even wager that you cannot make the right call. Or that the other fellow can't.

Call heads 70 times out of 100 and you'll win 35 while losing 35. Call tails the remaining 30 times out of 100 and you'll win 15 while losing 15. The result: You break even, regardless of your call. Even if you call all heads, or all tails, or call them alternately.

The coin has no ears, and can not hear your call. All it knows is that approximately half of the time it must favor those who bet on heads, and approximately half of the time it must favor those who bet on tails.

The remainder of the time it rolls under the table and favors only the man who sweeps up.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I am angry.

I have just been reading some newspaper interviews with people who have been stocking up on food "before the hoarders get it all."

They frankly admit that they're buying more than they need, yet criticize "hoarders." It makes me a little sick inside.

Can't we do something to make them realize that they're forcing the Government to resort to rationing?

Mrs. Joyce M. Andrews
102 Argyle st.
Rockville, Md.

Dear Mrs. Andrews:

Two kinds of people resist the urge to stock up on things that are in short supply during a war:

1. Those who can't afford it.
2. Those who have faith in their countrymen.

If we could all bank on the decency and good judgment of our neighbors, we wouldn't need rationing. Everybody would say to himself: "Other folks won't try to grab my share; I mustn't try to grab theirs."

Unfortunately, too many of us are "Me First Americans." And others, who aren't really selfish, think it's smart to be forehanded.

That brings on rationing, which is the Government's attempt to give everybody a fair share. But the greedy among us wreck even that.

Then we complain about rationing, shortages, black markets, prices and taxes. Yet all of them put together don't begin to describe the price of war.

Bill.

COORDINATE, GENTS

The stock market's vacillations lead me to suspect that Wall Streeters aren't as smart as they're cracked up to be. If they'd make up their minds whether the market is going up or down, and then stick to it, we could all get rich.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

U.S. 'Luxury' Impressed Russians

By Drew Pearson

Our former Ambassador to Russia, Gen. Bedell Smith, recently told a closed-door session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee how a Soviet propaganda film backfired.

Smith

"The Russians are intensely interested in how the man in the small American town or city lives," General Smith told the Senators. "The great Russian propaganda picture, 'Rusky Vaprosk,' which was a terrible indictment of American journalism and foreign policy, played in 500 theaters simultaneously in the Soviet Union. But it lasted only two weeks in Moscow.

"We had American observers at the theater almost every night. The audience reaction was interesting. In one scene, the producer had accurately shown a tenement in the East Side of New York—what we would consider extremely poor housing.

"To the Muscovite," Smith continued, "it was darn good housing, housing Russians would compete for. Between the tenement buildings were clotheslines, and audience reaction was, "My God, how many clothes they have! Look at them!'"

General Smith smiled at this recollection and went on: "Then the film showed the little Westchester bungalow of the downtrodden reporter who was losing his job and his wife because he had written something good about the Soviet Union. The audience was not interested in what was happening to him, but they were gasping at the electric range and the electric refrigerator in the kitchen."

Lush Campaign Funds

Big-time money is still pouring into senatorial primaries, the latest to attract attention being the New Hampshire battle between two Republicans, elder Statesman Senator Charles Tobey and former Senate Secretary Wesley Powell.

Powell, an energetic young man who formerly ran the office of New Hampshire's Senator Styles Bridges, seems to have an abundance of funds to spend in his campaign against Tobey. Yet he resigned from his job with Senator Bridges one year ago, has no law practice, no other important means of support, and has been giving all his time to campaigning.

Where he gets his lush campaign chest is not yet known. However, Truman's close friend Ed Pauley once vowed that he could contribute any amount of money to defeat Senator Tobey. This was after Tobey led the Senate attack which defeated oil-man Pauley for appointment as Undersecretary of the Navy. Tobey maintained that with the Navy buying large amounts of oil, a big oil man who had raised thousands for the Democratic Party, should not be running the Navy.

Also sore at Tobey and reported anxious to unseat him are David Sarnoff of RCA, whose operations Tobey once exposed, and the Textron Co., also investigated by Tobey.

Meanwhile, Iowa's Senator Gillette, chairman of a special committee to probe election campaigns, has been requested to investigate New Hampshire. It isn't likely, however, that the likable gentleman from Iowa will do anything. In the first place, Gillette is too easygoing. In the second place, Senator Tobey once trod on Gillette's toes in a previous election probe.

This was in 1940, when Tobey and the late Senator Alva Adams of Colorado wanted to scrutinize the campaign machinations of the Hague machine in New Jersey.

Wasted-Effort

One of the minor mysteries of the Pentagon Building is why the Defense Department's public information office wastes precious time and money getting such out-of-date and superfluous publicity photos.

As recently as July 14, the Defense Department sent newspapers a "fact sheet," accompanied by 22 handsome "official Department of Defense photos," showing various views of the Red River arsenal of Texas, its tanks, guns, trucks, etc., stored there, employes at work on servicing and "de-cocooning" the equipment.

Except to show what expert photographers the Defense Department has, a more useless piece of defense effort has yet to be seen.

No New OPA

Conscientious Stuart Symington, who as chairman of the National Security Resources Board now becomes virtual czar of the civilian economy, has worked out a common-sense scheme for the administration of controls.

At least it sounds like common sense on paper, though old-timers have raised eyebrows as to whether it will really work.

What Symington plans is to place the administration of controls in the hands of the present Government agencies instead of building up big new bureaus. For instance, he would have the Labor Department handle manpower and labor problems; the Commerce Department handle retail prices, and priorities on raw materials; the Interior Department coal, oil, and electric power.

Symington points to the futility of building up big bureaus only to disband them if the Korean crisis tapers off next winter. So his idea will be given a good trial.

Youth at Crossroads

How 'Worst Boy' Became Student With Bright Future

(Sixth of a Series)

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

A 19-year-old youth who is now a promising student in one of the Nation's leading universities was in virtual solitary confinement three years ago at the National Training School for Boys.

His announced aim in life was to be a "Dillinger." He was labeled a homosexual and was a seven-time convicted thief. The authorities called him "completely antisocial."

To rehabilitate that youth took two years of concentrated effort, with the institution, a psychiatrist, and public-spirited citizens at the task. At the beginning, almost all agreed that it was an almost impossible job.

We will call the boy Bill Jones. His "cure" began in 1947 when Curtis Shears, a trial attorney at the Department of Justice, called Harold E. Hegstrom, superintendent of the National Training School. Shears, chairman of the Youth Opportunity Committee of the American Legion, was trying to get that body interested in the Sponsorship Program.

"I want to sponsor the worst boy you have," Shears said.

"I've got some pretty tough cases," said Hegstrom. "Why don't you take an easier one?"

"I'LL take the worst you've got," Shears answered.

He went up to "The Hill," where he met Bill Jones, whose first words were:

"What's your racket, Mister? Are you a fairy?"

When Shears said he wanted to help him to become a good citizen, Bill turned away. It was almost a month later that Bill finally consented to listen to the would-be sponsor.

Dr. James J. Thorpe remembers the day that Bill first came to see him. Bill accused the school psychiatrist of perversion, and would have nothing to do with him.

"The boy needed help very badly," Dr. Thorpe recalls. "But he didn't want to change. I told him I only wanted to see if he couldn't get along better with other people, and that he could keep any part of his life he wanted.

Then, the psychoanalysis started, and out of the boy poured his life story as he remembered it. His mother used to punish him by dressing him as a girl for the boys to see. Bill soon learned that if he "prissed" —acted enough like a girl—his mother would become frightened and desist.

His parents separated and Bill's father became involved with other women. The boy began identifying himself with his mother who became his idol. But she remarried and her new husband took much of her attention. Bill felt he could get affection and tenderness from her no longer.

AT AGE 7, he became a passive homosexual. He began stealing for men companions, ran away from home. His only contact with women was with a lesbian when he was 15 years of age. At age 16, he was sent to the National Training School for car theft.

After months, the treatment began taking effect, and Bill was coming out of his shell.

Shears sensed that the mother-complex of the boy was still an overpowering influence hindering any real recovery. Shears decided he could loosen the tie if Bill could be convinced that his mother had given up her outcast son completely.

The sponsor persuaded Bill's mother to send a letter stating that Bill already had demonstrated he was beyond help and should be left to fend for himself. She wrote that trying to aid Bill was like "casting pearls before swine."

Bill nearly fainted when he read the letter, Shears said. For a time the boy was in anguish at the thought his mother could compare him to "swine."

HOWEVER, the tie was broken, and Bill was willing to strike out on his own toward recovery.

Still, Bill wanted to be a Dillinger. Shears challenged the boy to prove he could speak as "well as Dillinger," and Bill agreed to enter an American Legion oratorical contest.

On the day of the contest, Bill called Shears to say that he wasn't going through with it.

"The boys say they will kill me if I win. They all want the football captain to win, and say I'm no good," he said.

Shears hurried out to the school and persuaded Bill to continue.

As Bill began to speak, the hall resounded to catcalls. But the boys finally began to listen.

When it was over, it was Bill they cheered, and he was decreed the winner.

As Shears tells it, "Boys can be very cruel but they can be very very just."

Bill entered a Legion city-wide contest and came out second.

Shears began taking Bill home, and one day he showed him the Jefferson and Lincoln Memorials.

And Bill, the boy who wanted to be Dillinger, and discovered he could speak on his feet, decided instead to be a lawyer.

BILL waived his good conduct release and agreed to spend three extra months at the training school so he could get into college. In that time he crammed in two years of Latin and enough mathematics to get by. His IQ, when he entered the training school, was 127, well above average. Dr. Thorpe believes a much higher score would be recorded today.

A newspaper editor contributed the money for Bill's tuition. The American Legion gives him $15 a month. The rest he earns while he studies.

He managed to get by the first term and in the second topped his class in at least one subject.

He has written Mr. and Mrs. Shears letters regularly. Excerpts follow:

"A girl down the street is teaching me how to dance. She is a wonderful dancer. She's so good that I feel like a galloping elephant. However, slowly but surely I'm learning how to get around on a dance floor without looking too bad."

"YOU WILL BE HAPPY, I know, to hear that I am going to the organization meeting of the Christian Science Youth Forum. And, Mrs. Shears, I know that you'll know what the following means:

"Sighted enemy (myself) four times, Conquered same every time."

"Je vous aime beaucoup. I hope that's right."

"First of all I would like to thank you for all you have done for me. You can't possibly know how much it has meant to me to have such very good friends. I only hope that some day I shall be able to help someone who needs help as badly as I did."

"I was telling grandmother tonight that if everyone in the world was as nice as the people I know, there would never be another war. Mr. Justice Clark (Tom C. Clark, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court), busy though he must be, takes time once in a while to write a letter to me."

Bill telephones Shears regularly, but never reverses the charges. He remembers Shears' admonition, "Don't sponge off me."

Dr. Thorpe no longer hears from Bill.

"I do not believe that he will get into any serious trouble with society now. But two more years of intensive treatments would be helpful. I don't suppose he will get it," said the psychiatrist.

Recreation Board Votes Interracial Play Center

Athletic Quarters At Central Slated To Open Sept. 18 For Adults Only

The District Recreation Board voted unanimously yesterday to establish a city-wide, nonsegregated recreation center at the Central High School Building—now Cardozo High for Negro students.

Use of the school's facilities on an interracial basis will begin September 18, and, as in the past, will be confined to adults. The plan is to operate the community center Mondays through Friday from 6:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.

Harry S. Wender, board chairman, said the board's decision "represents the most substantial single step taken to implement what the board set out to do sometime ago."

He was referring to the Board's vote last year to eliminate segregation in the District recreation system as rapidly as possible, consistent with public interest, public order and effective administration."

Wender hailed the new move as the "proper approach" toward ending segregation because it is "entirely voluntary," on the adult level and is on a city-wide basis.

Successful operation of the Cardozo center, he said, will "point the way" to many more racially integrated activities.

"If the center is not successful," said Wender, "we will have to do a lot of thinking before we consider any other interracial attempts."

The community center proposal was drawn up by a special recreation board committee. It has been under study since the Board of Education decided last spring to transfer Cardozo High Negro students into the Central High School Building.

The new project will supplant an 'all-white' adult community center which has been operating at the Central building for several years.

Milo Christiansen, in presenting the proposal yesterday, told Board members he already has had conferences with the Board of Education, and has been assured full cooperation.

Miss Sibyl Baker and John L. Young, assistant recreation superintendents, will supervise the interracial program. E. Frank Davis, present community director of the Central center, will remain in charge of the Cardozo center, the Board agreed yesterday.

Jerry Klutz is out of the city for a few days. His Federal Diary column will be resumed upon his return.

Probers Ask Fischbach to Stay on Job

Crime Subcommittee Gives Its Counsel Unanimous Vote of Complete Confidence

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Hyman I. Fischbach, counsel for the House District crime subcommittee, yesterday was given a unanimous vote of "complete confidence" and requested to stay on the job.

The subcommittee made an investigation of its own counsel at the request of the House Administration Committee when it approved $20,000 more for the probe into District crime.

The full statement of the crime subcommittee chairman, James C. Davis (D., Ga.), follows:

"In the work of our committee, it is necessary that our counsel and staff be persons of the highest integrity and ability. In organizing our committee, we sought and employed counsel and staff on that basis.

Investigation Suggested

"When the House Administration Committee approved the recent resolution to make funds available to our committee, the acting chairman wrote a letter to our committee suggesting that certain statements reflecting upon the committee counsel, Mr. H. I. Fischbach, be investigated.

"We asked, through its chairman, that the Law Enforcement Committee of the Bar Association in Washington join us in this investigation, and the chairman of the Bar Association Committee actively participated in investigating each and every allegation regarding our committee counsel.

"A complete report of that investigation was made to our committee on yesterday at an executive session. The report dealt specifically with the statements regarding our committee counsel and the recommendation which was made to our committee on the basis of that joint report was that Mr. Fischbach's character and ability qualified him in all respects to continue his work as counsel for our committee.

"The representative of the Bar Association Committee and the member of our committee who made the investigation, joined in the recommendation that Mr. Fischbach be continued in his capacity as committee counsel.

Chairman Hears Report

"Our committee invited the entire membership of the accounts subcommittee of the House Administration Committee to be present and hear the joint report made to our committee by the investigators.

"Our committee has considered the report and recommendation based upon it, and have unanimously voted complete confidence in the committee counsel, and have unanimously requested him to continue to act in that capacity.

"We are pleased and satisfied with the services he has rendered."

Details of the charges against Fischbach were never made public. Representative Olin E. Teague (D., Tex.) and J. Harry Welch, who heads a District Bar Association committee assigned to work with the crime group, went to New York this week for the inquiry and brought back a joint report clearing Fischbach.

White House Conference Group Runs Out of Funds

Commissioners Told District Committee Must End Activity In Youth Program

If the District Commissioners expect a citizens' committee to do an effective community job, they had better give it money with which to work.

That was the gist of a letter sent to Commisisoner John Russell Young yesterday by Mrs. Henry Gichner, chairman of the District Committee for the Midcentury White House Conference on Children and Youth.

Mrs. Gichner said in effect that the committee will have to quit because the District has not provided it with funds.

The commissioners appointed the group of 20 civic leaders last September to prepare for and represent the District at the national conference to be held here in December. It meets every 10 years to discuss youth problems

Committee Raised $2125

Committee members raised $2125 from private sources to hire staff assistance, Mrs. Gichner said. This money has been spent and the District budget just adopted includes no funds for the work.

Since the committee members are too busy to do the job properly without staff assistance, Mrs. Gichner wrote, "we regretfully report that we cannot proceed with an active program in the coming months."

She said the group will, however, do what it can to sponsor a Young People's Committee

She concluded: "Our experience has demonstrated that a committee of citizens appointed to do a job involving community organization and response, needs finances for operation, otherwise it faces inevitable wasted efforts and frustrations. We trust that future 'official committees' will be assured the ways and means of carrying out their tasks in a manner creditable to both themselves and the appointing authority."

$5000 Clipped

Acting District Budget Officer William G. Wilding said a $5000 item had been inserted in the District Budget after it reached Congress at the request of Mrs. Gichner's committee. It was approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee, but was cut out in conference, he said.

Mrs. Wayne Coy, vice-chairman of the committee, said the commissioners had been asked to put a $5000 item in the budget. They had sent the request and a covering letter to Congress stating they had no objections, she said.

Commissioner Young said he had received Mrs. Gichner's letter yesterday. He said he didn't know what action would be taken on it.

15 Convicted Of Misconduct In Cafeteria

Tried to Get Negroes Served at Sholl's; New Case Under Way

Fifteen members of an interracial group were convicted yesterday of disorderly conduct in trying to get Negroes served at a downtown cafeteria.

The defendants, members of the Interracial Workshop, were each fined $25, but each was released under $25 bond pending an appeal.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King charged that the defendants, after they were denied service to the four Negroes in their group, remained in Sholl's Cafeteria, 511 14th st. nw. on July 7 and blocked the passage of other customers.

After a heated three-day trial, Judge Thomas D. Quinn of Municipal Court pronounced sentence, saying:

"Lawlessness under our system of government cannot be tolerated. If our system of government is to survive, no one can take the law into his own hands.

"I have no doubt whatever that you did take the law into your own hands and that you are each guilty as charged."

The defendants contended Negroes must be given service in restaurants here under statutes of 1872, 1873 and 1875. The 1872-1873 statutes were recently declared no longer valid by Judge Frank H. Myers.

Prosecutor King was in the apparently anomalous position of first having defended as valid the statute before Judge Myers and then prosecuting the 15 defendants for the method by which they sought to get the benefit of the statute.

Meanwhile, a new test case on the question was begun yesterday by the appearance of two Negroes and one white person at Thompson's Cafeteria, 14th st. and New York ave. nw. They asked for service and were refused.

They are Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, prominent Washington civic leader, the Rev. Arthur F. Elmes, pastor of the Peoples Congregational Church, and Miss Jean J. Williams of the Washington Fellowship.

After being denied service, they went to King with affidavits stating their position.

King said that he intends to prepare informations that will cause court action against Thompson's. The case Judge Myers decided was also against Thompson's.

Neighbor Shot

Tailor Held On Charge Of Assault

William M. Lee, 50, a short-order cook and tailor, was arrested on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon yesterday afternoon in the shooting of a next-door neighbor.

The neighbor, Alfred H. Pumphrey, 38, of 4423 Kane pl. ne., was in good condition at Casualty Hospital last night with a wound of the left leg.

Police said Lee, who lives at 4425 Kane pl., readily admitted the shooting, but couldn't give an explanation of the incident.

Pumphrey, police said, was on his porch and Lee was on his when the shot was fired.

Lee was arrested after police surrounded his home. He surrendered when police ordered him to come out.

He denied at first knowing where the gun was located, police reported, but later produced a .45-caliber automatic from beneath a flight of steps at the rear of his house.

Lee will appear in Municipal Court today.

Youth Acquitted In Gaithersburg Bicycle Fatality

Samuel Eugene Johnson, 22, of Route 3, Gaithersburg, Md., was acquitted on charges of manslaughter yesterday by Trial Magistrate Alger Y. Barbee in Rockville (Md.) Police Court.

A technical charge of manslaughter was placed against Johnson July 23 when a bicycle operated by Leonard Baker, 15, Route 2, Gaithersburg, collided with the side of his truck near Gaithersburg. The boy was dead when taken to Montgomery County General Hospital, Sandy Spring, Md.

Freed in May, Convict Again Under Arrest

Revisited Store Stuck Up in 1941, Victim Tells Police

Nine years ago Mrs. Goldie Prager was held up in the Aristo Dry Cleaners & Dyers branch store at 2408 14th st. nw. The same thing happened last Wednesday.

Police yesterday arrested Leonard R. O'Berg, 27, of 342 W st. nw., for Wednesday's holdup.

They said O'Berg also was the same man who held up the dry cleaning store nine years ago. He was released from prison last May 14, police said, after serving a nine-year sentence.

In Wednesday's holdup, police said, $13 was taken from the store. Recalling that in 1941 a series of laundry stores were robbed by a man with the same general description, police showed Mrs. Prager a picture of the man arrested then.

She said Wednesday's holdupman and the one in 1941 were the same.

Robbery squad detectives arrested O'Berg yesterday afternoon at 4th st. and New York ave. nw. Mrs. Prager, police said, identified him at headquarters.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, O'Berg was held under $1500 bond.

Pinball Ban To Be Asked In Arlington

By Judy Spivak
Post Reporter

Arlington's Commonwealth attorney announced yesterday he will ask the County Board to enact an ordinance outlawing pinball machines.

In a new offensive in a campaign that was started six months ago, Prosecutor Denman T. Rucker said he will ask the board on Saturday:

1. To pass an ordinance forbidding pinball, shuffleboard marble machines, and other skill ball devices, in drug stores, moving picture houses, bowling alleys, places where wine and beer are sold for consumption on the premises, and within 500 yards of any school, church or public playground.

2. To require persons who wish to install a "mechanical amusement device" (defined to include pinballs, etc., but not juke boxes, according to Rucker) to secure prior approval from the police chief and the electrical inspector.

3. To tax distributors of the mechanical amusement devices $1500, plus an additional tax of $200 for each nickel-operated machine, and $300 more per machine operated by larger coins.

The county taxes would be in addition to existing state levies of $1000 on distributors and $25 per machine.

The practical effect of these measures, if approved, Rucker said, "should be to eliminate" the devices.

Rucker's campaign against the pinball machines, began last January. He then declared the machines illegal and ordered distributor Hirsh De La Viez, president of the Hirsh Coin Machine Corp., of Washington, to remove a dozen recently installed machines.

De La Viez declined, insisting there was nothing illegal about his machines, which he said grant no free plays.

Earlier this month, County Board Chairman Daniel L. Dugan said he had "reached the conclusion" the pinball machines should be banned. He urged Rucker to "formalize" his declared opinion that the machines are against Virginia law.

Rucker said yesterday he still considers the pinball games "technically illegal," if they are readily convertible to free-game pay-offs. However, he said, the recommended ordinance would cover other coin operated games of skill as well.

Quintet Arrested At Outing of Auto Dealers in Maryland

Five men arrested on disorderly conduct charges at the Washington auto dealers' outing at Manor Club, Norbeck, Md., July 14, forfeited $7.50 collateral each yesterday in Rockville Police Court.

The men were arrested after a group of nonmembers became involved in a friendly game at the Washington Automotive Trade Association party and were alleged to have won $5000 before one of the members became suspicious. The group took to their heels and fled from the club.

Excited auto dealers hastily formed a posse, gave chase and captured three men. The captives were delighted to be rescued by county police. One of the men had been stripped to his trousers by the angry auto men and all three told police they had been stripped of all the cash in their pockets. Police later arrested two other men.

The auto dealers refused to place charges against the men and police finally had to release them. The five arrested persons were present in the melee, police said. The association said they were not members.

Those who forfeited collateral were John F. Rybikowski, 50; Carl Gold, 55, and James Puluso, 50, all of Baltimore, Md.; William H. Phillips, 52, who gave his address to police as 1318 11th st. nw., and Elmer W. Resecker, 52, whose address was listed by police as 530 3d st. nw.

Husband's Death Laid to Overdose Of Sleeping Pills

A Southwest Washington man was pronounced dead in his apartment last night after he apparently took an overdose of sleeping pills, police said.

The dead man was Andy Chotvacs, 41, of 144 Danbury st. sw. He was found about 6:45 p. m. by his wife, Diana.

Homicide detectives said an empty box marked "sleeping pills" was found near the body. Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner, said a note indicating ill health also was found.

Chotvacs, according to detectives, recently resigned his job. The city directory lists him as a Government clerk.

Takoma Man Nailed by Court For Picking Up Loose Boards

Eugene A. Egidio, of 8613 Carroll ave., Takoma Park, learned this from Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court.

Judge Bowie imposed a $5 "lesson fee" on Egidio, but suspended payment.

Egidio was charged with larceny of 13 pieces of two-by-two lumber, eight feet long. The charges were made by Harry E. Gorin, president of the Gorin Bros., Inc., builders, of 8113 Carroll ave., Takoma Park.

Egidio admitted picking up the pieces, which he said were scattered along the street right-of-way in a subdivision under construction. He contended they were abandoned.

In finding Egidio guilty, Judge Bowie declared: "I've got to convince people they can't just pick up things because they are not tied down. A man can't stand over his property all the time and guard it with a shot gun."

'How to Stop Killing Yourself'

A Little Liquor Goes a Long Way

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a series of articles by Dr. Steincrohn in which he says too many of us are killing ourselves, unconsciously. These articles are condensations from the book, "How to Stop Killing Yourself," just published by Wilfred Funk, Inc. The author is a specialist in internal medicine with 25 years of practice.

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M. D.

CHAPTER SIX

If you are an adult, there is about one chance in two that liquor touches your lips.

It has been estimated that there are about 50 million social drinkers in this country, about three million excessive drinkers, and 750,000 persons who suffer from chronic alcoholism.

Moderate or social drinking is not harmful. If you are on the elderly side, an ounce or two of liquor a day will be beneficial.

However, if you think that alcohol is a cure-all for a cold, or shock, or snake bite, you might as well take milk: it will do you more good.

For years I have been advising most of my patients over 40 to take an ounce or two of liquor daily. In all that time I do not believe that I have sent one person along the rocky road to chronic alcoholism.

A daily ounce or two promotes sociability, makes for good companionship, increases the appetite and the enjoyment of food, promotes good sleep, and acts like a sharp knife to cut the thick rope of tension which ties man to his work.

I have had hundreds of testimonials from patients after I have convinced them of the wisdom of taking a glass of sherry or a martini before dinner. Life from 6 o'clock on has become more enjoyable. They tell me that people who do not take a drink before dinner do not know what it is to really live.

After observing such persons for almost 20 years, I have yet to find one alcoholic among them. In other words, if you have not begun to drink alcohol before 40, the chances are you will never turn out to be a chronic alcoholic. Chronic alcoholics usually become addicted in early manhood or womanhood—even during adolescence.

What is the definition of a chronic alcoholic? He is one who drinks so much and so often that he cannot fulfill obligations, he cannot do full justice to his job, and he suffers in health.

We are beginning as a society to grow up in our attitude towards these unfortunates. Now we know that these people need all the help they can get. They are sick. They have a sense of insecurity, a feeling of being lost, an overwhelming depression and unhappiness, which makes them reach automatically for the bottle.

We must recognize that alcoholism is an urge to destruction. It is an urge to forgetfulness. Unconsciously, the addict pours liquor down his throat in order to destroy his body.

His body, as far as he is concerned, is unimportant when weighed against his emotional conflicts; against his unwillingness and inability to adjust himself to his surroundings; against his ability to face realities.

You are either a teetotaler, a social drinker, an excessive drinker, or a chronic alcoholic. Probably you know just where you fit in.

If you are a social drinker, you can take it or leave it. If your wife has forgotten to mix the pre-dinner martini, you may even forget to remind her about it. Or, having become used to your nightly ounce or two, you may miss it. Nevertheless, you will never go higher than this quota — except on a weekend or special party when you may have three or four highballs. In other words, liquor is something you enjoy, but which you can live without.

If you are an excessive drinker, you are the fellow who takes six or seven cocktails at a party two or three times a week; perhaps three or four beers a day; and three or four ounces of whisky at night after work. Perhaps you also have a martini or two at lunch, and go off on a bender for a day or two every three or four months.

With all this drinking, though, you are able to work, meet your friends, and be known as a jolly good fellow. Most excessive drinkers can stop short of becoming chronic alcoholics. But how are you to know if you fall into that class? Often the dividing line between excessive drinking and chronic alcoholism is very thin.

The safest plan for an excessive drinker to follow is to become a moderate one. It is easier to cut down from eight cocktails to three at a party, from four beers to one a day, from four nightly one-ounce drinks to one, than to pull yourself up by your own bootstraps to sobriety after you have fallen deep into the class of chronic alcoholics.

Alcoholics Anonymous, which now has a membership of over 50,000 persons, has performed miracles in many instances. Members work out their problems between themselves—because the organization feels that a chronic alcoholic can only understand and be helped by another alcoholic.

The alcoholic must be saved from himself. It can be done only if he is convinced that he is committing slow suicide which is prompted by an inner urge to destroy himself. Only when he can find out why he wants to destroy himself will he be able to forswear alcohol permanently.

END OF SERIES.

Big Names Desert

TV Cutting Swath In Autumn Radio

By C. E. Butterfield

NEW YORK (AP).—Although schedules are not yet complete, it already is apparent that the "big name" roster in network radio for the fall will have some notable gaps. That's due principally to switches to television, a trend considerably more pronounced than a year ago.

GROUCHO

Among the missing will be Eddie Cantor, Jimmy Durante, Frank Sinatra, Burns and Allen, Fred Allen again, and for the time being Fred Waring, all because they will be in television.

On NBC, where previous to talent transfers to CBS a couple of seasons ago Sunday was big name night, the stress is being centered on Tuesday for the second year. There Fanny Brice, Bob Hope and Fibber and Molly will have to carry most of the week's load with the possible help of Phil and Alice should they make a reported move from Sunday. The only addition is Groucho Marx, formerly CBS and ABC, as Ed Gardner, Dennis Day and Judy Canova continue to contribute their share. Not all of this roster will be exclusive radio, for at least Hope, Marx and Fibber are expected to give part of their attention to TV.

The CBS lineup again will center in Jack Benny, Edgar Bergen, Amos and Andy and Red Skelton, all on Sunday night as last year. The other six nights will have to rely upon Bing Crosby, Arthur Godfrey and Gene Autry. Some of these—Godfrey, Autry and Amos and Andy—are billed in TV, too.

ABC, which has Ozzie and Harriet, lists Ginny Simms returning to radio as its only other star personality so far scheduled.

Along with the swing into TV has been the tendency of some talent, heretofore night only, to take on daylight programs as sponsors switch some of their efforts from evening hours.

BUDDY ROGERS, who recently left network radio of ABC for a New York-only series on WOR of MBS, has just been signed for his first regular television show. It is an exclusive video deal with Dumont to put on a live program once a week, beginning in September.

FOOTBALL television gradually is taking schedule form. Latest additions are two Yale home games from New Haven on October 14 and November 18 for the Dumont hookup.

These will come on the weekends when the network is not telecasting Notre Dame from South Bend. Last year Dumont put on several Big Ten events, but this year that conference has banned live television.

Of the other three TV networks, CBS has lined up selected home games of Army at West Point, Columbia at New York and Navy at Baltimore. ABC also may pick up a college game or two, depending on the outcome of present negotiations, but for the most part will concentrate on 15 pro games of the National Football League for the second season.

NBS, which last year had the Army games, still is working on its plans. The fact that some college authorities have begun to look askance on television has tended to handicap schedule arrangements.

ALTHOUGH the summer season isn't anywhere near over yet, programs will begin to come back within a week or so. Among the first is the video weekly comedy, "Mama," with Peggy Wood, which is to resume on CBS-TV August 4. Another, the radio Roy Rogers, will return to MBS August 6 after a five weeks' vacation.

About the same time, still another summer replacement will be showing up for CBS radio. This will be Strawhat Concert, to take over for four weeks from Al Goodman's Music in the Air, which itself was a replacement.

LATIN AMERICA'S first two television stations now are on the air with test patterns preliminary to formal openings. Latest to start up was radio TUPI, Sao Paulo, Brazil, which followed by a week the first tests by Mexico's XHTV in the capital.

Pennsy's Net In June Soars To $5,216,406

By S. Oliver Goodman

Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday reported net income of $5,216,406 in June, as compared with a deficit of $948,768 in the same 1949 month.

The excellent earnings last month brought the total net to $6,174,595 for the first half of this year, a drop of only $105,702 from the same 1949 period. Strikes and a general dip in business brought about the income drop in the first five months.

Western Maryland Railroad, $2,177,445; off $509,502.

RECORD MONTH: June was the best month in the 41-year history of Smith's Transfer & Storage Co., Inc., of Washington, President Arthur C. Smith Jr., reported yesterday. Long distance and local moving, packing, and local crating storage were at all-time highs, he said. July business is continuing at a busy pace, but not up to June's record. Smith also announced the promotion of W. W. Flynn to manager of the personnel and payroll departments.

OFFERING: About 40 percent of a $300,000 stock offering of Parking Services, Inc., of Washington has been sold to date, according to James T. DeWitt, head of the local underwriting firm. The stock is being offered in units of two shares of Class A and one share of Class B at a price of $5 a unit. The corporation, headed by Arthur G. Dezendorf of Washington, initially is constructing a special type of auto parking building at 1426 K st. nw. The 16-story structure will be equipped with a "Park-O-Mat" device which will automatically park or deliver a car within 50 seconds, according to Dezendorf. Plans call for the corporation to set up a chain of automatic parking buildings, after the pioneering project here. Franchises already have been obtained for one in Baltimore and another in Philadelphia.

HOUSING AID: The life insurance companies had $8,232,000,000 invested in housing financing at the start of 1950, compared with $3,819,000,000 five years ago, the Institute of Life Insurance reported. Of the housing mortgages held by the insurance companies on January 1, $5,970,000,000 was for units of from one to four families. The remaining $2,262,000,000 represented mortgages on multi-family housing.

ODD LOTS: Auto output this week is estimated at 183,527 units, against 178,964 last week . . . Chevrolet's car and truck sales exceeded the million mark a week ago. Last year, Chevrolet didn't pass the million mark until mid-September . . . Seaboard Air Line Railroad has ordered 66 Diesel locomotives and 1225 freight cars at a total cost of $16,100,000 . . . Chicago Transit Authority has placed orders totaling $10,848,860 for 500 buses and 70 elevated and subway cars . . . Remington Rand stockholders have approved transfer of the company's idle plant and property in Syracuse to Syracuse University.

EARNINGS: Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. reported net income of $19,358,325, or $2.14 a share, for the first six months, against $15,570,288, or $1.72 a share, in the same 1949 period. Other earnings statements on a per-share basis:

No Time for Investment Smugness, Bache Says

In an appraisal of the effects of war developments on the economy and on securities, Bache & Co. declared that "while the shares of some companies which appeared attractive prior to the outbreak of hostilities may now be in a less favorable position, conversely others may do relatively better under existing circumstances."

Stating that "this is no time for investment complacency," the investment firm said that "the military background will play the dominant role in determining the course of the entire economy and of the stock market."

Nats Win on 3 Hits, 3-2, but Chisox Take 2d, 6-3

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE UNRELIABLE Red Sox, who were supposed to roll over and play dead for the rest of the season when Ted Williams came out of the All-Star game with a broken elbow, have lately been kicking up an awful fuss from underneath that shroud. Instead of doing a quick fold-up, they rebounded as a snarling, fighting ball team.

They went into Detroit and knocked over the league-leading Tigers two in a row and hauled themselves within 4½ games of the top with six straight victories, (before yesterday's loss) unruffled by the absence of the man who is supposed to be baseball's finest hitter.

Povich

You'd have to say the Red Sox are the most baffling team in the baseball business, anyway. They were supposed to win the pennant in a breeze, only to struggle far back into fourth place for half the season with Williams healthy. Their two best pitchers of last season, Mel Parnell and Ellis Kinder, were dismal flops.

And then, Wiliams got hurt, and the Sox did an about-face. Without him, they won 10 of 14 games since the All-Star contest. They're playing the most illogical kind of ball.

YET IT ISN'T the first time that suspicion has attached to Williams' value to the Red Sox. A couple of years ago when the Sox were floundering and far out of it, Williams came down with an injury and was out of the lineup. Whereupon the Red Sox took off on a 13-game winning streak and got themselves into a pennant play-off with the Indians.

You couldn't say rightfully, though, that Williams is not a valuable guy to a ball club. With all those hits he makes, he has to be. Maybe it should be put down to high coincidence that the Sox have been able to do better without him. Perhaps when he's in there they look to him for too much. His absence takes the pressure off, maybe, and those other good ball players, on their own, begin to play better ball.

The other day, when Art Houtteman of the Tigers held 'em to six hits and one run, the Red Sox weren't supposed to win, but they did, 1-0. On the day when they needed a shutout, they got it, from Parnell, of all people. All season, most clubs have been happy at the prospect of taking their whacks at Parnell, but the Tigers got only five hits off him.

TO MAKE the Red Sox comeback more puzzling, they've been winning during a period when big Walt Dropo, their early-season sensation, has been flopping miserably at bat. When both Williams and Dropo were slugging the ball, the Sox couldn't win. When Williams was hurt and Dropo's hitting dropped to a whisper, the Red Sox win. What do you make of it except that baseball is the goldarndest game, and such things sometimes happen.

Over that six-game winning span of the Red Sox, Dropo made exactly two hits in 27 times at bat. In their last four games, he went hitless. His contribution to the winning streak was an .052 average. Yet the Sox are now better placed in the race than at any time since the first ten days of the season.

Dropo's slump is a mystery all its own. When he was hitting close to .400 after breaking in this season, the league's pitchers were not greatly alarmed. They'd learn how to pitch to him on that second trip around, and cut him down to size. But he hit them as hard the next time around as before, and they were ready to concede that he had it. Now, all of a sudden, he can't buy a hit, and those home runs of his are getting rare.

THE BIG MAN for the Red Sox in their resurgence has been Billy Goodman, the first baseman-second baseman-outfielder, who moved into Williams' left-field job after the All-Star game and has been a ball of fire ever since. In the last eight games, Goodman has whacked out 32 hits for a .531 average and is playing left field as if to the manner born.

Goodman is Joe McCarthy's legacy to the Red Sox. McCarthy was always a Goodman man, and was content to go along with him as a first baseman until a baffling fungus infection on his hands forced him out of the lineup, and compelled the recall of Dropo from the minors. Goodman lost his first-base job to Dropo, but curiously enough at this time it is Goodman who is carrying the Sox while Dropo is something of a liability.

Somewhere in the comeback of the Red Sox there ought to be some mention of Steve O'Neill, their new manager. O'Neill has always been rated as more of a nice guy than an inspirational type. Exactly what O'Neill has been contributing to the Red Sox may be somewhat vague, but it must be noted that he now has them playing good ball, and his kind of direction obviously hasn't been hurting 'em any.

Tax Deal for Joe Unlikely

Pep to Fight Saddler Sept. 6; Decision Due Today on Louis

By Murray Rose

New York, July 27 (AP).—Boxing's hottest match finally was signed and sealed today when Featherweight Champion Willie Pep agreed to defend his crown once more against Sandy Saddler in Yankee Stadium, September 6.

At the same time that he closed for that eagerly awaited and long overdue "rubber" bout, President Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club said that he would issue a statement on the plans of Joe Louis at 11 a. m. (EST) tomorrow.

Norris has made no secret of the fact he would like to see the retired heavyweight champion pick up the gloves again and meet Ezzard Charles, the reigning NBA king, this September. The IBC has a Sept. 27 date open at the stadium just in case Louis "unretires."

Meanwhile, in Washington indications were that Louis' hopes for a compromise with the Internal Revenue Department were dim.

Louis proposed a deal whereby he would fight Charles if Internal Revenue would accept his purse in settlement of an old tax bill. Bureau officials wouldn't talk about Louis' tax status—the law forbids it—but they made it clear that the bureau isn't going into the fight promoting business.

Otherwise the bureau is indifferent as to how a taxpayer gets up his cash as long as it gets paid.

Bureau practice permits "compromise" of old claims when full payment is proved impossible, but getting a compromise is a real challenge, even for a champ. Agreement of this sort must be approved by a platoon of officials, right on up to the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Pep-Saddler "natural" took days of dickering. The champion will get 45 percent of the net gate and Saddler will collect 15 percent. Lou Viscusi, Pep's manager, tore up a Norris contract guaranteeing him $100,000 to make the match.

Kirby Highbe Hurls 3-1 No-Hitter

Columbus, Ohio, July 27 (AP).—Kirby Higbe hurled a 3-1 no-hit victory for Minneapolis over the Columbus Red Birds tonight in the American Association.

The Birds got their only run in the first inning when Solly Hemus walked, stole second, went to third on Jake Early's poor peg, and scored on a wild pitch.

Trout Halts Onrushing Bosox for 3d Time, 5-1

Detroit, July 27 (AP).—The veteran Paul (Dizzy) Trout turned back the Boston Red Sox, 5-1, on a neat nine-hitter today to protect the Detroit Tigers' slender American League lead.

It was Diz's third triumph over the Red Sox this year and came at the expense of Ellis Kinder who absorbed his fourth loss at the hands of Detroit. He has beaten the Tigers only once.

Four double plays and a two-run homer by Vic Wertz helped Trout salvage the Tigers' lone victory in a three-game series and also snap Boston's six-game winning streak.

Tigers Use Old Lineup

Manager Red Rolfe, who juggled his lineup when the Tigers went into a losing streak that saw them drop six of eight games, reverted to his "regular" batting order today and it paid dividends.

A crowd of 16,059 saw the Tigers climb all over Kinder in the first inning as they pushed over a pair of runs on three hits, a walk and a wild pitch.

Boston made it a 2-1 game as it got its lone tally in the fourth on Johnny Pesky's triple and Dom DiMaggio's single.

But Detroit bounced back with a three-run fifth inning featured by Wertz' sixteenth homer to grab a 5-1 lead which Trout guarded the rest of the way.

Dropo Ends Slump

Hoot Evers got one single in two tries to gain a little ground in his race with teammate George Kell, who went hitless in three tries in their duel for the American League batting lead.

Big Walt Dropo snapped out of his hitting slump by banging out two singles. The Red Sox first baseman's fourth inning safety was his first hit in 19 times at bat.

Stirnweiss' Hit in 9th Beats Yanks

St. Louis, July 27 (AP).—Ex-Yankee George Stirnweiss' ninth inning single with two men on enabled the St. Louis Browns to beat New York 3-2 here tonight. The winning pitcher was Al Widmar who gave up eight hits. The loser was Tommy Byrne who also allowed eight hits.

The blow by Stirnweiss drove across the run that broke a 2-2 deadlock in the ninth. Sherman Lollar opened the ninth with a single. Ken Wood flied out. Sievers walked. Stirnweiss then singled to left, scoring Lollar with the winning run.

COAN SCORES ON TRIPLE STEAL—Gil Coan, Washington left fielder, scores on a triple-steal play in the third inning of second game of double-header with the White Sox in Chicago yesterday. Catcher Gus Niarhos goes down on his knees for throw from Pitcher Randy Gumpert—too late to catch Coan. Sam Mele and Irv Noren were other two men who advanced on the triple steal. The Sox won the nightcap, 6-3, after losing the opener, 3-2. Umpire Jim Boyer calls the play

Mele Drives In 2 Runs to Give Hudson 10th Victory

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Chicago, July 27.—The Nats ran into two superb pitching performances by Billy Pierce and Randy Gumpert today and were lucky to get a split in their doubleheader with the Chicago White Sox.

Washington won the first game, 3-2, despite Pierce's one-hit pitching over seven and two-thirds innings. In the nightcap, Gumpert stopped the Nats with seven hits for a 6-3 triumph.

Sid Hudson of the Nats was nicked for nine hits in the opener, but he scattered them so well that he gained his tenth win against seven losses.

Pierce, a picture of southpawing perfection until Irv Noren ruined his no-hitter with a solid double in the seventh, lost control in the eighth and was yanked. His successor, Howie Judson, pitched a two-run single to Sam Mele.

That blow capped a three-run Nats' inning and decided the game. Gil Coan beat out a bunt in the ninth to give Washington its third and last hit. Outhit, 9-3, the Nats nevertheless took their twelfth victory in 16 games with Chicago so far this season.

Nats Couldn't Pierce Pierce

Until Mele came through with his game-winning single, the 23-year-old Pierce had southpawed the Nats back to the bench almost in order for six innings with a hopping fast ball and a sneaky three-quarters speed curveball.

Over that span, Pierce gave up no hits, two walks and had a 1-0 lead, the product of Pierce's own double and Philley's single.

Pierce was still trying to protect that 1-0 lead in the eighth when he lost his control completely. He walked Al Evans, Eddie Yost and Gil Coan to fill the bases with one out.

Gil Coan, running for Evans, scored the tying run as Noren rolled out to Eddie Robinson. Pierce walked Vernon to fill the bases again with his eighth pass and was replaced by Judson.

The righthander's first act was to pitch a single to Mele, whose low liner skidded past Thirdbaseman Hank Majeski for the two runs that meant the ball game.

Hudson Weakens, But Holds On

Hudson, who had retired 10 straight Chisox since the fourth, wavered in the eighth to yield the second Chicago run. Marv Rickert and Nelson Fox opened with singles. After Gordon Goldsberry pinch-hit into a double play, Chico Carrasquel singled Rickert across.

Hudson had excellent control of his sidearm stuff. He didn't walk a man.

The Nats packed three hits and all their three runs into the third inning of the nightcap.

Mickey Grasso opened with his first of three singles. Marrero singled, Coan walked to load the bases. Noren drove in a run with a short single, Vernon got the second one in a fly to the outfield, and Coan stole home for the final run.

The Sox bopped the Marrero for 10 hits in 5 1/3 innings, and he was charged with all six runs. Elmer Singleton, who replaced Marrero in the sixth inning, was touched for a two-run single off Pitcher Gumpert's bat to end the scoring.

It was only the second complete game in eight tries for Gumpert this season. He gave up only one hit in the last four innings.

The Chisox began chopping at the Nats' 3-0 lead right away with two in their half of the third. Fox

Cards Pound Dodgers, 13-3; Musial Hitless

Brooklyn, July 27 (AP).—Stan Musial's 30-game batting streak came to an end today when the St. Louis Cardinals outfielder failed to get a hit in five times at bat. His teammates, however, made up for this lapse by blasting five Brooklyn pitchers for 13 hits to fashion a 13-3 triumph over the Dodgers.

The victory gave the Cards the rubber of their three-game set but left them still a game and a half behind the league leading Philadelphia Phils who swamped the Chicago Cubs by the same score.

Newcombe's Injury Isn't Serious

Brooklyn, July 27 (AP).—X-ray pictures today showed no break or serious injury to Don Newcombe's right thumb. The Brooklyn right-hander hurt the thumb batting in Cincinnati last week and when it bothered him again yesterday the X-rays were made as a precautionary measure.

Trainer Dr. Harold E. Wender said the thumb may bother Newcombe for most of the season but that it should not interfere with him taking a regular turn on the mound.

Pain Prevents Holding Bat

Ted Williams Believes He Will Be Back by September

Boston, July 27 (AP).—Ted Williams, the Red Sox' injured star left fielder, has been taking secret workouts at Fenway Park determined to be back in the lineup by September.

One of the game's greatest hitters, who injured his left arm when he smashed into a concrete wall while chasing a fly ball from Pittsburgh's Ralph Kiner's bat in the All-Star game of July 11, declared after his hour-and-a-half workout:

"Gee, I'd like to be playing in September—and I believe I can."

His exercise schedule of the past three days, dressed in full uniform except for the shirt, has been to nurse his arm in a whirlpool bath for 20 minutes; have a physiotherapist massage the arm for 15 or 20 minutes; then take special exercises on his back to loosen up the shoulder and arm muscles and finally to have a boy throw grounders so that he will have to bend and further exercise these muscles and also keep his throwing arm in shape.

Williams said that already he had tried to hold a bat but it had hurt his fingers so much he had to postpone batting practice for a while.

Spahn Notches 12th, Beating Pirates, 5-3

Boston, July 27 (AP).—Lefty Warren Spahn hurled the Boston Braves back into the National League's third spot by notching his twelfth win of the season with a 5-3 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates tonight before a slim 8302 crowd.

Spahn had a shutout until the Pirates bunched three of their eight hits for all of their runs in the ninth inning.

The Braves clinched matters against Starter Cliff Chambers, also a lefthander, by banging out four hits for two runs in the third inning after scoring in each of the previous frames.

Simmons Wins No. 14 Before Going to Camp

Philadelphia, July 27 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies held to their one and one-half game lead in the National League today as Southpaw Curt Simmons racked up his fourteenth pitching victory with a 13-3 decision over the Chicago Cubs.

Simmons, who leaves Saturday for two weeks at a National Guard encampment, kept the Cubs' seven hits well scattered, fanned five and walked the same number. He is the first pitcher in the National circuit to win 14 games.

Del Ennis' struck the big blows in the Phils' nine-hit offensive. He cleared the loaded bases with a double in the seventh and hit a grand slam homer in the eighth for a total of seven runs driven in.

Nine Under Par

Alexander's 63 Leads at Sioux City

Sioux City, Iowa, July 27 (AP).—Skip Alexander, the former Duke University star, smashed out a record 63 today to grab the lead at the end of 18 holes in the Sioux City Open golf championship.

The tall, bespectacled Southerner dropped a 9-foot putt on the eighth hole for a birdie 3 to take the front spot away from Sam Snead and Jack Burke, jr., who posted 65's.

Alexander, professional at the Deanne Hill Club, Knoxville, Tenn., toppled the 6506-yard Elmwood course record by two strokes. His 63 also was the lowest score made this summer along the PGAs tournament trail.

The 31-year-old Alexander was nine strokes below Elmwood's par 72. He was out in 32, three under, and raced home in 31.

Snead poped up with some more of his putting perils or he would have had a 64. He missed a 4-footer on 18 for a birdie 3. Sam had 31-34 and Burke 32-33.

Paul O' Leary, the 22-year-old Bismarck, N. Dak., professional; Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill., and Ed (Porky) Oliver of Seattle were grouped at 66. Oliver's 32 on the front side included an eagle 2 on the par 4 352-yard ninth hole. Porky holed out a 75-yard low approach from the woods.

Jimmy Demaret, colorfully togged as usual, had a flashy 30 for his first nine, but fell back to a 39 finish for a 69. He had four putts on the lip of the cup on the second nine.

Jim Ferrier, winner of the St. Paul Open, in a playoff with Snead last Monday, also had a first-round 69.

Five entrants had 67s. They were Earl Stewart, jr., Dallas; Bob Toski, Northampton, Mass.; Jerry Barber, Philadelphia; Ted Kroll, New Hartford, N. Y., and Chuck Klein, San Antonio.

Baugh Gives Gilmer Boost

Los Angeles, July 27.—Sammy Baugh of the Washington Red Skins was a bit talkative today.

"We've got a lot of stuff this year," Sam drawled as he watched signal practice; "and we'll surprise a lot of people before this season's over."

"Watch that Harry Gilmer this year," Sam said. "He's going to be about the best quarterback in the league. Last year was his first full season in the T, and he did pretty good. This year, with more experience under his belt, he'll be great. In fact, I don't think I'll start too much. Harry deserves to."

Some talk, when you consider it comes from probably the best passer football has ever known.

"And this kid from Indiana, Sebek," Sam continued, he'll be all right in a year. He looks good, he's smooth and he's calm in scrimmage. Of course he's not looking across the line at the Eagles or Bears, but he still doesn't get ruffled."

Fullback Pete Stout passed cigars here otday after his wife, Maxine, presented him with a 7-pound 11-ounce boy, Garry Owen. It's their first child.

The District Recreation Board yesterday adopted a formal resolution announcing it will ask the Commissioners this fall to include funds in the 1952 budget for taking over the public golf courses.

They Destroy Fish

Group Would Drive Porpoises Into Sea

By Ralph Murdock

A RELEASE from Annapolis, Md., states that the Tidewater Fisheries Commission is considering methods to drive the hungry porpoises back into the Atlantic Ocean.

Murdock

Commission Chairman David H. Wallace says, "a considerable number of the marine mammals have been reported in the Chesapeake Bay this year and they seem to be more abundant than usual."

Wallace himself counted several groups of the speedy porpoises along the shore between Chesapeake Beach and Thomas Point, just below Annapolis. The porpoises, which Wallace branded as destructive because they eat large numbers of fish, may have been instrumental in an unusual haul of croakers netted by Tidewater District Inspector George L. (Ted) Ball near the mouth of the Severn River.

Ball spotted a huge school of the silvery gray fish near the surface of the water. Croakers, or hardheads, are strictly bottom feeders and they have never been known here to swim higher than a couple of feet off the floor of the bay. Ball backed his boat into the school of fish and with three dips of his net brought in 79.

Wallace and Ball believe that the scavenging propoises may have frightened the croakers away from their regular haunts and caused them to mob near the surface.

Porpoises are not the only "destructive" nuisances that are helping to kill sport fishing in this area. We refer particularly to the illegal haul seiners who frequent the waters of the lower Patuxent River and the upper Chesapeake Bay—and get away with it. For these maurauders confiscation of their boats and nets and a fine for each illegally taken fish has been suggested.

Where They Are Biting:

BOCKFISH — Solomon's Island area is THE spot. Second choice — Eastern Bay off Bloody Point Lighthouse. Chumming is best.

WHITE PERCH - Holland Point seems tops. Chum with grass shrimp. Fish on bottom. Use light sinkers.

Paddlers To Race in New York

By Happy Walker

Area boating interest shifts from sail and power boat races this weekend to the manly art of canoeing and the national championships, slated Sunday at Lake Sebago, Bear Mountain, New York.

Four lusty crews of seasoned Washington paddlers, two from Washington Canoe Club and two from Dempsey's Canoe Club, will be match their brawn and prowess against the nation's best.

Coached by Jack Hazzard, Dempsey's Canoe Club will depend on Les Derloo, Dick Handler, George Stoertz and Vince Baratta to repeat their 1946 junior championship victory. The crew has been putting in overtime training pointing for Sunday's banner event.

Dempsey's Canoe Club senior crew will be composed of such veterans as Chuck Barndt, Andy Thomas, Bill Schorr and Preston Browning.

Washington Canoe Club, three-time national senior championship winners since 1933, will also have their crack junior and senior crews in top form for the Lake Sebago classic. Jim Ruckert, Bill Haven, jr., Frank Havens and Dusty Rhodes will carry the colors in the senior division. Rhodes, veteran of many a national meet, is president of the Washington Canoe Club.

Georgetowners will pin their junior crew hopes on such stalwarts as Frank Fitzgerald, Bob Evans, Dick Leslie, Rick Welsh, Jack Ruckert and Jimmy Livesay.

Walter Collier, hard-working chairman of the Washington Sailing Marine, reports that his committee has decided to extend the schedule of weekend sailing events originaly scheduled through July only.

Spectator and participant interest in the Saturday and Sunday novice sail races have had the race committee working overtime to take care of the applicants. Designed to give neophyte sailors an opportunity to learn the tricks of sail racing, the series, which got under way in mid-June, has been swamped with hearty sailing hopefuls.

Jack Blank, widely known Washington sportsman and chairman of the President's Cup Regatta trophy committee, has swung into action to carry out the arduous task of securing sponsors for the wide assortment of trophies to be awarded at the President's Cup speed boat races, September 17 and 18. Blank and his committee raised a fund of over $8000 from civic minded sponsors last year.

Slot Machine Payoff Costs Woman $200

Mrs. Mildred Hamel, 37, of 5426 Riverdale rd., East Riverdale, was found guilty in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday of setting up and maintaining a gaming table, after a patron testified that he played a slot machine only for fun.

Mrs. Hamel, who operates a store with her husband, was accused by Police Pvt. J. P. Kearns of paying a customer off for a "hit" on a slot machine last October 28. Her husband, Blair, 37, was cleared of a similar charge. He was not present at the time of the payoff.

Judge Alan Bowie found Mrs. Hamel guilty despite her plea that the $4.50 she admitted giving the customer represented change from a $5 bill and was not a payoff. He fined her $200.

The customer, Frank McCready, of 12204 Middle rd., Silver Spring, testified he had not played the machine in the hope of gaining a payoff, but because he "liked to watch the wheels go around."

Policeman Kearns said he watched Mrs. Hamel leave the counter, examine the machine, which was in an adjoining room, and return to the counter for the money she gave McCready. Kearns, who was not in uniform at the time, said he entered the store to purchase groceries.

"I have knowledge of what goes on with these slot machines in back rooms," Judge Bowie commented after the testimony was heard, "and I'm convinced there was a payoff. I'm neither a 10-year-old child nor an old man in his dotage to be fooled by this kind of testimony."

Hamel, who was serving as a petit juror of the Prince Georges County Circuit Court at the time of his arrest, was excused then from further duty by Judge Charles C. Marbury after the jurist learned of the arrest.

Arlington Seeks 19 Bus Drivers

Arlington County's School Board wants 19 careful drivers to man a brand new fleet of school buses, scheduled to go in operation this fall.

The part-time jobs will require about six hours work per day, split shifts, and will pay $1.30 an hour. All drivers will receive a week's training with pay late in August.

Applicants should see William C. Vest, new supervisor of school transportation, at the Arlington school offices, 2732 Wilson blvd.

House Comes to Relief Of 'Mrs. Under Baggage'

The House yesterday came to the relief of Nancy Takes Enemy Under Baggage.

That's the name of a Sioux Indian woman living in Kyles, S. Dak.

A bill passed by the House and sent to the Senate would allow the Secretary of the Interior to sell on behalf of "Mrs. Under Baggage" 160 acres of land she owns in the Pine Ridge Indian reservation in South Dakota. She needs the proceeds for medical expenses.

Action on Ireland Delayed

The House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday postponed action on a resolution opposing Irish partition and indications were it would be shelved for several weeks.

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

EVELYN LEAR, an adopted Washingtonian with a wide musical background, is making her debut at the Old New Orleans this week. The guests in the Sazarac Room, the dimly lighted eating, drinking and dancing place downstairs, received her enthusiastically.

While growing up in New York City, she took piano, singing, French horn and dancing. For singing, she studied under Dusolina Gianini in California and Julliard in her home town. She learned the French horn from a Boston Symphony player and was the first woman French hornist to play under Leonard Bernstein at Tanglewood.

All this may seem far removed from the Old New Orleans. But it accounts for her facility with songs, and her ease and charm. Here, Evelyn's songs mostly are ballads and show tunes—with just one aria, "Habnera" from Carmen, thrown in.

Other engagements of the dark-haired musician include television for WOIC and NBC, and modeling for Woodward and Lothrop and Hecht's. Her regular TV spot was on the WOIC variety show, "Little Top." Last February she gave her first concert in Washington at Philips Art Gallery.

As for Evelyn's future ambitions, after such a varied preparation, she remarks: "I'm not putting myself in any mold as yet. I just love to sing."

THERE'S a new dining room that will be a boon to midtowners these months when it's too hot to go a block farther than necessary. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Gerry have opened it in the Chastleton Hotel at 16th and R.

The fod is styled very much on the order of that at the Old New Orleans. Louisiana Iron Pot Chicken Pie, Gumbo Soup, special concoctions of shrimp and many another of the real old Creole dishes are here. Prices for a full dinner range from $1.40 to $1.85. Drinks are served.

The dining room is large and airy, opening onto the green courtyard of the Chastleton. Decor is in a light, cool green with flowered panels. Mr. Gerry, who used to be maitre d'hotel of the Statler dining rooms, believes in pleasing. Asked the hours of his dining room, he said, "Oh, from 2:30 till people stop coming in the morning." Starting in September, the hours will be even more accommodating. Their day will begin then with lunch.

Blueberries Will Make You Feel Rosy

By Lucia Brown

IT'S FUN to get the blues—when they come in the form of blueberries!

These frosty purplish globes of goodness get better every year. It shows what a little cultivation can do. They're a far cry today from the wild blueberries of 25 years ago—bigger, sweeter, jucier. The season's longer now, too, extending well into August.

As to their versatility, that's proven by the fact that they fit into every meal of the day. For breakfast, they're wonderful in muffins or pancakes, scattered over breakfast food, or just served with sugar and sweet thick cream. Luncheon and dinner bring them in salads, in pies, in cobblers, and a dozen other delicious dishes. Recipes follow for a few of these treats bound to please your family:

BLUEBERRY CREAM PUFFS

¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup boiling water
½ cup sifted enriched flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons sugar
1 pint cultivated blueberries

Add boiling water to butter or margarine and stir until it melts. Combine flour and salt and add all at once, stirring vigorously. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture leaves the side of the pan and forms a ball that does not separate. Remove from heat.

Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition until mixture is smooth. Drop by tablespoons 2 inches apart on greased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) for 15 minutes. Then reduce heat to 325 degrees for 25 minutes. Cool.

Whip cream until it begins to get thick. Stir in sugar gradually and beat until cream is stiff. Stir in blueberries, reserving a few for garnish. Remove top from cream puffs and heap cream and blueberry mixture into bottom of shells. Replace top and garnish with remaining berries. This recipe serves six.

RICH BLUEBERRY SHORTCAKE

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon double-acting baking powder
3 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1/3 cup shortening
2/3 cup milk (about)
Melted butter or margarine
Sweetened blueberries

Sift together dry ingredients; cut in shortening with pastry blender or with two knives until the size of green peas. Add milk, stirring quickly until a soft but not sticky dough is formed. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently to shape into smooth ball. Roll lightly or pat ¼-inch thick. Cut with floured 3-inch biscuit cutter.

Place half of rounds in shallow baking pan, brush with melted butter and cover with remaining halves. Brush tops with butter and bake in hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) about 15 minutes. Separate halves and spread with softened butter. Cover bottom halves with fruit. Lay other halves on top and cover with fruit. Serve with plain or whipped cream. This makes six portions.

BLUEBERRY CAKE

½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1/3 cup milk
1½ cups blueberries

Cream butter or other shortening and sugar together until light and fluffy. Add well-beaten egg yolks and vanilla. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with milk to creamed mixture, beating well after each addition. Fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites.

Pour third of batter into round or oblong cake pan which has been lined with wax paper. Cover with blueberries and then with remaining batter. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 35 minutes. Turn out. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar. Serve hot. It can be served with stewed blueberries if desired. This makes enough for eight persons.

Chutney-Making Time Brings Query For Good Recipe; Anne Offers Two Varieties to Serve With Indian Curry

DEAR ANNE:

I plan to serve a lot of curry next winter and chutney to go with it. This is chutney-making time, and I would appreciate a good recipe or two.

Mrs. M. J. P., Washington.

Chutney, long-time favorite in India and England, is certainly the ideal companion for curry. You can make good spicy chutneys at home with either of the following recipes. Use a good chopper to speed the job and fill the jars to overflowing for safe keeping.

ENGLISH CHUTNEY

3 green peppers, seeded
1 medium-sized onion
13 tart apples, peeled
1½ cups seeded raisins
1 tablespoon salt
3 cups vinegar
1½ cups sugar
1½ tablespoons ginger
1½ cups tart grape jelly
¾ cup lemon juice
Grated rind of 1 lemon

Chop peppers, onions, apples, raisins. Place all ingredients in large saucepan and simmer about 1 hour, or until quite thick. Turn into hot sterilized jars and seal. This makes 4 pints.

APPLE CHUTNEY

4 quarts apples, peeled
2 onions
1 clove garlic
1 cup seeded raisins
5 cups vinegar
¼ cup white mustard seed
2 tablespoons ground ginger
1 pod hot red pepper
1 cup brown sugar

Chop apples, onions, and raisins. Add half of the vinegar. Cook until soft. Add remaining ingredients. Cook until thick, stirring occasionally. Pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal at once. This makes 8 to 9 pints.

DEAR ANNE:

I'm interested in removing a stain made by cod liver oil spilled on a cotton dress. The stain has been ironed into the dress, which will probably make it much more difficult to remove. Can you tell me how I can get it out? Also where to obtain the spot and stain bulletin which you mentioned a couple of months ago as being issued by a Government agency.

Mrs. R. D. R., Falls Church, Va.

I can't offer much hope for removing the codliver oil stain now that it's set. But I can tell you where to get that booklet so you can take quicker action next time.

The fact is that fresh codliver oil stains are almost colorless and easily removed with dry cleaning fluid followed by sponging with warm, soapy water. After they've been set by the iron, however, they turn brown and are practically impossible to remove, even with bleaches. You might try dropping a bit of hydrogen peroxide on the stain with a medicine dropper. Repeated applications may lighten the stain, though the bleach can affect the color of the dress, too.

The bulletin, "Stain Removal from Fabrics," can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. Ask for Farmer's Bulletin No. 1474, issued by the Department of Agriculture.

Market Memo

Fish Are the Best Buy

THE same high prices on meat are due to greet you at the butcher's counter this weekend. They won't be any higher than last week though, dealers say, and pork may be a few cents lower.

FROZEN FILLETS—Ocean perch, haddock, and cod—will be the best fish buy. The local catch has been small of late, though you'll find some sea bass, porgies, croakers, and bluefish. A few red snappers are arriving from the South. Frozen breaded oysters and shrimp are a good bet for a quick luxury meal, though expensive.

STRINGBEANS are plentiful for the coming weekend and slightly cheaper. Tomatoes are of poor quality as a result of rainy weather. Nice peaches are coming in but prices are high. It's between season on cantaloupes. The Arizona crop is running out and the California ones just beginning to come in. A few early apples—Williams Reds and Transparents, mainly—are seen in the markets.

EGG PRICES have gone up a couple of cents a dozen at wholesale, which undoubtedly means you'll pay a few pennies more. Chickens are selling at about the same prices as last weekend.

Paper Cuts Down Your Housework

Let paper work for you during the hot days ahead, advises the August American Home. Use paper toweling for lining the high-chair tray, cleaning up small spills, wiping off tiny fingerprints. Use it, too, for wiping out the telephone mouthpiece with disinfectant, and for dusting plant leaves.

The new plastic-coated, nonabsorbent paper plates will cut down dishwashing hours. Moisture-and-vapor-proof paper is fine for home freezing; waxed bags keep school lunches fresh; insulated paper bags make perfect hot or cold picnic dish containers.

Your Figure, Madame

If You Want to Be Slim, Better Go for a Good Swim

By Ida Jean Kain

IF IT were not for swimming, there wouldn't be any bathing beauties, but many girls write that they won't get into a swim suit because they are ashamed of their figures . . . or that they do not swim . . . and so their figures go completely to pot as summer slithers on.

IDA JEAN KAIN

Girls, regardless of your figure or whether or not you can swim, if you really want a good figure come fall, then get into a bathing suit. You don't have to be an expert to get beautiful results . . . in fact, you don't even need to swim. We're going to take our calisthenics in the water. The added resistance of the water makes any exercise twice as effective.

Let's say you need to put some tone in the brace of middle muscles and in the back hip muscles . . . here's your swim exercise: Hang onto the side of the pool or to the dock, in water about waist deep. Now, holding right knee stiff, push backwards against the water with the right leg . . . push as far back as you can, swing forward, and push back again, 6 counts, later more. Then repeat with the left leg.

If it's the thigh muscles that are flabby; instead of pushing straight back, angle to the side and back, again pushing against the water. Then swing the leg straight out to the side, and cross in front .

Catch hold of the side of the pool with both hands and practice the side-scissors . . . that adapts itself well to aquatic exercises. The idea is to hold knees stiff and shuttle in a scissors action. It's a much harder exercise against the water, but it's beautifully rewarding.

Of course if you swim . . . all the better. It doesn't matter which stroke you use—they are all streamlining. The most difficult is the old-fashioned breast stroke—that is, it takes the most effort—but it's guaranteed to build feminine curves and cover the collarbone beautifully.

My favorite is the backstroke. It's floating with free-wheeling action, and it's the best shoulder-straightener-outer I know.

How to Get a Husband

Lester, the Married Man, Gives A Girl Nothing but Heartaches

The Lesters of the world will always be with us. And there will always be the pitiful creature who will chase the will-o-the-wisp under the illusion that through the Lesters of the world they're going to find happiness. Read this chapter and find out the true state of the married man's affairs.

By Cora Carlyle

IMMEDIATELY after the First World War, women for the first time were able to break through the narrowness of their existence which reached its most suffocating degree in the Victorian era. In that time, a woman's life was confined to her home and the raising of children. If she were unfortunate enough not to capture a husband, she lived out a useless existence with some relative.

But when woman, revelling in a new found freedom, discarded her petticoats, cut her hair and took her place side by side by man, she discovered the right to earn and work belonged to every girl. With these new occupations came many opportunities to meet all sorts of men, married and unmarried.

In grandma's day if a girl were attracted to a married man she nourished her unhappy passion in the privacy of her bedroom. It was simply taboo! But with woman's emancipations, old time conventions were swept away, and new evils arose. The most dangerous of these was the willingness of some single girls to have affairs with married men.

You may object that this type of relationship has always existed; but it is only since woman has acquired the doubtful prerogative of sexual freedom that we see this deplorable situation occur so frequently and openly. It is this modern age that gives the married man opportunities to cultivate other women without being thought the deep-eyed villain.

Now Take Lester

TAKE the case of the man we will call Lester. He's been married some years and wants the excitement of having a new girl laugh at his stories, admire his wisdom and notice his new tie.

In the Victorian era, he would have sublimated such fantastic desires into some useful channel like vigorously mowing the lawn or taking a fishing trip with old Doc Jackson. Today, the laxity of society allows him to act out these impulses. Unfortunately, when the old standards of conduct were discarded, society failed to set up a new one to guide her daughters properly. As a smart girl, don't let this failure of society throw you.

We know that out of despair and loneliness girls make dates with married men. Perhaps you got involved with a Lester because you didn't have a date for a long time. You were tired of listening to the other girls' chatter about what the boy friends did and didn't do.

So you made the date. At lunch next day with the girls, you casually tossed off that you were thrown on your ear by the stinger you had last night, or that the lobster chowmein was delicious at the new Chinese place. You mentioned what a slick dancer the boy friend was. All of which made you feel you belonged. But did you notice you avoided using his name? Naturally you couldn't tell the whole story; that you had to go home alone because Lester's supposed business conference could only have lasted until 10 o'clock or how, when you entered the first bar, Lester suddenly clutched you by the arm and said, "Let's duck out of here, there's Sam from the office."

Fearful Fun, Though

FOR a while, having a man of your own did pick up your morale, in spite of all the surreptitiousness. It was pleasant to have a man open doors and light cigarettes for you. It was nice to get that little bottle of perfume and those unexpected telephone calls

No doubt this escapade made you feel like a woman who has what it takes to get a man. But how about the little Jiminy Cricket who chirped in your ear, "Don't be so proud. Any girl can get a married man. Why don't you get a boy friend whom your mother can meet? Or someone you can take to Lucy's party on Sunday night."

You can't still that voice. You're no dope. You've tried to minimize the embarrassments and humiliations that this little gambol has caused you; you tried to salvage your pride with excuses for Lester when he broke dates with you. It's awfully hard to be thick-skinned enough to take it.

Perhaps you're like Helen, the gal who goes for the good time and possible expensive gifts. Helen is tired of the bus ride, the community dances and all the simple pleasures that have been her lot in the way of dates. She's watched with insatiable curiosity the glamour girl in the movie living luxuriously in a New York penthouse or an Adirondack shack staffed by six servants.

Along comes our fine feathered friend, Lester, the married man. Undoubtedly, she'll taste and enjoy the finest foods and wines in the most expensive and exclusive places. Lester may even be generous and give her expensive gifts. But Helen is really sacrificing her heritage for a mess of pottage. She is acquiring a distorted sense of values. She is spoiling herself for the young man who is interested in marriage but hasn't the wherewithal to cater to such tastes or unjustified demands.

Perhaps you're the mature and intelligent business woman who has been expending all energies to compete successfully in the business world. You may be able to maintain an attractive apartment but you've been too occupied to build a social life. You just haven't had time to cultivate attractive men who appeal to you.

Another evening listening to the radio or going to the movies is intolerable. Because you neglected to fill your empty social life, you agreed to dine with Lester. Because Lester can fill a niche in your life, you are accepting second-best. You may be the highly paid executive who can design a dress or run an office but the disappointments and heartaches that are part and parcel of a clandestine romance will be the same for you as the untrained shop girl.

Your emotions are just as mercurial and unpredictable as those of any high school teenager. The wasteful expenditure of energies and time is devitalizing on a high or low level.

Vanity Brings Downfall

But getting back to Friend Lester . . . We'd like to call attention to one special pitfall. Whether you are the successful business woman, the home girl, or ordinary working girl, vanity —if you're not on guard—will make you an easy prey to the married man's advances. You may be flattered by Lester's attentions because you feel the experience of marriage has made him more discerning and discriminating.

Something very different is evident about you! The girl who gets involved with the married man is really acknowledging her failure in being able to compete with other girls for the eligible man.

Such strong language is based not on moral considerations but on years of observations that an entanglement with a married man never ends in marriage. Take a good look around you. How many cases do you know or have heard where the married man divorces his wife to marry the other girl? How many girls do you know who have wasted years of their life in a friendship with the man whose name and purse are given to his spouse.

Shut the door to the married man as you would to the plague. Save yourself unnecessary heartache and frustration.

"But this is different. Lester really loves me," you will say. Perhaps Lester is in love with you, but we judge a man not by words but by his actions. Despite that avowal of love, has Lester been able to spend a holiday with you? Of if your birthday fell on a Sunday, was he able to leave his family and be with you?

Even though the married man may be separated from his wife, he has the best protection in the world against another permanent relationship—a marriage certificate that is still valid.

Neither Wife Nor Widow

LESTER may be the type who honestly wants to get a divorce but his wife has put endless difficulties in the way. If it gets too tough, he may give up the struggle and be content to be the separated man who can't get a divorce. And besides, he still has you. So you find yourself in the ambiguous position of being neither wife, maid nor widow.

You may deceive yourself and feel that you are really his wife. Through the long years of association you've nursed him through his hangovers or the more prosaic toothache: you've been invited to weekends together; you may even have shared business ventures; you may have mistakenly been called Mrs. Lester. So what? The bitter reality is that the man who shares your scrambled eggs with you on Sunday morning is another woman's husband.

Or Lester may be the type of separated married man who covets his marriage certificate as the crown jewels. It gives him the kind of diabolical security that allows him to go all the way in his love declarations without the fear of getting entrapped. He feels that he is twice blessed; he can take and take and then never has to give up his precious freedom.

So farewell to Lester, kiss the married man good-bye. And prepare a hello for the eligible new man that you can wear proudly like a flower in your buttonhole.

Women May Revive Bustles But Not the Good Old Days

WOMEN must face the fact that there is no turning back, Georgia Neese Clark, Treasurer of the United States, told the Pilot International yesterday.

They may revive the hoopskirt and bustle fashions but they can never bring back the intellectual and emotional climate in which those flourished, she said.

Every woman, she told the members of Pilot International at their convention luncheon at the Statler Hotel, must stand up and be counted in her true identity—as an American citizen.

A woman today has many responsibilities, she continued, responsibilities which will be multiplied a hundred fold in the years to come.

"Today it's every woman's responsibility to make this a better more secure world," she said, "the kind of world in which every other woman's children, as well as her own, may grow up to have a decent opportunity and a fair chance."

Following the luncheon, the international president, Mrs. C. B. Beyer, opened a package of Vimoutier Camembert cheese in an informal ceremony which opened the Vimoutier exhibit to Pilot International members.

Vimoutier is a French village adopted by the Pilot Club after it was bombed by American planes in 1944 through mistaken information. The exhibit, in the Continental Room of the Statler Hotel, includes paintings of Vimoutier before the bombing as well as handicrafts from the village itself.

Embassy Has Familiar Guest

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Macguire

PENDING the arrival of Iran's new Ambassador, Nasrollah Entezam, the Iran Embassy is being occupied by Mme. Ala, wife of the former Iran envoy, an old family friend.

Mr. Entezam, head of the Iranian delegation to U.N., is at the moment in Geneva for UNESCO conferences. He wrote to Mme. Ala that he would probably not be in Washington until late next month.

When he does arrive Mme. Ala will move over to Dorchester House where she's taken an apartment until spring. Fond of the American way of life, Mme. Ala has another reason for staying on in this country while her husband is serving as Foreign Minister in Teheran. Her children, Iran and Freydoun, are in school here and it will be another year before both have finished their education.

Iran, who will graduate next May, is a student at Bryn Mawr, majoring in archaeology. Freydoun goes to Harvard and has yet another year before he gets his degree in economics.

PHILIP BOURNEUF and Frances Reid, acting couple currently appearing at the Olney Theater, are accustomed to packing and unpacking. Mellie, their Dachshund, helps make every hotel room a home

When Footlights Dim, They're Still a Team

By Sonia Stein

FRANCES REID and Philip Bourneuf are two members of "The Devil's Disciple" company who won't try to upstage each other. They are too fond of each other to do that. In fact, they are married and have been for 10 years.

Not once in all that time have they had a professional feud, although they've played together a number of times. The Lunt-and-Fontaine of feature players, the Bourneufs usually take billing in that order—gentleman first as befits the master of the house.

But at home, it's always a partnership proposition. When only one of them is working, the other does the housekeeping. "I was an impecunious bachelor once, so housework comes as no surprise to me," Mr. Bourneuf says. But his wife thinks he deserves a lot of credit for taking it so much as a matter of course.

Cast as Couple

THEIR current assignment in "The Devil's Disciple" at the Olney Theater this week, casts the Bourneufs as husband and wife for the first time that they can remember. Once Miss Reid played Mr. Bourneuf's daughter in "Rip Van Winkle."

"She played it beautifully, too," her husband says, and adds that he hopes there is no significance in that. Mr. Bourneuf has been playing character roles and graying his temples since he started on the stage, so being aged doesn't bother him.

Married in Stock

THE couple met in summer stock and were married a year later in summer stock—just a few miles from where they had met. Although their summer work usually takes them on the road, and their winter work includes long, irregular hours in television studios and on Broadway, they are incurably domestic. Both of them cook, and love to cook.

In the kitchen, each has a role to play, "because the kitchen isn't big enough for two of us to work on the same dish." But both of them cook the same way, purely by improvisation.

Like any good actors, they can take the basic plot and embroider it as the spirit moves them and in consequence they can't give a letter - for - letter recipe for one of their favorite creations.

The Bourneufs are such cooking enthusiasts they even try to get an apartment when they are on the road.

"Actors get so tired of restaurant and hotel food that you have only to scratch an actor to find an amateur chef," Mr. Bourneuf explains.

AVOCADO AND ORANGE COCKTAIL

Ingredients: ½ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, ¼ teaspoon mustard, ¼ teaspoon onion salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 2 teaspoons cider vinegar, 2 tablespoons olive oil, 2 medium-size oranges (about 1 cup diced and juice), 2 small or 1 large avocado (about 2 cups diced).

Method: Put salt, pepper, mustard, onion salt and paprika in a small mixing bowl; add vinegar and stir well to blend seasonings. Add olive oil and beat well with a fork. Peel chilled orange so that no white membrane remains, slice in thick circles and cut each circle in sixths; or cut orange segments away from membrane walls and halve each. Cut avocado in half and peel; slice and dice. Arrange avocado and orange in 4 sherbet glasses in layers, or place the avocado cubes on one side and the orange cubes on the other. Pour 2 teaspoons of the dressing over the fruit in each glass and serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

One on the Aisle—

A Songwriter Saga That's Believable

By Richard L. Coe

"THREE LITTLE WORDS," at the Palace, is solidly in the groove as a screen biography of successful songwriters. With Fred Astaire dancing and Red Skelton doing a fine job of acting, the story tells you about Kalmar and Ruby, who've contributed a pack to the Hit Parade in the past 30 years.

While the Lives of Great Composers of the Twentieth Century have been movie staple for years, this latest is better than most, in that its sequences are believable and the characters a bit more than the usual gee-whiz boys. It is, for instance, a more credible saga than the Rogers and Hart "Words and Music" or the trite stuff dreamed up for the imaginative Cole Porter in "Night and Day."

Bert Kalmar was one of the most successful dancing stars of the early twenties. He was a Keith headliner here, as one of the authentic sequences shows you, and all his life he enjoyed nothing more than playing at magic.

Harry Ruby, who wrote most of their tunes, but now does mostly lyrics, was a young feller who wanted to play big league baseball more than anything on earth. His school pal was Al Schacht, and it's not a scenarist's dream that every time Harry was about to do something foolish, his partner would get Al to invite him to join the Nats for spring training to get some foolishness out of his system.

So they didn't, you see, want to be song writers at all. It came naturally, their collaboration, and with it such chunes as "So Long, Oolong," "Nevertheless," "All Alone Monday" and "I Love You So Much." And after Harry had played the tune for years, they finally hit on just the right words for "Three Little Words."

It is this reasonable casual success, as compared with more frantic screen biographies, that gives "Three Little Words" its charm. Though George Wells did the screen play, Ruby acted as technical adviser and contributed the bits from his memory that make for some endearing episodes.

These include the lucky break they had when Helen Kane added those "boob-oop-a-doops" to "I Wanna Be Loved by You," which made it a national rage, and the baseball sequences that afford glimpses of the more familiar Skelton comedy tricks.

However, Red has added something for this screen part, a characterization that goes a bit deeper than his usual buffoon. The acting understanding he showed in "The Show-Off" is given further scope and his effectiveness in this makes Red's screen future seem something more than just his frantic gagging.

Astaire gets several chances at dancing, with Vera-Ellen as his partner. They have several numbers in the Technicolor style and Arlene Dahl is on hand as the girl Ruby marries. How gorgeous that redhead is!

I must confess that this doesn't seem to me half so imaginative or so delightful a picture as "On the Town," which got away from the backstage angles to introduce its songs and dances. I've found some people who didn't share my enthusiasm for "On the Town," however, and those are the very folks who'll most enjoy "Three Little Words."

THAT CANVAS THEATER that's about to open across from the Silver Spring-Georgia ave. Hot Shoppe (don't you dote on that "pe" ending?) now says everything will be ready for Monday night at 8:30, at which time I hope to be fast asleep on Cape Cod, so I'll now say good luck to "How on Earth!" and its laborers.

THE SWASHBUCKLER AND THE LADY: Burt Lancaster brings back costumed acrobatics in "The Flame and the Arrow," the Warner's lively bid for fans who liked Doug Fairbanks and Errol Flynn of yore. Burt's lady here is Virginia Mayo and despite her reluctance, she's mad for Burt and his athletics and Dorothy Patrick the hapless maid. There are some attempts to suggest an English background, but it's not long before "Gee Whiz" creeps into the script. All it goes to prove it that a married man shouldn't make passes at his wife's maid.

"This Side of the Law" also would seem to have more than it shows. Kent Smith, who doesn't do anything in particular, happens to look just like a rich man who's disappeared. A shyster lawyer fixes things so that three million bucks will eventually drift his own way, thanks to Smith's uncanny resemblance to the missing millionaire. Who's actually a skeleton at the bottom of an old well.

Viveca Lindfors and Janis Paige are the ladies in the case, and if you ask me what it all proved, I'd only be able to say, with Moses, "Crime Does Not Pay." R. L. C.

"THREE LITTLE WORDS." M-G-M release produced by Jack Cummings. Screen play by George Wells based on the lives and songs of Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, with Ruby as technical adviser. Dances by Hermes Pan. Directed by Richard Thorpe. At the Palace.

THE OLNEY'S Dick Skinner should be as at home next week with Luise Rainer in "The Lady from the Sea" as he is this week with Maurice Evans in "The Devil's Disciple," which production he company-managed last season in New York . . . It was in "The Lady from the Sea" with Blanche Yurka and an ingenue understudy named Bette Davis that Our Richard acted in the Ibsen drama in 1929 . . . As for Miss Rainer, she's an old employe of Dick's; he and Day Tuttle should never forget the week Luise played "Saint Joan" with the Washington Civic Theater at the Belasco for a 1940 Red Cross benefit . . . Rather, perhaps, they'll never forget the weeks of rehearsal which preceded the play . . . Dick also presented her in "Joan of Lorraine" at Bucks County.

THE YOUNGER set has a lot of interest in the Arena Theater movement . . . Under Howard Lord's direction, the young people of St. Anselm's priory will be giving "Winterset" next Thursday at the Chevy Chase Community Center and on Friday and Saturday at the Chevy Chase Auditorium, playing "in the round" . . . Among the players will be Joseph Plummer, Sandi (just Sandi!), Mike Murray, Stewart Perry and John Barrett.

TONIGHT brings the opening for Catholic Universitys' final play of the summer, an adaptation by Rodney Ackland of Ostrovsky's "The Diary of a Scoundrel" . . . Basil Langton is directing; the play will run through August 6, including both Sunday evenings . . . The play is about the civil service employes of Moscow . . . In the 1850s, Senator McCarthy.

Canadian Bacon

Canadian style bacon is actually boneless pork loin that has been cured and smoked; it may be panbroiled, panfried, roasted or broiled.

Double Dose Of Murder At the Met

The more promising is "The House by the River," directed by the often effective Fritz Lang, with a screen play by "The Window's" Mel Dinelli from a novel by that most civilized of Britain's MP's, A. P. Herbert. The credit lines make it sound good.

But Lang's atmosphere, usually so chilling, is showing badly in this yarn about a cowardly writer who accidentally murders his wife's maid and then turns the suspicion on his brother. On paper it might have looked pretty smooth, but in the celluloid it's draggy and often laughable.

Louis Hayward is the villain of the piece, Lee Bowman the guiltless brother, Jane Wyatt the wife

"THIS SIDE OF THE LAW." Warner Brothers release produced by Saul Elkins. Screen play by Russell Hughes from a story by Richard Sale. Directed by Richard Bare. At the Metropolitan.
